STOCKS RALLY AT END AFTER A DIZZY DAY

Some Leaders Make Net Gains on Powerful Support, but Prices Generally Are Sharply Lower.

SALES ARE SECOND LARGEST ON RECORD

Many Issues Touch New Lows for Year — Declines Run as High as $45 in Case of Auburn Auto.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—After one of the most frenzied outbursts of selling in the history of the stock market, powerful interests were able to check the dizzy decline in prices late in the session today and left several of the leading stocks out of the deep pits into which they had been driven. Closing prices generally, however, were sharply lower. Total sales of nearly 7,000,000 were piled up, the second largest day on record, and the ticker fell a maximum of 75 minutes behind the market.

Prices reached their maximum declines about midafternoon when the selling movement appeared to slacken, and moderate rallies set in. Trading was hampered by the lateness of the tickers, and final quotations of most issues were not available until more than an hour and a half after the closing gong.

Some Losses Recovered.

Floor prices available in leading stocks, however, showed several losses more than recovered. United States Steel, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse and American Can closed about 1½ to 3 points higher. General Electric, however, was down more than 3 points, and Radio about 5.

The selling was generally attributed to the cleaning out of marginal accounts weakened by last week's almost perpendicular decline, although rumors were spread about that a few not too strong pools had been forced to unload. Consderable buying appeared on scale down after midday, and several investment trusts were said to be buying. There was a notable lack of urgent short covering, however, right up to the close of the market.

Important brokers and bankers were said to have held several conferences over the week-end regarding stabilization of the market. Several have been known to feel, however, that the market would not reach a firm footing until it had had a 7,000,000 or 8,000,000-share day of selling. Rumors that Jesse Livermore, who formerly played an important part in the market, was the head of a large bear pool, were emphatically denied by Livermore.

Even partners in stock exchange houses had difficulty in getting quotations, as their floor members and clerks were completely swamped with orders. Commission house board rooms were crowded until nearly two hours after the close of the market, watching the tape reel off the late transactions.

The curb set a new high record of about 2,700,000 shares.

A wide assortment of issues closed with sharp losses. Radio, having sold as low as $76 a share, closed at $78, or $5 below Saturday's close. General Motors, at $59.50, was down 75c. Some of the rather inactive issues in which there is a thin market suffered spectacular drops. Auburn Auto tumbled $45 to $330, which is $184 below its peak level for the year. The Commercial Solvents old stock sold at $527, a loss of $133. Trading is now concentrated in the new stock created by a 10-for-1 splitup.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent, but soon dropped to 5 and went begging at that figure. The day's news included an extra dividend by Harbison Walker, and a few good earnings reports, but the market had no time for such matters.

Livermore Issues Denial.

"There is no truth whatever in any such rumors as far as I am concerned, and I know of no such combination having been formed by others," said Jesse L. Livermore in a statement issued today, denying rumors current of a renewal of activities on his part at the head of a powerful bear aggregation. He declared it "foolish to think any individual, or combination of individuals could artificially bring about a decline in the stock market in a country so large and prosperous as the United States." What has happened during the last few weeks, he said, "is the inevitable result of a long period of manipulation of many stock issues to prices many times their actual worth, based on earnings and yield returns."

$1,000,000 Gift to Principia For New College in County

Donor's Identity Is Withheld By Trustees—136-Acre Site on Creve Coeur Car Line Was Acquired in 1922.

Trustees of The Principia announced today receipt of a gift of $1,000,000 from a donor whose name is withheld in accordance with his wishes.

The money probably will be used in the construction of Principia's proposed four-year college, for which a 136-acre site at Lackland road and Creve Coeur car line was acquired in 1922.

When the site was acquired the trustees' plan was to erect a $2,000,000 college to be operated in connection with the existing academy at Page boulevard and Belt avenue, where the classes range from the kindergarten through junior college.

The larger part of the site, 113 acres, was purchased for $189,000 by Clarence H. Howard of 5501 Chamberlain avenue, a member of the board of trustees and a large donor to Principia. The remaining 23 acres was purchased by the Academy for $40,000 and has been used as an athletic field.

Recently control of the Commonwealth Steel Co. of Granite City, of which Howard was president, was sold to the General Steel Castings Co., of Philadelphia for $35,000,000.

Protests Against Methods of Selling Imitations Only Experts Can Detect.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The protest of the Persian Government against marketing practices of American carpet and rug manufacturers had been placed in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission by the State Department for a preliminary examination.

Persia, in the complaint made to Secretary Stimson by Minister Mefatah, charged American manufacturers with unethical marketing practices detrimental to the rug-making industry.

Special attention was directed by the Persian Government to the advertising methods of American manufacturers which, the note said, in some cases "might very conceivably impress the unsuspicious consumer that the article is really Oriental."

The complaint said that for some time American carpet manufacturers have copied handmade designs and colorings of Persian rugs and have been so successful in the reproduction that an expert's inspection is required to distinguish between the machine-made and handmade product.

The note expressed the hope that appropriate action would be taken by the American Government to discontinue the practices.

BAND BLOWS UP FLORIDA ROAD TO FREE FLOOD WATERS

Guard on Stretch of West Dixie Highway Near Fort Lauderdale Seized.

By the Associated Press.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Oct. 21.—A band of men blasted out a portion of the West Dixie Highway near here last night to release flood waters which have accumulated from torrential rains during the past two weeks.

The pent-up waters were released through a 40-foot gap, after the men seized the watchman on the stretch of road and set off nine boxes of dynamite.

County engineers already had opened a small gap through the highway close to where the explosion was made last night. This was done Saturday afternoon. Last night's blast widened the outlet.

The men also opened a levee in the Middle River drainage district. The waters are flowing through the Middle River drainage canal to the north fork of the new river, a short distance away.

EXPECTING CRASH, PRIEST ABSOLVES ALL IN PLANE

Pilot Successfully Lands Burning Antwerp-Ghent Craft, However.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A dispatch to the Express from Brussels today said a Roman Catholic priest, flying from Antwerp to Ghent, Saturday, pronounced absolution for the dying on behalf of his 11 fellow passengers.

The plane's carburetor took fire and the 11, believing they were doomed, besought absolution of the priest.

While he recited the solemn words the pilot landed his plane safely. The passengers were scarcely clear of it when the gasoline tanks exploded and the machine was destroyed.

HOMICIDE VERDICT IN FATAL SHOOTING IN LOBBY OF HOTEL

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned today in the killing of Cuthbert C. White, a real estate salesman, in the lobby of the Warwick Hotel, Fifteenth and Locust streets, early yesterday, in a dispute with another guest, Elmer Harvick, also known as George Harvey, who is being sought.

Testimony of a half dozen witnesses disclosed that both White and Harvick had been drinking. White "kidded" Harvick, the witnesses said, and Harvick called him a name. White then swung his fist at Harvick's jaw, missing. Harvick drew a revolver and fired two shots, one taking effect.

The Story of Shooting

The story of the shooting, told by witnesses, follows:

"Cub" White, as he was known, and Harvick returned to the hotel lobby about 1:55 o'clock after a taxicab ride and a visit to a chop suey restaurant. White was "a little stewed," to quote one witness, and Harvick also showed signs of drink. White "kidded" Harvick about something not remembered by the witnesses.

White was at a writing table, Harvick was seated on the edge of a chair. Finally, Harvick, described as "the little fellow," said to White: "I don't care how big you are, I'm not afraid of you."

A pause ensued in which Harvick bought a package of cigarettes at a stand, after which he applied an epithet to White, adding: "Damn you, how do you like that?"

Pursued Man Who Shot Him.

"I've stood enough of that," answered White, removing his hat and coat and placing them on the table. He swung at Harvick's jaw, but missed. Harvick ran to the rear of the lobby. White followed. Harvick turned and, at a distance of 10 feet, fired twice at White. White fell, a bullet having entered his right shoulder and ranged downward to the heart.

Harvick ran to a garage at Thirteenth and Locust street where he made a futile attempt to borrow an automobile. He was last seen running west on Olive street. Police reported he had been to the home of his mother, 1202 South Eighteenth street, at 8:30 a. m. He is said to have a wife and child in Chaffee, Mo.

Witnesses to the shooting were Thomas B. Driscoll, George Dunn, William Holt and Peter Martin, guests of the hotel; Otto Schubert, a waiter, and William Dixon, Negro elevator operator.

Roommate's Pistol Missing.

Dunn, a roommate of Harvick, learned that his revolver was missing from a dresser drawer after the shooting. He thinks Harvick took it.

Driscoll suggested the "kidding" may have been about Harvick's wife, but he was not certain. He recalled that White and a friend chanced to meet Harvick's wife and another woman in a restaurant three weeks ago.

Harvick is 22 years old. He was employed as counter man at Child's Restaurant, 804 Washington avenue.

White was 35. He was employed as district sales manager by the Criterion Realty Co., Star Building, a month and a half ago, but discharged 10 days ago for drinking. On his promise of sobriety, he was taken back as salesman. His possessions included a letter from his mother in Oak Park, Ill., which read:

"Father goes to the mail box every day hoping to find a letter from you, but he is always disappointed. If you are in trouble, worried or in need of money let us know and we will help you."

DETROIT GREETS HOOVER, THERE TO HONOR EDISON

MAIN CELEBRATION ON RADIO TONIGHT

Inventor to Describe How He Perfected Incandescent Lamp—Einstein to Talk From Berlin.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—Through a driving rain and biting wind, President Hoover, here to participate in the Golden Jubilee celebration of the invention of the incandescent electric lamp by Thomas A. Edison, with Mrs. Hoover beside him, drove for 12 miles today in an open automobile from Dearborn, the estate of Henry Ford, to this city to greet thousands of persons crowded in the plaza in front of the City Hall.

The purpose of the visit was for the President to receive an official welcome from Gov. Green and Mayor Lodge, but it gave the people of Detroit their opportunity to see a President for the first time in more than a decade.

Throughout the long drive the President's car passed through an almost solid lane of persons lining both sides of Oakwood boulevard. Men, women and children were heedless of the elements as they strained to get a view of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

All along the line the Chief Executive received an ovation, with the crowds cheering and automobile horns, bells and clappers adding to the din. At some places cadets of Detroit high schools with their colors were drawn up at attention and at others small school children waved tiny American flags as they screamed their welcome.

"America" Played on Chimes.

Here and there a band played, and as the procession passed the Fort Street Presbyterian Church on West Fort street, the chimes in the tower played "America."

Although both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover had raincoats thrown about their shoulders during the drive, they were fairly wet upon arriving at City Hall. The President's gray Fedora was soaked, with water running from the brim as he doffed his hat on entering the door of the City Hall.

In this building, Mayor Lodge was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and escorted them a short way to the main entrance, where a covered platform had been erected. Mr. Hoover received a tumultuous welcome by the thousands of persons, most of whom stood in the rain without protection even of umbrellas.

Speech by Governor.

Gov. Green, who had welcomed the President on his arrival at Dearborn early in the morning, stepped forward to the microphone, but it was more than a minute before he could make himself heard above the din.

"Owing to the generosity of Henry Ford," the Governor said, "we are privileged to celebrate an achievement of the greatest inventive genius of our time, Thomas A. Edison. He has come to spend a few days with us and to view again the places he visited in his youth.

"It is most fitting that at this celebration there should be brought together the builders of our age and foremost among them is the good man we honor today, Herbert Hoover.

"His susefulness to his country and to humanity are so well known a sto require no statement at this time. The State of Michigan has an abiding faith in him. He is more beloved in this State than ever before. Our people more than ever before stand behind him an dhis policies.'

Reply by the President.

Thanking the crowd for the "generosity and courtesy" of its welcome, the President said he saw "no lack of warmth in the faces and hearts of the people of Detroit, despite the action of the skies."

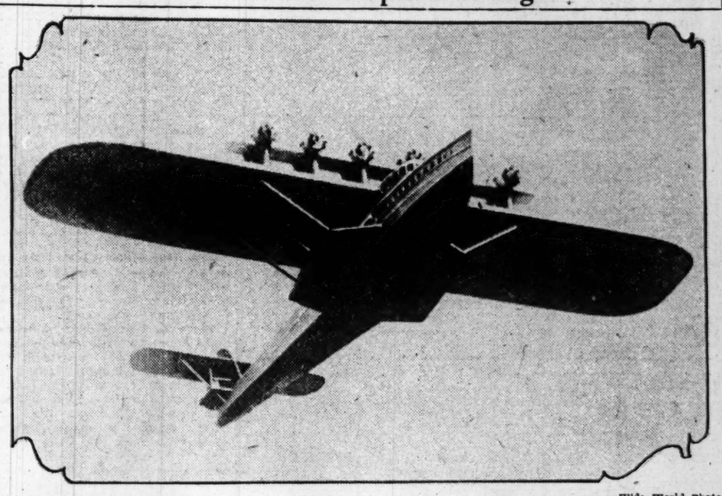

"I have thought it a fitting thing, as the Governor has said, for the President of the United States to take part in paying honor to one of our great Americans, Thomas A. Edison.

"Mr. Edison has brought to our country great distinction throughout the world. He has brought great benefactions to all of us and it is but a small thing we may do to record the appreciation, esteem and honor in which the nation holds him.

"Detroit is fortunate it is to be the point where the nation pays its tribute to Thomas A. Edison and I wish to thank you again for your

HUGE GERMAN PLANE, DO-X, CARRIES RECORD LOAD, 169 PERSONS, IN HOUR'S FLIGHT

Giant German Seaplane in Flight

By the Associated Press.

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland, Oct. 21.—The giant 12-engined flying boat DO-X, which was launched here in July, today made a flight of one hour, carrying 169 persons, the first time in the history of aviation that so many have been taken into the air on any conveyance.

The Dornier took off at 11:15 a. m. The machine flew over Lake Constance, with its motors working faultlessly and landed with the 51-ton load at 12:15 p. m. without any trouble.

The DO-X carried 159 passengers and a crew of 10. The plane had made previous test flights, but this was the first time that so great a load was taken up.

The flying boat, which may be used for a trans-Atlantic crossing for the purpose of trying out its capacities, was built in the greatest secrecy. It was designed to carry 40 passengers normally, but has accommodation for 100, if necessary. The 12 engines develop a total of 6000 horsepower and each engine can be operated individually without affecting the others.

The DO-X measures 150 feet from tip to tail. Its wings are 10 feet thick and 150 feet from wing tip to wing tip. Six great turrets project from each wing and each turret is equipped with two engines of 500 horsepower. The turrets are manned by mechanics who can walk along a passage on the inside of the wings from one turret to another.

When the DO-X was launched last July it carried 34 tons and was able to get into the air with the greatest ease after a take-off run of only 500 yards, other trials were similarly successful.

One of the features of the plane is its three decks while another is that the machine can fly with only eight motors in use.

Dr. Dornier built the plane at Altenrhein which is on the Swiss side of the German-Swiss frontier, because of the limitations on German aircraft imposed by the treaty of Versailles.

While the plane was being built there were many skeptics who said that it would never fly owing to its enormous weight. Aviation experts, however, were enthusiastic about its ability to take the air.

The largest number of persons carried before on an aircraft was 72, these being on the Graf Zeppelin on its second flight across the Atlantic Ocean from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J.

The passenger load of the DO-X would fill seven Pullman coaches.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.

PRESIDENT HOOVER, in reply to a protest from Florida over the appointment of a Federal District Attorney, has announced it is the duty of the chief executive to make selections on the basis of public service and not for political reasons.

The letter, made public at the White House today, was in reply to a communication from Fred E. Britten, secretary of the Republican party in Florida, on the appointment of Federal District Attorney Hughes. It asserted the Florida secretary and other Republican leaders in that State had overlooked the "primary responsibility" incumbent on the chief executive "to appoint men to public office who will execute the laws of the United States with integrity and without fear, favor or political collusion."

"I note your demand," the letter said, "that the organization shall dictate appointments in Florida irrespective of merit or my responsibility and that you appealed to the opponents of the administration to attack me. The success of the Republican party rests upon good government, not on patronage."

SUPREME COURT TO DECIDE WHAT CONSTITUTES AUTO PARTS

Will Rule on Difference Between Accessories in Excise Tax Controversy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The Supreme Court today consented to decide what constituted automobile parts and accessories under the revenues acts of 1918, 1921 and 1924. It was estimated that approximately $3,000,000 in taxes were at issue in controversies raised by the manufacturers of electric batteries.

The Vesta Battery Corporation of Chicago sought to recover $324,975 from the Government, claiming it had been required to pay excessive manufacturers' excise taxes due to the construction placed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue on its output of batteries as automobile accessories.

7 CONVICTED OF MURDER OF GASTONIA POLICE CHIEF

Textile Union Organizers and Strikers Found Guilty on Second Degree Charges.

VERDICT CARRIES TWO TO 30 YEARS

Jury Also Holds Defendants Guilty of Assault Upon Three Policemen Wounded in the Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 21.—The seven Gastonia labor leaders and union members accused of second degree murder for the killing of O. F. Aderholt, Chief of Police of Gastonia, were found guilty in Mecklenburg Superior Court today.

The men convicted were Fred Erwin Beal, Lawrence, Mass., formerly Southern organizer for the National Textile Workers' Union; Clarence Miller, New York, Communist educator; George Carter, Mizpah, N. J., union member; Joseph Harrison, Passaic, N. J., union organizer, and William McGinnis, K. Y. Hendricks and Louis McLaughlin, Gastonia, union members.

The verdict carries a sentence of from 2 to 30 years in prison, at the discretion of the Judge.

The verdict came 50 minutes after the jury, which had listened to the evidence and arguments of attorneys for two and one-half weeks, took the case.

Disagreement on Assault.

The jury also reported a verdict of guilty of felonious assault on A. J. Roach and Thomas Gilbert, and assault with a deadly weapon on Charles Ferguson, three policemen who were wounded in the same strike shooting in which Aderholt was fatally wounded, but a poll of the jury disclosed that J. A. Helms, juror No. 3, was not in accord with the other jurors on these charges.

Helms asserted from the jury box that he believed the defendants to be "not guilty" of the assault charges and Judge M. V. Barnhill ordered the jury back to its room to further consider the case. He then recessed until 2:30 o'clock.

The poll requested by the defense necessitated asking each juror on its second flight across the Atlantic Ocean from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J.

Helms seemingly was confused by the questions but stuck to his statement so persistently that Judge Barnhill ordered further consideration of the matter.

The jury returned to the courtroom after lunch and returned a verdict of guilty on all charges of assault against all of the defendants. When polled this time, all jurors answered that their verdict was guilty.

Aderholt was wounded fatally the night of June 7 when he and four other policemen went to a tent colony maintained by the National Textile Workers' Union and the Workers' International Relief for strikers from the Loray cotton mill in Gastonia. He died the next day.

To Take Up Woman's Murder.

Originally 13 men and three women were accused of first degree murder and a trial of the entire group on that charge was interrupted here when a juror became insane. When the present trial started the charge was reduced and all except seven of the cases were nolle prossed.

Evidence in the mob killing of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, Bessemer City striker and the cases of seven men accused of kidnaping three labor leaders from Gastonia, will be given to the Gaston County Grand Jury tomorrow, it was learned here today.

The inquest into the death of Mrs. Wiggins was scheduled to be reopened in Gastonia this afternoon, but Solicitor John G. Carpenter was engaged in court here and could not be present. He said today that both cases would be presented to the Grand Jury without any further action by the Coroner in the Wiggins case.

CHICAGO NO-PARKING LAW RULED ILLEGAL

Supreme Court Decision Presents Problem to Chicago Police.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The State Supreme Court's decision that the ordinance against downtown parking is illegal has turned back upon traffic authorities one of their most vexing problems.

Under the decision, motorists would be permitted to park their cars in the crowded downtown area unrestricted — a situation which police contend would cause an economic loss of thousands of dollars daily in delay to traffic movement.

Loop store owners have fought the non-parking ordinance, claiming a 25 per cent falling off in business was due to the restrictions against car owners.

SENATE COALITION SEEKS TO REDUCE EXISTING TARIFFS

Democratic-Progressive Leaders Launch Plan to Reduce High Rates in Fordney-McCumber Law.

MOVE TO LIMIT SCHEDULES FAILS

Thomas (Oklahoma) Proposal to Recommit Bill to Committee Opposed by Own Party Chiefs.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Leaders of the Democratic Progressive Republican coalition in the Senate, which has rewritten the administrative features of the pending tariff bill, today formally declared that they would seek to lower the existing high rates of the present Fordney-McCumber act.

The declaration was made in discussing the proposal of Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, to recommit the pending Hawley-Smoot bill to the Senate Finance Committee, with instructions to eliminate all schedules except those pertaining to agriculture and directly related products. The Thomas amendment was similar to the proposal of Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, which was defeated last June by a single vote.

The Thomas proposal was defeated, 64 to 10. The 10 Senators voting for the amendment were Frazier (Rep.), North Dakota; Harris (Dem.), Georgia; Howell (Rep.), Nebraska; McMasters (Rep.), South Dakota; Nye (Rep.), North Dakota; Pine (Rep.), Oklahoma; Schall (Rep.), Minnesota; Sheppard (Dem.), Texas; Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, and Waterman (Rep.), Colorado.

Why They Opposed It.

Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, ranking Democratic member of the Finance Committee; George Norris, one of the leaders of the progressive Republicans, and Senator Joe Robinson, minority leader, announced that they were against the Thomas amendment because they were convinced that agriculture would receive more benefit from a lowering of the present industrial rates than from an increase of the agricultural rates.

Recent disclosures by the Senate Lobby Committee that Senator Hiram Bingham, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, had an agent of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association "at his elbow" during the writing of Finance Committee's bill, were cited by the three speakers to show how industrial rates had been fixed. They declared that a discussion of all the committee's industrial rates would show the manifest inequalities of the bill.

"There is no better time than now to discuss the industrial rates," Simmons declared. "We do not desire to be confined to the rates carried in the Fordney-McCumber act."

If the Thomas proposal had been successful, the Fordney-McCumber rates would have been retained in the law."

"August," Says Simmons.

"The Fordney-McCumber rates are exceedingly high," Simmons contiuued. "Many are exorbant, and are horribly unjust. We want to go behind them in many instances and reduce them.

"During the last few weeks the country has seen enough and heard enough of what has gone on when the majority members of the finance committee were writing the present bill; now the country wants those rates discussed, criticized and exposed."

Correction; Senator Deneen Was Paired Against Debentures.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. — An unintentional injustice was done to Senator Deneen (Rep.), Illinois, in the report of the Senate's vote on the debenture plan published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday under the signature of its Washington correspondent.

Senator Deneen, as stated, did not vote, but the official roll call shows that he went on record against the plan by means of a pair with Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, who favored the plan.

At 5:24 o'clock this evening, nine minutes after sunset, illumination of Twelfth boulevard will begin, in celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee, the semi-centennial of Thomas A. Edison's completion of the incandescent lamp.

Until 11 o'clock, multi-colored flood lights, golden clusters and powerful beacons will pour radiance upon the Memorial Plaza district, and on Twelfth north to Washington avenue. A band will furnish theme-tunes for the promenading throng, which will have the great open spaces of asphalt to itself, without motor menaces. Fair weather, with the brisk coolness of autumn, is expected to add to the enjoyment of this, the first evening of a week's super-lighting display.

The beacons, mounted on the new Civil Courts Building, will flash through miles of air space on both sides of the Mississippi. Three dirigibles from Scott Field, flying above the lighted district, will be among the objects which the beacons will render visible.

After the evening rush of westbound motor traffic has ceased, the east and west streets crossing Twelfth, between Washington avenue and Market street, will be closed to traffic, as Twelfth boulevard itself will be. The only exception will be for the street cars on the Olive line, which will continue to run on their regular tracks.

Street cars will run on Washington avenue and Market street as usual. The Hodiamont, Belt, Fourth and other lines entering Twelfth at Locust or Pine street, will be rerouted as soon as the size of the crowd makes it appear necessary. Automobiles will have to detour at Eleventh and Thirteenth or Fourteenth streets, and go around the illuminated district.

Persons listening at their homes to the radio broadcast of the celebration at Dearborn, Mich., to be attended by Edison, President Hoover and other distinguished guests of Henry Ford, can go downtown after the end of the radio program, which is from 6:30 to 7:30.

A large police detail, consisting of the 70 men who were stationed at The Arena last week and 50 to 70 more, will be on duty in the lighted district from 3:30 p. m., in charge of traffic and public safety.

The jubilee display and band concert will be the same every night this week, ending Saturday, and will last until 11 p. m. nightly.

In East St. Louis, the lighting observance will be part of the sixth annual Pageant of Progress. The first float in the pageant parade, starting from Twentieth and State streets at 7, will represent "Light's Golden Jubilee." The line of march will be: State street to Collinsville avenue, Collinsville to Missouri avenue, Missouri to Main street, Main to Broadway, Broadway to Collinsville, Collinsville to Missouri, Missouri to Ninth street, Ninth to St. Louis avenue, St. Louis avenue to Ainad Temple. At the temple, the "Queen of Egypt" will be crowned tonight, and a lighting pageant will be presented on the remaining nights of this week.

Tower of Light Where Electric Lamp Was Invented.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 21.—While Thomas A. Edison participates in a celebration in his honor hundreds of miles away, the little town of Menlo Park, where 50 years ago he invented the incandescent lamp, tonight will illuminate a Tower of Light to its most famous son.

A 100-foot tower has been erected, topped with a 15-foot lamp. This lamp will be illuminated by 960 incandescent lights. It will mark the spot where Edison invented the lamp. The Edison Pioneers, an organization of old-time Edison associates, plan to keep it lighted indefinitely.

Japan Begins Nation-Wide Celebration Honoring Edison.

FALL PROSECUTOR ASSAILS CLAUSE IN DOHENY LEASE

"Does Any One Believe Wise Old Man (Doheny) Didn't Understand Preferential Right"? He Asks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Final arguments in the bribery trial of Albert B. Fall were started today when Atlee Pomerene, special Government counsel, told the jury which will determine Fall's guilt or innocence that they must determine whether the $100,000 obtained by the defendant from Edward L. Doheny was a loan or not.

Fall, who arrived a few minutes before court opened, walked into the room and to his chair. For the last week he had been wheeled to his place in an invalid chair. He was supported by attendants, but appeared stronger than at the start of the trial in which the Government charges he received $100,000 from Doheny for awarding the latter company a lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California.

The closing arguments were delayed about an hour while counsel conferred with Justice Hitz on disputed pleas each side wanted included in his charge to the jury.

Pomerene read a letter from Fall to Doheny before the Elk Hills lease was made, which showed, he said, that the latter was "being kept informed of the oil reserve situation." The prosecuter also read the famous policy letter in which Fall had inserted after the clause, "These leases shall be awarded by competitive bidding," the words "and otherwise," and said he would give the reason for this insertion.

"Here's the situation," Pomerene shouted, "contracts are about to be let—a pretense of competition—yet Doheny, a mining friend of Fall, presents a bid containing that preferential right, and nothing in the specifications calling for it.

"Doheny testified before a Senate committee that he had 'blurted out' that he had expected to make $100,000,000 out of the Elk Hills lease. That wise old man doesn't blurt out anything unless he has confidence."

No other company knew of the preferential clause in the contract, Pomerene told the jury, asserting that Doheny's firm expected to get the oil reserve when it made the bid.

Reciting Doheny's testimony that he never understood the preferential right, Pomerene asked: "Does any man or woman believe that the wise old man (Doheny) did not understand what the preferential right was?"

"I have said something about a $100,000 transaction and I am going to say more," Pomerene said. "That $100,000 was filthy lucre and when it was delivered by Doheny he knew it was filthy lucre and when Fall received it he knew it was filthy lucre."

He declared the legality of the Elk Hills lease had been questioned and asked the jury what they would do in such an important matter.

"You would do what any other honest man would do," he said in answer to his own question, "and get the opinion of the Attorney-General and you heard him say his opinion had never been asked." At the opening of the afternoon session Justice Hitz told counsel he would limit the arguments, but due to the delay in opening court it was thought that the case would not go to the jury until late tomorrow or Wednesday.

All the testimony in the case, now entering its third week, has been presented, and the jury probably will receive the Judge's charge tomorrow and then retire for its deliberation.

Hoover Welcomed in Rain at Detroit

Hoovers in Borrowed Coats.

After the City Hall ceremonies, the President and Mrs. Hoover drove back to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford at Dearborn. Mr. Hoover was bundled up in a great coat and a rain coat which was lent to him at the City Hall, while Mrs. Hoover wore a coat of Mrs. Gwynn Davis, a secretary in the Mayor's office.

A secret service agent told Ralph Quinn, secretary to the Mayor, that Mrs. Hoover was soaked through by the rain and would like to have a coat. Quinn rushed into his office. "Give me your coat," he demanded of Mrs. Davis, who, startled, handed it to him without knowing for what purpose. A few minutes later she saw Mrs. Hoover wearing it as she entered the car.

Edison, who braved the rain to welcome the President at the Ford plant at Dearborn and accompanied the party to the early American village which Mr Ford has reproduced as a monument to the inventor, did not make the trip here and so disappointed the crowds. He was not feeling any too well and his friends decided he should remain indoors for the time.

Upon the return to the Ford home, the President and Mrs. Hoover had lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Ford and Mr. and Mrs Edison before making a tour of the Rouge plant of the Ford company and the early American village and Edison buildings erected by Ford.

Arrival in Dearborn.

The President arrived at Dearborn at 9:30 a. m.

In addition to the President and Ford, Madame Curie, co-discoverer of radium; Owen D. Young, Prof. Albert Einstein and many other national and international figures will take part in the celebration in honor of Edison.

At the specially constructed platform at the River Rouge transfer, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Edison, Mr. and Mrs. Ford and Secretary of War Good posed for pictures before boarding the train. The train of olden days proved a curiosity for the Presidential party. There were three coaches, each painted in gay colors and decorated outside with scenes of colonial days in this country.

Wood-Burning Engine Hauls Train.

The coaches were hauled by a wood-burning locomotive and each car had a wood stove going at full blast. There were old style oil burning lamps to illuminate the cars but no illumination was needed. Upholstered seats with bronze side arms proved comfortable.

The President and Mrs. Hoover and their hosts entered the rear coach and then moved through the train to the one immediately behind the engine and its tender, which was piled high with cordwood. The train moved along at a fair pace over the two-mile stretch of track to the entrance of the early American village.

During the trip, Edison turned time back more than half a century to re-enact his boyhood role of news butcher. He had a basket of fruit which he sold for real money, insisting on collecting from his customers.

Edison Forced Off Original.

On arrival at Smith's Creek Station, the President and Mrs. Hoover inspected the old train, which is a reproduction of the train from which Edison, in 1862, was forcibly ejected because chemicals with which he experimented in the baggage car when he was not selling newspapers in the other cars, spilled on the floor of the car, set it on fire and incensed the train crew.

The locomotive with its bulging smokestack and two enormous drivers was called the Sam Hill and on each side of the headlight were the words "The President."

The President and Mrs. Hoover then posed for pictures with the engineer, William T. Black, whom Mr. Hoover greeted warmly.

Mr. Hoover showed interest in a nearby sawmill where an old time saw was humming as it cut up the cordwood lengths for the locomotive.

Turning back to the station, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover received the distinguished guests who had been invited here by Ford for the golden jubilee celebration. They included John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Gov. Green.

Then there was an inspection of the red brick station, brought intact from its original site not far from Port Huron on the Port Huron-Detroit route. It was at this station that Edison was discharged as a newsboy and began his career as a telegrapher.

Party Goes to Ford Home.

Deferring an inspection until later in the day, the President and Mrs. Hoover with their hosts and others of the reception drove to the Ford home about a mile away before starting the drive to this city.

A drizzling rain fell throughout the reception at the Smith's Creek Station and the President left off his formal clothes, wearing a dark gray overcoat and a pearl gray fedora hat. Edison wore a black derby with black overcoat, while Ford wore his usual gray soft hat and a light gray coat.

As the party started for the Ford home, the President and Mrs. Hoover entered a town car with Mr. and Mrs. Edison; Mrs. Hoover relinquished her place on the back seat to the famous inventor, who rode beside the President with Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Edison on the folding seats in front.

Program at Museum.

The main part of the celebration is to be held tonight at Greenfield, Ford's museum, in which the automobile manufacturer has gathered relics of pioneer days and Edison's achievements.

Edison will be guest of honor at a dinner in Independence Hall, a copy of the original Philadelphia structure in Greenfield.

At 7:45 p. m. the guests will go to the Menlo Park Laboratory, which was brought from New Jersey by Ford. There Edison will once again perform the experiment in which he completed the electric lamp 50 years ago. A description of the experiment and addresses will be broadcast through National and International Radio network.

As an added feature of the ceremonies tonight, Edison, after returning from the laboratory where he will re-enact the perfection of the lamp, will touch a button that will light a large beacon in East Orange, N. J. The beacon is to stand as a perpetual monument to himself on the original site of his laboratory where the incandescent lamp was born. The beacon is a tribute to Edison by the Edison Pioneers who worked with him in the early days.

Einstein's Address.

By means of radio and telephone, the voice of Prof. Einstein, speaking from his laboratory in Berlin, will be carried to the dinner guests and to radio listeners throughout the world. Commander Richard E. Byrd and his men in the Antarctic are expected to listen in. Prof. Einstein's speech, which will be in English, is scheduled for 8:26 p. m. President Hoover will speak at 8:30. The presidential party will depart at tonight for Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison arrived at Dearborn Saturday morning and have been guests of the Fords. Edison visited the Menlo Park Laboratory Saturday and Sunday, and declared that the building had been rebuilt in every detail, "even to the New Jersey clay."

The inventor found oxen and horses in the village constructed by motor millions. He found that Greenfield is a real village with a postoffice authorized to receive mail. The postoffice was brought from Phoenixville, Conn., and opened for business last week.

Today was declared a holiday by the Detroit City Council in honor of the golden jubilee of light, and all public schools were closed for the day. Buildings in the downtown section are decorated with flags, and pictures of the inventor are much in evidence. Special globes have been placed on street lights to shed golden light during the celebration.

EDISON JUBILEE EXERCISES BY RADIO ON KSD, KWK AND KMOX, AT 6:30 P. M.

CEREMONIES celebrating the golden jubilee of Thomas Edison's invention of the incandescent lamp will be broadcast over St. Louis radio stations, KSD, KWK and KMOX, beginning at 6:30 p. m. today.

Speakers will include President Hoover, Edison, Henry Ford, Owen D. Young, beside Prof. Albert Einstein, who will speak from Berlin. Graham McNamee and Phillips Carlin will describe the scene as Edison makes a duplicate of the first incandescent lamp, working in his original laboratory, moved to Dearborn by Henry Ford.

20 MEN SENT TO JAIL FOR DRY LAW OFFENSES

Five Women Fined by Judge Faris — All Had Pleaded Guilty.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinese is peculiar," said the Bret Harte character, Truthful James.

"The present-day bootleggers," said Federal Judge Faris today, "are like Bret Harte's Chinaman, and for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the Chinaman was not their equal."

The Judge was commenting on the case of Mrs. Mary Dicrispino, wife of the proprietor of a meat market at 2113 Market street. Her attorney pleaded that the shop, where prohibition agents found a quantity of liquor, was not hers, but her husband's, and that she merely was watching it for him while he stepped out for a few minutes.

Mrs. Dicrispino was fined $200. She was one of five women among 28 dry law offenders who had pleaded guilty.

Nine men were sentenced to jail, but 20 went. The others told the Court they could not pay their fines and were ordered to serve 30 days each.

The other women fined were: Mary Buha, 909 South Vandeventer avenue, $400; Mrs. Rose Beach, 4822A Easton avenue, $400; Mrs. Frances Harding, 6100 Delmar boulevard, $650; and Mrs. Della Neidigh, 4159 Delmar, $300.

Those sentenced to jail were: Jack H. Rainey, 1917A Market street, three months and $200; Frank Weber, 4328 Clayton avenue, 30 days; Pete English, 6100 Scanlan avenue, 60 days; Fred Hurster, 609 Eastgate avenue, three months; Tom King, 609 Eastgate avenue, two months and $100; Albert W. Luke, Bellefontaine Club, St. Louis County, 30 days; Sam Morfia, 2041½ North Seventh street, six months and $100; William S. Bryant, 2826 North Vandeventer avenue, four months and $1000, and Leslie Black, Bonne Terre, Mo., three months.

Birger Gangster Held in Gulfport, Miss., Jail Seeking Release by Habeas Corpus.

STILL INSISTS HIS NAME IS RANDALL

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GULFPORT Miss., Oct. 21.—A requisition for the return of Connie Ritter, former Birger gangster, to Illinois, where he is under indictment for three murders, was honored by Gov. Bilbo at noon today.

The last obstacle now in the way of Ritter's return is his petition for release on a writ of habeas corpus upon which a hearing will be held tomorrow. Ritter has little chance that the petition will prevent Illinois authorities from taking him back with them tomorrow night.

State's Attorney Hart, accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Harry Weaver and Jesse Wheat of Franklin County, are on the way to Gulfport. Hart will represent the State of Illinois at tomorrow's hearing.

Even if Ritter's petition should be granted, he will not be freed, because a formal complaint, charging him with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, was filed against him today by a Department of Justice agent. An indictment charging him with conspiracy is pending in Illinois and he can be brought back on this charge without the formality of extradition.

Insists He Is "Fred Randall."

With the desperation of a man who sees retribution close upon him, Ritter clung today to the story that he is Fred Randall, an itinerant gambler and the victim of a mistaken identity. He boasts, somewhat hollowly, that he will be freed tomorrow through the testimony of witnesses from Arkansas and Louisiana who will swear he is Randall. However, as the time for the hearing approaches, Ritter is pale and nervous.

The writer can state from long acquaintance embracing many personal contacts with Ritter in the heyday of the gang's depredations in Illinois that no mistake was made in the identification of the man arrested here Friday.

Ritter talked in private to the writer in the local jail yesterday and apologetically remarked that he would be Fred Randall for the purpose of resisting extradition.

But he is the same Ritter, still smartly dressed. He is more than six feet tall and has a profusion of coal black hair. A characteristic is his gait, that of a "hard guy." His eyes are large, black and without luster, with drooping lids. He has a long, protruding lower lip. Above all, in the descriptions broadcast of him, is a tell-tale scar on his upper lip, evidence of the wanton murder of Ethel Price.

How Ritter's Lip Was Scarred.

When Mrs. Price was taken from her home the night of Jan. 17, 1927, shot in the back by Ritter and his pals and thrown into an abandoned coal shaft near Johnston City where her body was found five months later on information supplied by the Post-Dispatch, the murderers sought to conceal that crime by throwing debris into the shaft to cover the body. Among other objects thrown into the shaft was an old automobile body. As this cumbersome piece of metal was swung into the shaft, according to the subsequent confession of an accomplice it struck Ritter's face, cutting his upper lip through to the teeth. The wound was months in healing, hence the scar.

Ritter's arrest here has disclosed that he remained true to his kind following his flight from Southern Illinois. It seems the hanging of Birger and the conviction of most of his other pals affected him little. Last July 12 he and Lewis Austin, a companion, were arrested for a local holdup. They admitted taking a man's money at the point of a pistol in the hands of Ritter, but explained they were only collecting a gambling debt. When Ritter was arrested here by New Orleans detectives Friday on suspicion he was the gangster accused of murder in Illinois, he was at liberty under bond for the holdup. Austin, who was with him Friday, fled from the scene and left Gulfport.

Comrade May Be Ernest Blue.

State Highway Patrolman Price was killed the same night his wife was murdered because he knew too much of the gang's operations. Mrs. Price was killed so she could not tell who took her husband away. Mayor Joe Adams of West City, Ill., was slain at his front door by two youths who handed him a note, written by Ritter. One of them later was killed when Birger's cabin was dynamited. The other confessed the killing for which Birger was executed.

When Mrs. Price was taken from her home the night of Jan. 17, 1927, shot in the back by Ritter and his pals and thrown into an abandoned coal shaft near Johnston City where her body was found five months later on information supplied by the Post-Dispatch, the murderers sought to conceal that crime by throwing debris into the shaft to cover the body. Among other objects thrown into the shaft was an old automobile body. As this cumbersome piece of metal was swung into the shaft, according to the subsequent confession of an accomplice it struck Ritter's face, cutting his upper lip through to the teeth. The wound was months in healing, hence the scar.

Ritter's arrest here has disclosed that he remained true to his kind following his flight from Southern Illinois. It seems the hanging of Birger and the conviction of most of his other pals affected him little. Last July 12 he and Lewis Austin, a companion, were arrested for a local holdup. They admitted taking a man's money at the point of a pistol in the hands of Ritter, but explained they were only collecting a gambling debt. When Ritter was arrested here by New Orleans detectives Friday on suspicion he was the gangster accused of murder in Illinois, he was at liberty under bond for the holdup. Austin, who was with him Friday, fled from the scene and left Gulfport.

Comrade May Be Ernest Blue.

Sheriff Pritchard expressed the view that Austin might be Ernest Bine, one of the murderers of Mrs. Price, the only member of the gang wanted for murder now at liberty.

State Highway Patrolman Price was killed the same night his wife was murdered because he knew too much of the gang's operations. Mrs. Price was killed so she could not tell who took her husband away. Mayor Joe Adams of West City, Ill., was slain at his front door by two youths who handed him a note, written by Ritter. One of them later was killed when Birger's cabin was dynamited. The other confessed the killing for which Birger was executed.

Owner and Trainer of Horse That Won Grand Prize at Arena

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MRS. W. P. ROTH AND LONNIE HAYDEN.

Missouri-Bred Horse Is 5-Gaited Champion

Eight grooms, two trainers and a few veterinarians patted Chief of Longview, champion $25,000 five-gaited stallion, on his blanketed shoulders yesterday, in a shed near the Arena, and watched him start for the ring.

The Chief looked good in his blanket but on the other hand it was raining and the Chief doesn't like rain. Strain was evident in the faces of the eight grooms, the two trainers and the veterinarians.

After a brief run through the rain, with an extra blanket to keep him dry, Chief of Longview faced his rider, Lonnie Hayden. The latter frowned and gazed at his mount inquiringly. Was the Chief right? It was a rainy day. Of course it was a rainy day for the other horses, too. But the Chief doesn't like rain. You never can tell about these champions anyway.

From the tanbark oval came the shrill notes of the ringmaster's trumpet, summoning Chief of Longview. The glistening chestnut's blanket was whisked off. Hayden mounted. The Chief tossed his head and whisked his tail.

"He looks pretty good," a groom said, "but you never can tell till he gets in the ring."

Eight Other Aristocrats.

There were eight other horses in the ring, the aristocrats of the five-gaited class in America. Joanna Jones, championship five-gaited mare, pranced around. Tea Caddy, championship five-gaited gelding, one-time grand champion of the Madison Square Garden show, a shining bay animal, never looked better. Rex Lee Bourbon, the fiery chestnut stallion owned by W. T. Treadway of St. Louis, reserve champion in his class, trotted flashily.

Around the ring trotted Chief of Longview. The grooms, the trainers and the veterinarians still frowned. One of the grooms said the Chief was cold. The Chief trotted a second time around the ring a bit stiffly. Then the Chief tossed his head, flung out his flaxen mane, whisked his flaxen tail. The fire and flash were there. The gait was precise and powerful. The Chief was right. Eight grooms, two trainers and a few veterinarians chuckled and relaxed.

In the tanbark oval, pink-coated "Dutch" White, the ringmaster, called out the five gaits. He commanded the horses to canter. To trot. To launch themselves in the speedy rack, in which a horse's foreleg and hindleg on the same side move swiftly backward and forward together. To walk. To move in the stately slow gait, with hoofs lifted high.

An Easy Winner.

The other eight horses in the ring performed admirably. Among them several were applauded from the boxes. But championship magic was in Chief of Longview. Horsemen began to speculate as to what horse might be second. First was not in doubt. The Chief was right.

The crowd of more than 10,000 cheered the award, when Ringmaster White, staggering under a huge silver trophy, moved out to hand it up to Hayden, along with championship ribbons. The mare Joanna Jones took second ribbon. The championship gelding Tea Caddy was third. Treadway's stallion, Rex Lee Bourbon, was fourth.

Two photographers asked to take Chief of Longview's picture and were bored right through by the fierce glance of the stable doorman. What! Take that horse out of the stable when he's warm? At the time four men were rubbing down that $25,000 hide with unguents. Two other men were bandaging the Chief's lower legs. Another man was ladling out a few spoonfuls of boiled water, cooled, to slake the Chief's thirst. The photographers said they would wait but the doorman scoffed. Men would be working on the Chief for at least six hours. After the rubbing down he'd have to be walked around. Then he'd have to have some dinner. Then he'd have to have another rub-down. The photographers went home.

Close of Nine-Day Show.

The championship event in which Chief of Longview thrilled professional and amateur horsemen and to nearly everybody there was the outstanding event on the final program of the nine-day horse show, which began Saturday, Oct. 12. There was a spirited jumping event in which hurdling horses vied for a $1000 stake. Durazno, the chestnut Virginia bred hunter of the Trails End stables, near St. Louis, which on Saturday won the hunter championship for the St. Louis district, took first ribbons and first money for his performance in the jumps.

Minute Shetland ponies competed for a $1000 stake. King Larigo II, a shiny, high-stepping black pony, took ribbon and first money. He shaded an extraordinary mouse-colored animal aptly called Blue Heaven, which took second ribbon.

The outstanding American thoroughbreds in every class, save the hunting class, were in the show. Five-gaiters. Three-gaiters. Hackney ponies. Heavy harness mounts. Saddlers for women. Shetland ponies. There were events, usually listing four or five entries, in which 16 and 18 horses competed. The attendance—approximately 95,000 persons for 12 performances—breaks all horse show records anywhere, according to Elmer L. Musick, secretary of the show.

Ben G. Brinkman, president of The Arena, said the show had been a brilliant success from every standpoint. He had not yet estimated the total gate receipts. Musick said the success of the show made St. Louis, in this annual fall event, the horse show center of the country.

Detailed results of the matinee events follow:

DAIRY SHOW ENDS; RECORD BREAKER IN EVERY RESPECT

Attendance of 279,000 Beats Old Mark by 103,000 — Bad Weather Cuts Sunday Crowd.

The National Dairy Show closed last night at the Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue, with a total attendance of 279,000 during nine days, an increase of 103,000 over the record of 176,000 established at Memphis last year.

S. H. Anderson, executive secretary of the National Dairy Association, said today that the unusual success of the exposition had aroused unanimous sentiment among dairymen for recognizing St. Louis as the permanent home of the dairy show, even after the existing five-year contract has expired.

"With the facilities offered here and the public interest demonstrated by the people of St. Louis, it would be almost impossible to persuade dairymen now that a show should be held anywhere else," Anderson declared. "We expected success, but we were surprised at the degree of enthusiasm with which the show was received. From every point of view the show was a record-breaker.

Bigger in Every Way.

"Financially, all the expenses had been paid by gate receipts three days before the show closed, and the number of animals exhibited was larger than ever before. The educational value of the show to dairymen was greater than ever before because of the ample space which permitted them to study the exhibits and watch the judging. It was the first time that I ever saw 7000 persons watching the judging of cattle."

Ben G. Brinkman, president of the National Exposition Co., which erected the Arena, said today that plans would be considered at once for next year's exposition. Additional buildings probably will be erected, he said, in anticipation of a larger show. If the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, the International Association of Milk Dealers and the Dairy and Ice Cream Machinery and Supplies Association decide at their convention in Toronto this week to join the Dairy Association in making St. Louis their permanent home, an additional building to cost at least $400,000 will be added to the Arena group, Brinkman said.

Closing Program.

Attendance on the last day of the show dropped off to 32,000, a low figure in comparison to the record-breaking attendance during the preceding eight days of perfect carnival weather.

As the exposition came to its close at 10 p. m. with a concert by a 75-piece orchestra and a 1000-voice chorus, evacuation of the exhibition buildings was well under way. Cattlemen were busy loading their prize stock for shipment back to the 28 states from which they came; manufacturers were dismantling their exhibits of dairy machinery and equipment and the carnival exhibitors of the midway were preparing to move to engagements elsewhere.

The matinee performance which concluded the National Horse Show attracted about 11,000 persons to the Arena, and the evening concert a like number. The concert was similar to the one presented on the preceding Sunday except that no extra charge was made for admission, the management announcing that the concert was a testimonial of gratitude for the support given the combined dairy, poultry and horse shows.

TEST OF NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS AT TWELFTH BL. AND OLIVE ST.

Experimental Operation Will Start This Week or First of Next.

The automatic traffic signal at Twelfth boulevard and Olive street will be tested the latter part of this week or the first of next week, Street Director Brooks said today. The signal will permit left turns from Twelfth into Olive, but will prohibit left turns from Olive into Twelfth.

"We operated the signal at Olive street and Compton avenue last week," Brooks said, "and found that left turns into Olive are successful as long as the north and south streets are kept clear of parked cars near the intersection, in order to make a left turn lane. It is our present plan to prohibit left turns off Olive street at all intersections controlled by traffic lights, but to permit left turns into Olive street except at Eighteenth street, Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard, where there are street car tracks.

"The experimental operation at Twelfth and Olive will give us necessary data on how to divide our time cycles. It will show us how much time to allow for straight traffic and how much for turns."

WOMAN KILLS SELF IN ROOM OF CHICAGO POLITICAL WRITER

Parke Brown of Tribune Says Widow From Oregon and He Had Quarreled.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Marguerite C. King, 38 years old, a widow, killed herself early today in the hotel room of Parke Brown, political writer of the Chicago Tribune. She shot herself twice in the breast with a pistol belonging to Brown.

Brown told police that he had known Mrs. King, who came from Grant's Pass, Ore., for about two years and that they had quarreled a fortnight ago.

When Brown returned to his room shortly after last midnight, Mrs. King was there, he said. She appeared disconsolate and he asked what the matter was. In reply, Brown told police, the woman drew the pistol from her handbag and shot herself twice before he could interfere.

Coste and Bellonte at Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 21.—The French flyers, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, arrived today from Mukden, Manchuria. The aviators went to Mukden after establishing a new long-distance record, flying from Le Bourget across Europe and Siberia to Manchuria.

PANTAGES AIDS GIVE TESTIMONY IN HIS BEHALF

Mrs. Fowler, Theater Man's Secretary, Contradicts Point in Miss Pringle's Testimony.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Rose Fowler, private secretary to Alexander Pantages, declared from the witness stand today that the theater millionaire left his office Aug. 9 to go to a barber shop at 5 p. m., 40 minutes later than the time fixed by Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, who charges Pantages attacked her that afternoon.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Fowler said she was still in the employ of Pantages, and had been taking statements from other defense witnesses.

Mrs. Fowler said she saw Miss Pringle in one of the offices in the theater at 4 p. m., Aug. 9, but that the girl talked to no one.

"Was her dress torn?" "I don't think so."

"You saw Pantages leave for the barber shop at 5 p. m.?" "Yes, I'm sure."

Quotes Girl's Words.

"When you rushed to the cubbyhole room (where the attack is alleged to have been made) did you hear the girl say anything?" "Yes, she said 'there's the beast.' I left."

Fred T. Wise, a State witness, who testified he arrived at the door of the room to see Miss Pringle fighting to get out, her clothes torn, and Pantages' clothes in disarray, was recalled.

Joseph Ford, defense attorney, showed him a paper, described as an insanity complaint issued against him in Denver, Colo., in 1925.

"Do you remember being confined for mental examination in Denver?" Ford asked. "Yes, I think I remember."

Line of Questioning Barred.

Mickey O'Neill, an employe for eight years at the Pantages theater, then was called to the stand by the defense.

District Attorney Fitts objected to a question asked O'Neill concerning his knowledge of a visit made by Miss Pringle to a hotel late at night and in sustaining the objection Judge Fricke ordered defense attorneys to ask no such questions.

O'Neill also was asked if he had seen the girl and Nicholas Duneav, author of her dancing act, the booking of which was the object of her call Aug. 9, together. Fitts objected and Judge Fricke sustained him.

"You can not prove conspiracy by showing two people were much together, or had business relationships," Judge Fricke said. "I have directed defense counsel to present subsequent evidence tending to show a conspiracy between those two and they have not done it."

O'Neill was allowed to read his report to Pantages on Miss Pringle's act. The report stated the act had possibilities, but outside the dancing, was unsuited to the needs of the Pantages circuit. When Ford tried to question O'Neill concerning alleged obscenity in the gags in the act, he met with objections which were sustained.

Pantages will probably take the witness stand late today.

Defense attorneys, announcing that Pantages will testify, said his testimony will be the most important part of the evidence intended to combat the story of Miss Pringle.

TALESMEN BALK AT IMPOSING LIFE TERM

57 Examined Before Jury Is Obtained in Habitual Criminal Case.

All but three of the 60 men available for jury service in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court today were examined before a jury was completed for the trial of James Dunivan, 19 years old, charged with robbery under the habitual criminal act.

Ten of the men available were excused from service because they declared they would not obey an instruction to impose the maximum penalty, life imprisonment, as required by the habitual criminal act, in the event they agreed on a verdict of guilty.

The Dunivan case is unusual in that it is the first case in which the habitual criminal act has been invoked because of a workhouse sentence. Since Circuit Attorney Miller began including the habitual criminal clause in information, two ex-convicts have been tried unsuccessfully, hung juries resulting because of the unwillingness of the jurors to impose the maximum penalty.

Dunivan served six months in the workhouse in 1927 for an automobile theft. He is on trial now for the theft of $6 in a street holdup last February.

The body was removed to a Kirkwood undertaking establishment pending an inquest. Besides his wife, LeFort leaves three sons and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. 5 PERSONS KILLED IN AUTO CRASHES; TWO UNIDENTIFIED

ANOTHER HURT OCT. 6 DIES OF INJURIES

Five persons are dead as the result of automobile accidents in St. Louis and vicinity.

An unidentified woman, about 70 years old, was killed at 9 o'clock this morning when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. E. J. Bevins, office manager of the Economy Office Supply Co., at Broadway and Russell boulevard.

Mrs. Bevins, who resides at 4871 Hanover place, told police the woman appeared to become confused in crossing the street and stumbled over a market basket she was carrying, falling in front of the automobile. She died on the way to City Hospital of internal injuries and a fractured skull. The body is at the morgue.

Found Unconscious In Street.

Eugene Gross, 42 years old, a painter, 8581 Park lane, died at City Hospital today of a fractured skull suffered last night when he apparently was struck by an automobile, the driver of which fled. Gross was found unconscious in the street at McLaren and Oriole avenues. He died without making a statement.

The body of a man believed to have been Charles C. Naylor, about 50 years old, was found on a side road 200 feet from Bridgeton Station road at Anglum, a block north of Lambert-St. Louis Field, by a motorist at 11 o'clock last night. The man had died of fracture of the skull, jaw and collar bone and apparently had been struck by an automobile.

A card in the man's pocket bore the name Charles C. Naylor and the request that A. D. Naylor, Rural Route No. 2, Kansas City, Kan., be notified in case of accident. No one was found who saw the man struck, and county authorities are seeking the driver of the machine.

Bemis Harbough, 55 years old, of Fort Worth, Tex., was killed at 3 a. m. yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding upset on highway 61, two miles south of Imperial, Jefferson County, Mo.

Two Companions Hurt.

Harbaugh was riding with Charles Conway, 5316 Natural Bridge avenue, and O. E. Jordan, 3407 William place. They were returning to St. Louis from Crystal City when the machine left the pavement and upset. Harbaugh died of a fractured skull. His companions escaped with minor injuries. A verdict of accident was returned at an inquest yesterday.

Harbaugh came to St. Louis Saturday to look for work, stopping at the Jordan home. His wife has a restaurant at Fort Worth.

Woman Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Nellie Scheiber, 45, a widow, of 1821 Bacon street, died at Missouri Baptist Hospital Saturday of injuries suffered, Oct. 6, while crossing St. Louis avenue at Grand boulevard with Luke Mason of Kirkwood.

After striking the pair the driver of the machine backed over them as they lay in the street and then drove away. Police, tracing a license number furnished by witnesses, arrested Harry Liekweg Jr., a salesman of 4031A West Florissant avenue.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned today and Liekweg was placed under $5000 bond pending action by the grand jury. He was identified at the inquest by two witnesses. On advice of counsel he declined to make a statement.

Mrs. Elizabeth Grimm, 4311 Michigan avenue, suffered a skull injury, and her daughter, Mary, 15, a fractured left arm at 7:40 o'clock last night when struck by a truck driven by Herman Ericson, 5228 Alcott avenue, at Virginia avenue and Osceola street. Ericson was pronounced suffering from alcoholism after examination at City Hospital.

Girl Suffers Skull Fracture.

Mildred Nicholson, 10 years old, 5716 Fyler avenue, suffered a fractured skull at 7 p. m. yesterday when struck by a machine driven by Harry Buckley of Webster Groves, while crossing the street in front of 5450 Arsenal street.

Mrs. Rose Jaimerson, 2714 Seventh boulevard, suffered a fractured neck and her husband, Eugene, and daughter, Odessa, were cut and bruised when their automobile skidded from Highway 66 about 40 miles west of St. Louis and overturned yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Jaimerson was brought to city hospital.

Joseph OReilly, a real estate salesman, of Clayton, and Miss Bernice Panzar, 3507 Cook avenue, suffered cuts and bruises at 8 o'clock last night, when a machine driven by O'Reilly ran through a lighted barricade and plunged into a 15-foot sewer excavation at Palm street and Blair avenue. O'Reilly told police he saw a red lantern, but had not noticed the barricade.

SYLVESTER BALDWIN CASE IS CONTINUED BY COURT

Prosecutor Asks for Delay in Murder Trial; Order Applies to William McGraw, Too.

The cases of Sylvester Baldwin and William McGraw, charged with the murder of Cashier Todd V. Phelps in a holdup of the Overland State Bank, last January, were continued today before Circuit Judge Nolte at Clayton.

Baldwin and McGraw recently were released from jail under bond following a confession by Lawrence Ahrens naming "Big Jim" McGauley, now in a Michigan prison, as the actual slayer. The grand jury is investigating the murder.

Defense counsel made no objection when Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Noble asked that the Baldwin case and McGraw cases be passed, subject to call at any time.

VIOLINIST, 9, SOLOIST IN SYMPHONY CONCERT

Ruggiero Ricci Three Years Ago Played in Streets of San Francisco.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. — A brown-eyed little chap, who three years ago was playing in a family orchestra on San Francisco's streets, made his New York debut last night as violin soloist with the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra. He was nine years old in August.

He is Ruggiero Ricci, Roger for short. Taken hesitatingly to Louis Persinger three years ago for instruction, Roger was taken in charge by Miss Beth Lackey, a pupil of Persinger at the time. She became legal guardian of him and his younger brother, Giorgio, who is also a violinist.

Miss Lackey and Roger became acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bartlett, Chicago, who were so impresed with Roger's ability that they have underwritten his future training, asking nothing in return.

After a succession of triumphs in San Francisco, including the winning of the Weil scholarship and the Emporium Boys' Achievement Club gold medal, Miss Lackey brought Roger and Georgie to New York fo continue their training under Persinger.

An appreciative audience greeted the young violinist. He was called back for two encores after the Mendelssohn concerto and even then the audience was not satisfied. It continued to call him back for nearly 10 minutes.

SECRETARY WILBUR ALLOTS POWER FROM BOULDER DAM

50 Pct. to Los Angeles Water District, 25 to the City and 25 to Companies.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Secretary of the Interior Wilbur announced today that power from Boulder Canyon dam would be divided to allot the metropolitan water district of Los Angeles 50 per cent, the City of Los Angeles 25 per cent and the Southern California Edison Power Co. and associated companies the other 25 per cent.

Wilbur said these allotments would be subject to certain deductions which might arise through the exercise of preference rights not exceeding 18 per cent for the State of Nevada for use in Nevada, not exceeding 18 per cent of the total power for Arizona for use in Arizona, and not exceeding 4 per cent for municipalities which have heretofore filed applications. The Secretary set Nov. 12 as the date for a formal hearing in case of protests.

Wilbur's announcement preceded a conference set for later in the day at which differences between delegations here from the West over this allocation were to have been discussed.

THIRD BROTHER IS KILLED BY CLEVELAND GANG

Frank Lonardo, Former "Corn Sugar Baron," Shot Dead as He Plays Cards.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 21.—Frank Lonardo, one-time corn sugar baron who quit the business when his brothers, Big Joe and John, were killed two years ago in a gang fight for supremacy, was killed as he bunched over a card table in the back room of a downtown barber shop last night.

Lonardo, silent partner in the business which made millionaires of the brothers, was understood to have abandoned the game when Big Joe and John were shot down side by side, but nevertheless police worked on the theory today that his death was in reprisal for the killing of Sam "Black Jack" Todaro, rival bootleg leader, credited with having plotted the death of the Lonardos.

Last night's killing left only Dominic, last reported in San Francisco, alive of the four Lonardo brothers. Dominic was indicted here in the Sly-Fanner robbery and murders, but evaded extradition and trial. Mrs. Concietta Lonardo, common-law wife of Big Joe, and her oldest son, Angelo, 20, were indicted for first-degree murder in Todaro's death. Angelo is at liberty, but his mother is out on bond awaiting trial.

Frank met death as he played rummy with three others. Ten men stood in the small smoke-filled room watching the game. Suddenly, a hail of bullets rang out from among the bystanders, according to Louis Kelles, restaurant owner, who sat in the game. Lonardo, hands flung high, leaped to his feet and then pitched to the floor. There were eight bullet holes in his body. Lonardo had a .38-caliber revolver in a pocket, but it was fully loaded and had not been fired recently.

Police, who said they had the names of four of the men present, began a roundup of suspects. Twelve have been arrested. Two of those held, they said, were in the card room.

JURY COMPLETE IN TRIAL OF FORMER BOILER INSPECTOR

George L. Reno One of Five Officials Accused of Misconduct in Office.

The trial of George L. Reno, former chief boiler inspector and Republican City Committeeman from the Twenty-third Ward, one of five city officials indicted on charges of misconduct in office in connection with Smoke Commissioner Gordon's private school for stationary engineers, began this afternoon following the selection of a jury.

Judge Butler's division of Court of Criminal Correction was crowded almost to capacity when the case was called. Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer, who previously had opposed Reno's application for a severance, raised no objection today. The other defendants, Gordon, Theodore T. Hamilton, deputy smoke inspector, and Frank Altman and J. J. Kellogg, members of the Engineers' Examining Board—also were in court.

Schweitzer was assisted by Sigmond Bass, special prosecutor, who asked prospective jurors about political affiliations and City Hall connections. The offense charged is a misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum fine of $1000 or a jail sentence of one year, or both.

SCHOOL BOY SLAIN IN FIGHT AFTER BROTHER'S FUNERAL

Rival Meets Him on Street, Fisticuffs Follow, and Then He Is Shot.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21. — Samuel Fiore, 14 years old, who was killed in an automobile accident, was buried here Saturday, his brother, John, 16, a high school student, acting as one of the pall bearers.

After the funeral, John informed his parents he intended to stroll about the neighborhood. Fifteen minutes later he was dead.

Police learned young Fiore encountered Joseph Moretti, a school rival, their mutual resentment flaring into fisticuffs. After the fight Moretti fled to his home nearby and obtained a pistol. His first shot pierced Fiore's chest.

SIX KILLED IN DAY IN AIR ACCIDENTS

Mechanic Meets Death in Plane Crash as He Wished, at Shreveport, La.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 21.—John Broussard, 28 years old, pilot of Oak Ridge, La., and T. M. Cook, a mechanic of Pittsburg, Tex., were killed yesterday in an airplane crash at the Shreveport Airways Field.

The plane went into a tail spin 200 feet in the air, after the take-off and plunged to the ground, where it burst into flames.

Earlier in the day Cook had told attaches at the airport: "If I ever get killed I want it to be in an airplane."

Frightened in First Parachute Jump, Falls to Death.

By the Associated Press.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Oct. 21.—Ed Mills, a contractor, was killed yesterday when he became frightened as he started a parachute jump from an airplane and failed to open the chute.

When he started to leave the plane, Herb Burcker, the pilot, and Gus Dudt, a passenger, said he grasped the parachute in such a manner as to prevent its opening. They tried to pull him back into the plane, Burcker flying with one hand on the controls. The plane was at an altitude of 2000 feet when Mills climbed out of the cockpit, but lost about 500 feet while the pilot and Dudt were trying to get him back in.

A rope from the plane to the parachute broke and Mills fell, holding the chute. It was his first attempt at parachute jumping.

Head of Planing Mill and His Son Killed.

By the Associated Press.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 21.—An airplane went into a nose dive from a height of 300 feet here yesterday, killing its two occupants. Luther M. Bush, 54 years old, president of the Bush Planing Mill, Royersford, was killed instantly, and his son, Guy Franklin Bush, 21, student pilot, died 10 minutes later in a hospital.

Young Bush had spent about 175 hours in the air and was to take a Federal examination for a transport license this week.

Student Flyer Meets Death in Home-made Plane.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Oct. 21.—Lee Harris, 24 years old, student flyer, fell to his death late yesterday when flying a home-made plane, which had not been licensed. Witnesses said the craft apparently wind-stalled during a bank and fell at an altitude of 300 feet.

Walter Smith, head of the flying school of which Harris was a student, had taxied the plane across the field Saturday, but regarded it as dangerous because of tail heaviness.

U. S. ATTORNEY TELLS OF FIGHT ON STOCK FRAUDS

Says Most Successful of Confidence Men Have Been Convicted.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Charles H. Tuttle, United States District Attorney, told a radio audience tonight that a marked decrease in the number of promoters of fraudulent stock has resulted from the activities of the Government in suppressing "white collar bandits."

"The Government's principal weapon in this warfare is the Federal mail fraud statute, which makes it a felony for one or more persons to devise a scheme to defraud and to use the mails in furtherance thereof," Tuttle said in an address which was broadcast over a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Co.

"Under this statute we have convicted within the last year or so the most notable and successful of these confidence men; have broken the back of the 'tipster sheet' system of stock swindling, and have driven out many of the operators and Wall street racketeers who constitute the parasitical fringe of financial New York."

JAMES G. CAHILL JR., DIES; HAD BEEN ILL FOR A YEAR

Was Former Manager of Knox Oil Co.; Served In Navy During World War.

James G. Cahill Jr., 4476 Lindell boulevard, died last night of heart disease after a protracted illness which had caused him to return to St. Louis about a year ago from Oklahoma where he had been manager for the Knox Oil Co. He was 32 years old.

Mr. Cahill left St. Louis University during the World War to join the navy and served for two years as Ensign and radio operator on the destroyer Lamson. After the war he joined the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co., and later was connected with various real estate firms.

Surviving him are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Cahill, a brother, Edgar D. Cahill, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert J. B. Sullivan of Providence, R. I., and Miss Leonore Cahill. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the New Cathedral, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

OUSTED DRY AGENT 10 OTHERS WANTED IN BIG LIQUOR RING

Jack Ormsby Who Was Exonerated Recently in Killing Said to Flaunt Fake Federal Badges.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 21.—Eleven men, including Jack Ormsby, former Federal prohibition agent who was exonerated recently of a killing by a Coroner's jury, are sought today by Federal prohibition officials as members of one of the largest liquor organizations in Southern California.

Ormsby, who with a companion, Henry Chenoweth, killed Charles Chulla, a bootlegger, in a raid after they had been dismissed from Government service, has returned to Kern County, police said, and on the pretense that he is a Federal agent, has shielded the operations of the liquor runners.

Federal officials declined to name the other 10 men against whom indictments have been returned. Agents said the flagrant manner in which Ormsby flaunted his fake Federal badges brought their attention to the alleged operations.

Action in the investigation of alleged police graft in Los Angeles developed today, with more than 20 policemen scheduled to appear in three Superior Courts to answer to charges of extortion and bribery.

Continuing its inquiry into charges of wholesale corruption brought by Harry D. McDonald, alias Westman, confessed bootlegger, the grand jury will resume its deliberations with the questioning of several new witnesses.

Detective Lieutenants Milo H. Ledbetter and W. E. Evans, accused of obtaining $750 from McDonald, are to appear for trial in Judge William C. Durant's court. Deputy District Attorney William McKay said McDonald alleged he gave the two officers $750 as a bribe to escape arrest when he was caught with several thousand dollars' worth of stolen diamonds in his possession.

A. T. McClanahan, C. N. Bradford and S. S. Wylie, Negro patrolmen recently indicted by the grand jury, are to enter pleas on charges of having accepted weekly bribes of $25 from bootleggers.

Judge Walton J. Wood will announce the date for retrial of Leonard F. Sale, Harry M. Hill and Oscar L. Peterson, patrolmen alleged to have accepted a bribe of $600 from McDonald. The jury which heard the first trial failed to agree.

Chief of Police James E. Davis probably will hear from the Police Commission whether he must face formal charges of malfeasance and inefficiency on affidavits filed by the Los Angeles Developers' Association, a political organization. The commission heard the charges behind closed doors last week, and it was indicated that a report of its findings is ready.

WOMAN IS KILLED IN FALL AT CLUB, BROKER ARRESTED

Mrs. Aurelia Dreyfus of New York Plunges Off Porch of Potomac Boat Building After Dance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Edmund J. McBrian, New York broker, is being held by Washington police in connection with the death of Mrs. Aurelia F. Dreyfus, 29 years old, also of New York. Mrs. Dreyfus died at Emergency Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered earlier in a fall from an upper porch of the Potomac Boat Club, where she and friends attended a dance Saturday night. According to the police, McBrian was the last person seen with Mrs. Dreyfus before her body was picked up on the lower landing, but no one saw her fall.

McBrian told police after giving himself up that he, Mrs. Dreyfus and her brother, William Fisher, and sister, Freda Fisher, of this city, were standing on the porch. Freda and William stepped from the balcony to the dance floor to have the last dance. When they left, McBrian said, he was the only person with Mrs. Dreyfus and excused himself to obtain the hats and coats of the party and avoid the rush after the final dance.

Several persons have told police they saw McBrian leave the balcony and go to the cloak room. McBrian said he returned and heard someone shout that a woman had fallen from the porch. He rushed to the lower platform and found friends grouped about Mrs. Dreyfus. McBrian and others took the injured woman to a hospital, where she died a few hours later of a fractured skull.

Jewelry valued at $4500 belonging to Mrs. Dreyfus was found under the lower platform after her father, Carl Fisher of Washington, had reported it missing.

According to the police, McBrian and Mrs. Dreyfus, who had known each other several years, came here Saturday from New York. Mrs. Dreyfus went to the home of her parents, while McBrian registered at a hotel. Early Saturday evening the brother and sister invited Mrs. Dreyfus and McBrian to attend the dance at the boat club.

The police were told that several drinks had been served during the evening, but Miss Fisher denied that Mrs. Dreyfus had taken any.

The porch from which Mrs. Dreyfus fell is about 20 feet above the lower landing. It is surrounded by a railing three and a half feet high. One theory advanced by the police is that she leaned over the railing and lost her balance.

Mrs. Dreyfus Left Husband in 1923; He Divorced Her.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Five years ago a Mrs. Aurelia F. Dreyfus disappeared from her home at 100 West Fifty-ninth street. Then her husband, Albert M. Dreyfus, whom she had married in 1923, traced her to Washington through a cashed check said to have been drawn to an E. J. McBrian.

Old newspaper clippings show Mrs. Dreyfus later returned and, when questioned by her husband's attorney, Arthur Garfield Hayes, admitted affection for E. J. McBrian. Samuel S. Koenig, as referee to the supreme court, recommended that a divorce be granted to Dreyfus.

About 5000 persons who attended the ceremony heard talks by Archbishop Glennon, the Rev. Dr. William P. Barr C. M. and the Rt. Rev. P. P. Crane, pastor of Holy Name Church.

The Archbishop announced that 37,000 individuals had contributed to the cost of the new building. When it is completed the preparatory seminary will abandon its present building at Jefferson avenue and Stoddard street.

SURVEY OF LIVING STANDARDS

Needy 28 Per Cent Below Minimum, Association Finds.

The standard of living for the average family that applies to a social agency for assistance is 28 per cent below what is generally regarded by social agencies as the minimum for healthy existence, according to an analysis of conditions in 296 dependent families made by the St. Louis Provident Association.

The minimum budget allows $112 a month for parents with three children. It permits no ice cream, candy or tobacco and provides a $23.50 suit for the father every three years and a $15 coat for the mother during the same period.

HAWES ATTACKS SPEECH BY HYDE

Declares Officials Make Dishonest Statements on Flexible Tariff.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Replying to the recent speech in Iowa by Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, Secretary of Agriculture, Senator Harry B. Hawes (Dem.) of Missouri, declared in the Senate today that "deliberately dishonest and misleading" statements were being made by administration officials to create a misunderstanding regarding the Senate's limitation of the flexible provision in the pending tariff bill.

Hawes insisted that the Simmons amendment in reality retained the flexible tariff idea and merely transferred the rate making power from the President back to Congress.

Speaking directly of Hyde's speech, Hawes said, "this address called my attention to the fact that there seems to be a studied effort to create confusion on the subject of the flexible tariff.

"If there is anyone in the Senate who is opposing the Commission which may make frequent and repeated tariff changes, I have not heard of it so when the statement is made that there is opposition to the flexible tariff in this chamber it is misstatement of fact. There is a difference of opinion, however, as to whether the President should select and appoint a Commission and then raise or lower tariff rates upon the recommendation of a Commission which he himself has selected and appointed."

"The story," Hawes continued, "that has been so frequently carried in the press and repeated again and again, that a majority of the Senate who voted for the Simmons amendment are opposed to a flexible tariff, is misleading, dishonest and not true."

Hawes declared that he did not believe that President Hoover would veto the tariff bill merely because the present flixible provision had been changed. By vetoing the bill because of the Simmons amendment, Hawes said, the President would be basing his action on "the one issue of power given or taken away from him."

"It would not relate to tariff schedules, but to presidential power," Hawes asserted.

At the conclusion of Hawes' speech, Senators King and Simmons, both Democrats, deplored the fact that Cabinet officials and other administration officers were touring the country and attacking the actions of Congress.

DR. DANIEL POLING RESIGNS PASTORATE IN NEW YORK

He Will Continue as President of World Christian Endeavor; Wrote Novel on Steel Strike.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—After serving 10 years as pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, the Rev. Daniel A. Poling, lecturer, novelist, former newspaper correspondent and steel worker, surprised his congregation yesterday by announcing his resignation.

Dr. Poling will remain as pastor until Jan. 1, when he will retire to continue his many other activities as president of the International and World's Christian Endeavor Union, editor of the Christian Herald, leader and speaker of the National Youth Radio Conference, president of the General Syn-America, and a director of the J. C. Penney Foundation.

Dr. Poling threw himself into the last presidential campaign with vigor, took a part in the fight against Gov. Smith and for the inclusion of special prohibition planks in the Democratic and Republican platforms.

Previously he had been known for his welfare work with the American Expeditionary Force in France and for his leadership in the Interchurch World Movement commission of inquiry into the steel strike of 1919-1920. Following the strike, Dr. Poling told the inside story thinly disguised in his novel, "The Furnace," and asserted that the steel interests attempted to bottle up the findings of the commission, later published.

FORMER CIGAR STORE OWNER HELD ON CHECK CHARGES

Ernest Bruening Arrested in Chicago, Accused of Writing $6000 Worthless Checks.

A warrant charging obtaining money under false pretenses was issued today against Ernest Bruening, former co-proprietor of a cigar store at Grand boulevard and St. Louis avenue, who is alleged to have cashed worthless checks for $6000 at the Mississippi Valley-Merchants'-State Trust Co. last Aug. 22.

Bruening is under arrest in Chicago, Assistant Circuit Attorney Griffin was informed.

Call for Recruits for Irish Army.
By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 21.—A proclamation was posted throughout the city yesterday by "the Republican Army Council" calling on Irishmen of military age to join the Republican army. It stated that the army was determined "to break the imperial connection and to reassert the inalienable rights of Ireland as a sovereign nation."

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

REPUBLICAN BOSS CONSULTED ABOUT LOAN OF 'ADVISER'

E. K. Hubbard of Connecticut Manufacturers Met Bingham in J. Henry Roraback's Office.

WITNESS HARRIED BY ROBINSON

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Under a ferocious examination today by the Senate's Lobby Investigating Committee, E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, which "lent" a tariff "adviser" to Senator Bingham of that state, was driven to give a "100 per cent" indorsement of all that Bingham had done.

Having gone on record with this indorsement, the harassed witness was pinned down to particulars, said that he approved the sending of the tariff "adviser," Charles H. Eyanson, into the secret sessions of the Senate Finance Committee and approved also what Senator Robinson called the "falsification" of the Senate payroll.

Robinson finally got him into a trap where he either had to condemn Bingham or say that he was in the habit of conducting his own business in the manner exemplified by the payroll incident. He chose that latter unpleasant alternative.

The examination brought out the interesting fact that the conference between Bingham and Hubbard, at which arrangements were made for the "loan" of Eyanson to the Senator, was held in the office of J. Henry Roraback, the long-time Republican boss of Connecticut.

Senator Walsh, who had the unfortunate witness in hand during this stage of the inquisition, said it seemed to him rather remarkable that Bingham should have gone to the office of the Republican State boss to interview Hubbard rather than to Hubbard's own office.

Bingham Plays It Both Ways.

The day's hearing of the committee also disclosed that Senator Bingham was a high-tariff man when the Connecticut Manufacturers wanted him to be, and a low-tariff man when that was their desire. He was a low-tariff man in the matter of fileted fish.

The representative of a fish association advocating high tariff rates told the committee that he went up against a stone wall in Washington because Senator Bingham had taken up the cause of an organization demanding a low tariff. It was brought out that this latter organization was a member of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

This witness told the committee that when he went to see Bingham he was "turned over to Eyanson." He learned in Washington, he said, that Eyanson was a powerful man in tariff affairs, and that he would have to bring Eyanson to his side if he hoped to accomplish anything for the fish industry through Senator Bingham.

Inside Information Given Out.

Testimony before the investigating committee has shown already that Bingham's "adviser," Eyanson, was placed by Senator Bingham on the Senate payroll and had access to some of the secret sessions of the Finance Committee while it was acting on proposed tariff rates. Under the efficient tutelage of Eyanson, Bingham succeeded in materially increasing the rates on Connecticut products.

At the outset of today's hearing Eyanson was again called as a witness. Senator Walsh (Dem.) Montana, showed him a photostatic copy of a document, which the witness identified as a copy of a memorandum to him from one of his subordinates at Hartford, Conn., relating to the duty on rough-bored shotgun barrels.

The memorandum disclosed an intimate knowledge of the secret proceedings of the Senate Finance Committee. Senator Bingham was described as having scored a decisive victory over some of the other members of the committee. Walsh's purpose in bringing up the memorandum was to show "leaks" to interested parties from the Finance Committee.

Where Eyanson Got His Pay.

Other correspondence read by Walsh showed that officials of the Connecticut Association knew and in some cases specifically approved of the sending of Eyanson as a "representative" of the association to Washington and the payment of his expenses while here.

Eyanson repeated his statement of last week that he did not regard himself as a "representative

E. K. Hubbard of Connecticut Manufacturers Met Bingham in J. Henry Roraback's Office.

WITNESS HARRIED BY ROBINSON

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Under a ferocious examination today by the Senate's Lobby Investigating Committee, E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, which "lent" a tariff "adviser" to Senator Bingham of that state, was driven to give a "100 per cent" indorsement of all that Bingham had done.

Having gone on record with this indorsement, the harassed witness, pinned down to particulars, said that he approved the sending of the tariff "adviser," Charles L. Robinson finally got him into a trap where he either had to condemn Bingham or say that he was in the habit of conducting his own business in the manner exemplified by the payroll incident. He chose that latter unpleasant alternative.

The examination brought out the interesting fact that the conference between Bingham and Hubbard, at which arrangements were made for the "loan" of Eyanson to the Senator, was held in the office of J. Henry Roraback, the long-time Republican boss of Connecticut.

Senator Walsh, who had the unfortunate witness in hand during this stage of the inquisition, said it seemed to him rather remarkable that Bingham should have gone to the office of the Republican State boss to interview Hubbard rather than to Hubbard's own office.

Bingham Plays It Both Ways.

The day's hearing of the committee also disclosed that Senator Bingham was a high-tariff man when the Connecticut Manufacturers wanted him to be, and a low-tariff man when that was their desire. He was a low-tariff man in the matter of fileted fish.

The representative of a fish association advocating high tariff rates told the committee that he went up against a stone wall in Washington because Senator Bingham had taken up the cause of an organization demanding a low tariff. It was brought out that this latter organization was a member of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

This witness told the committee that when he went to see Bingham, he was "turned over to Eyanson." He learned in Washington, he said, that Eyanson was a powerful man in tariff affairs, and that he would have to bring Eyanson to his side if he hoped to accomplish anything for the fish industry through Senator Bingham.

Inside Information Given Out.

Testimony before the investigating committee has shown already that Bingham's "adviser," Eyanson, was placed by Senator Bingham on the Senate payroll and had access to some of the secret sessions of the Finance Committee while it was acting on proposed tariff rates. Under the efficient tutelage of Eyanson, Bingham succeeded in materially increasing the rates on Connecticut products.

At the outset of today's hearing, Eyanson was again called as a witness. Senator Walsh (Dem.) Montana, showed him a photostatic copy of a document, which the witness identified as a copy of a memorandum to him from one of his subordinates at Hartford, Conn., relating to the duty on rough-bored shotgun barrels.

The memorandum disclosed an intimate knowledge of the secret proceedings of the Senate Finance Committee. Senator Bingham was described as having scored a decisive victory over some of the other members of the committee. Walsh's purpose in bringing up the memorandum was to show "leaks" to interested parties from the Finance Committee.

Where Eyanson Got His Pay.

Other correspondence read by Walsh showed that officials of the Connecticut Association knew and in some cases specifically approved of the sending of Eyanson as a "representative" of the association to Washington and the payment of his expenses while here.

Eyanson repeated his statement of last week that he did not regard himself as a "representative" of the association while serving Bingham. Walsh raised incredulous eyebrows. He made it quite plain that he did not accept the witness' interpretation of the employment.

Blaine quizzed the witness closely on the subject of a long-distance telephone call which, according to Blaine, took him out of the Finance Committee room on a certain occasion.

Blaine said the call had to do with the topic then under discussion by the committee, and that Eyanson told the caller that he could not then give him information, but would do so later. Eyanson said he did not remember the call in question. He said that he did receive a number of telephone calls from the manufacturers, but that they came to him in Bingham's office and related to appearances before the committee. He denied giving out secret information.

Income $100,000 a Year.

E. Kent Hubbard, the president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association of Hartford, was the next witness. He said he received a salary of $10,000 a year and $5000 for expenses. Ninety per cent of the manufacturers of the State, he said, were represented in the association. As one of the members he named the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

Examined by Chairman Caraway, the witness said the total income of the association last year was between $98,000 and $100,000, made up of contributions from the members pro rated according to the number of workers on their payrolls. He said the largest contributer was the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, the chairman of whose board was one of the directors of the association.

The witness said the association had a reserve fund of between $40,000 and $50,000.

Walsh brought the examination to the subject of tariff matters. The witness told of Bingham's request that the association furnish him with an adviser. When the Fordney-McCumber tariff was under consideration, he said, individual members of the association came to Washington on their own account, the association then having no direct representative.

Borrowing an "Adviser."

Hubbard said it was understood by the association that Eyanson was to receive his salary and expenses while in Washington. Bingham, he recalled, had asked for the "loan" of an adviser.

"I believe that Senator Bingham relied on the association to secure for him a man who could advise him not only about Connecticut manufactures, but about all of Connecticut's interests," said Hubbard.

"You appropriately spoke of him as the representative who was to be in Senator Bingham's office?" asked Walsh. "Yes sir," was the reply.

The committee asked what was the conversation between the witness and Eyanson about the latter's mission to the capital.

"I told him," he said, "that he was to come down here and do what Senator Bingham wanted him to do."

Walsh referred to a letter which Hubbard wrote to Eyanson in Washington. One of the passages in this letter asked Eyanson "to prepare the way for me with Senator Bingham regarding your tenure of office." Hubbard said that meant that he wanted Eyanson to break the news to Bingham that he (Hubbard) wanted Eyanson back as soon as possible.

Explains Phrase in Letter.

Hubbard was asked to explain what he meant by saying in the

FOUR NEWSPAPER MEN HELD IN CUBA ON SEDITION CHARGES

All Accused of Conspiracy Against President Machado's Regime.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Oct. 21.—Four newspapermen, connected with the El Sol, of Marianao, were arrested by the Cuban Secret Police Saturday night and imprisoned to await charges of sedition, an official report says.

The four arrests brought the total in connection with an alleged conspiracy against the Government of President Machado to eight. Rumors persisted that as many as 40 men were held for questioning.

The four men arrested Friday on conspiracy charges after police had seized a political manifesto against Machado were released Saturday on $1000 bail each.

Those admitted to bond were: Alfredo Avila, plantation owner; Pedro Vallez-Fernandez, attorney; Antonio Beruff y Mendieta, secretary of the Union Nacionalista, a political party, and Sexto Aguiro Padron. All were charged with sedition and attempts to incite rebellion.

Fourteen other signers of the manifesto seized by the police are still at liberty, although they appeared in court and took oath they had signed the document, and declaring they were within their rights in signing it.

Col. Carlos Mendieta, former Congressman and presidential candidate of the Nacionalista party two years ago, told the Associated Press the avowal "clears the manifesto of being clandestine." The party presented to the court a document acknowledging their names had appeared on the manifesto, and made a stipulation to the effect that they were within their rights in issuing a pamphlet expressing their political views.

SCHOOL FACILITIES IN MISSOURI BAD IN MANY SECTIONS

Dr. G. D. Strayer Directing Survey Says 952 of 9100 Districts Can't Raise Needed Funds.

AVERAGE TEACHERS' PAY $667 A YEAR

This Is in Rural Districts Where in Some Cases Terms Run Less Than Four Months a Year.

Of 9100 school districts in Missouri, 952 in poor communities could not maintain even a fair type of school for as much as six months a year if they levied the constitutional limit of taxation and got the maximum of State aid, the State Survey Commission was told at a conference at Hotel Jefferson today. Many Missouri communities, it was added, were unable to provide even reasonable housing conditions.

The commission, appointed by Gov. Caulfield to find means of improving educational and other governmental functions of the State, hopes to receive by Nov. 19 definite recommendations on the school system from the staff of 18 experts studying it. Chairman Theodore Gary presided today.

Dr. George D. Strayer and Dr. Nicholas L. Engelhardt, both of the Teachers' College of Columbia University, New York, are in charge of the school survey. Dr. Strayer related that 14 Missouri rural school districts were supported by taxes on assessed valuations of less than $10,000 each; 69 had $10,000 to $20,000 assessments; 17 had $20,000 to $30,000 assessments; 382 had $30,000 to $40,000 assessments, and 470 had $40,000 to $50,000 assessments. These groups make up the 952 poor districts referred to.

Abbreviated School Terms.

There are 53 rural districts having an annual school term of less than four months, Dr. Strayer related; 220 with four to six month terms and 873 with six to eight month terms. Most of the 9100 districts, of course, are rural; in St. Louis the term is nine months. The program of the limited terms offers unsatisfactory results, Dr. Strayer indicated.

Missouri, he went on, had 24,871 teachers in its public grade and high schools, of whom 8519 were rural school teachers, and 11,668 of them qualified only by county certificates, which are issued by officials of varying standards. There were 3971 teachers having only second or third grade, or lower standard, certificates.

"The issues," said Dr. Strayer, "are pretty clear cut. If the people of Missouri recognize the obligation of the State to support education, as people elsewhere do, then the program of State support must be developed, that is, you cannot leave it on the present basis and do the job, but must have an expanded program.

"I do not know any greater fallacy, however, than to believe that if you turn the money into certain channels you will get results. I don't believe it would be wise in Missouri or anywhere else just to suggest a sound financial policy and let the matter stand."

Teachers' Salaries Low.

The average annual teacher's salary in Missouri rural schools, Dr. Strayer disclosed, is $667 for men and $611 for women, and there are 50 or 60 teachers, mostly girls, paid less than $200 a year. The commission decided to permit publication of these and the preceding statistics at the suggestion of one of its members, Fred Naeter, a Cape Girardeau newspaper publisher, who said the public should be thoroughly informed of the situation to arouse support for remedies.

Chairman Gary pointed out that the type of rural teachers must be improved. Dr. Strayer answered that the survey included a study of personnel, from which it was expected to develop a plan of improving the qualifications of teachers over a period of years without throwing any of them out of employment, but by making it possible for them to learn more by attendance at the summer schools of the State teachers' colleges and universities. By lengthening the term and raising teachers' pay, he said, the instructor is enabled to devote time to summer school. There was reference to the problem presented by the fact that many women teachers marry after a few years' service, and it was stated that consideration was being given to whether married women could be retained.

Budget Plan Considered.

The survey, Dr. Strayer related, included study of school organization, funds needed, how to use the funds, the present program, its adequacy and the ability of teachers. It involves the question for each community: "What chance have the children in school here?" Missouri seems fortunate in having enough higher educational institutions, Dr. Strayer declared, but their need is for additional plant and equipment. He said the survey was considering means to avoid contests and log rolling to get educational appropriations and intended to propose a capital outlay budget.

Dr. Engelhardt, who told the meeting of the inability of many communities to provide satisfactory school housing, brought up the essential question of financing school improvements by capital outlay. He remarked that it is difficult in some places to raise money for current expenses. School buildings, he said, "vary all the way from the best in some communities to very miserable ones in poorer counties; I'd like to scrap some of those I've been in."

School Looked Like Shed.

In one morning's trip in an undesignated part of the State, Dr. Engelhardt said, he started at a rural school that looked like a shed, was almost wholly without books and pictures and was taught by a boy high school graduate who seized on this work to make a little money this year. The next school of 25 children was taught by a girl whose training consisted of six weeks of summer school work, who admitted she knew nothing of teaching technique and who could think of no additional equipment she could use.

"All morning, from one place to another, we found almost identically the same conditions," the educator related. "You can find those conditions to a marked degree in almost any part of the State. In some sections there is no incentive to improvement. A serious part of the problem is seeing to it that money appropriated by the boards for capital outlay is well spent. I've seen school plans in Missouri the great majority of which no board ought to buy because they are inadequate. There must be some state safeguard for proper expenditure of money for capital outlay. We are working out a program for buildings for the State teachers' colleges to cover a period of 15 years and are considering the deaf school, university and so on."

Dr. R. E. Tidwell, State Superintendent of Schools in Alabama, who is working in this survey, declared that leadership to obtain adequate school administration is as important as additional funds. State Superintendent of Schools Lee of Missouri attended the meeting.

BERLIN MAYOR AND PARTY DEPART FOR PHILADELPHIA

Gustav Boess, Lord Mayor of Berlin, and other officials of the German capital, left St. Louis yesterday on the final leg of a tour of this country which began Sept. 23. They will be in Philadelphia tonight and will sail from New York Friday aboard the Bremen.

The Berlin delegation arrived here Friday morning in response to an invitation extended by the St. Louis Advertising Club in the course of the International Advertising Congress at Berlin last August.

Mayor Boess expressed his appreciation of the hospitality extended him in St. Louis and the hope that St. Louis officials would visit Berlin. Chief of Police Gerk plans to visit Germany after attending the International Police Conference in Paris next month.

Promotion Slow, Many Quitting United States Diplomatic Service

Resignations From Corps Expected to Reach 50 by End of the Year—Enter Oil and Banking Business.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Recent resignations of several high officials of the foreign service have severely depleted the upper ranks of American diplomacy.

While the State Department usually declines to comment on resignations, it was estimated by well informed persons in the Department today that more than 50 members of the diplomatic personnel will have been dropped from the lists for one or another reason before Dec. 31.

Outstanding in the recent resignations were those of six high officials of the foreign service to enter the banking or oil business.

The reason generally assigned for the resignations is the dissatisfaction of members of the diplomatic personnel with the present promotion system. Since most members of the foreign service enter the department at the age of 25, it is estimated that under the present system a diplomat would reach the age of 55 or 60 before attaining the ranks of Consul-General in the consular service or Counselor of Embassy in the diplomatic service.

The most outstanding case at the present time, in the opinion of some diplomatic officers, is the status of the so-called "class of 1922," and those following it, whose members within seven years have not been promoted beyond the rank of third secretary, with a salary of $4000 annually.

A recent resignation which stirred considerable speculation in State Department circles was that of Stokley Morgan of Arkansas, formerly chief of the important Latin-American division of the department. Morgan resigned to enter the banking business.

Others were those of Thomas L. Daniels of St. Paul, formerly first secretary at Rome, to enter the vegetable oil business; John F. Martin of Florida, formerly Charge d'Affaires at La Paz, Bolivia, who resigned to enter the service of a well-known oil company, and Myron A. Hofer of Cincinnati, assigned to the department, who resigned to enter the banking business.

A delay, which causes considerable dissatisfaction in the diplomatic ranks whenever it occurs, comes when Congress holds up the promotion lists in favor of other legislation. The last promotion list was deplayed at the capitol for five months and the one previously was held up for a year. In these cases, the infrequent salary increases accorded by the lists are delayed until their confirmation.

RUSSIAN PLANE TO START EAST FROM CALIFORNIA TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 21.—The Russian monoplane, "Land of the Soviets," flying from Moscow to New York, will take off at 8 a. m. tomorrow for Cheyenne, Wyo., it was announced today by A. V. Petroff of New York, sponsor of the good-will flight. It arrived here Saturday from Vancouver, Wash.

The plane's crew of four soviet airmen meanwhile were guests of honor at receptions in San Francisco. Mayor James Rolph Jr. and other city officials arranged a public reception in the rotunda of the city hall, after which the flyers were to attend a luncheon given by the Chamber of Commerce.

The Russians—S. A. Shestakov, commander of the flight; Philip E. Bolotov, second pilot; Boris E. Sterlingov, navigator, and Dmitri Fufaev, mechanic—spent considerable time in adjusting instruments on their plane at the Oakland airport. Surrounded by a large crowd, the aviators exchanged greetings with admirers and signed countless autograph albums.

MACDONALD AND PARTY LEAVE FOR MONTREAL

British Premier and Daughter Attend Church Before Departing From Canadian Capital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 21.—Completing his visit of four days to the Canadian capital, Prime Minister MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, with their party, boarded their special train here at 10:15 p. m. last night and early today pulled out for Montreal. Premier King was at the station to see them off.

MacDonald and his daughter, accompanied by Governor-General and Lady Willingdon and Premier King, attended the morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where King is a regular worshiper.

As the party entered the church, with brilliantly uniformed aids from the Government House, the organ played the national anthem and the congregation rose and joined in singing. The party occupied seats directly in front of the pulpit. By MacDonald's request the choir sang "O God of Bethel."

HALF OF FEDERAL COURTS' WORK IS PROHIBITION CASES

Figures for Fiscal Year Show Increased Prosecution, Fewer Convictions but Higher Fines.

ALL THREE DECLINE IN ST. LOUIS DISTRICT

In Western Missouri, However, More Charges Are Filed and More Defendants Found Guilty.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Of the 110,655 civil and criminal cases instituted in Federal District Courts during the fiscal year just ended, 56,786, or more than one-half, were under the national prohibition act, the Department of Justice announced today.

The total number of convictions under the prohibition act was 47,100, a decrease of 1720 in comparison with the convictions obtained in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928. During that year 55,729 cases were instituted, or 1057 less than last year.

Aggregate fines, however, increased in 1929, the announcement said. In 1928 the fines amounted to $7,303,563; last year they were $7,476,300, an increase of $172,737.

In the Eastern Missouri (St. Louis) district, the number of prohibition cases instituted dropped from 985 in 1928 to 825 in 1929. Convictions dropped from 853 to 798, and fines assessed decreased from $258,981 to $210,182, or $48,799.

In the Western Missouri District, the number of cases instituted increased from 475 to 690; convictions jumped from 455 to 577, but fines assessed decreased from $116,030 to $48,303, or $67,727.

Statistics compiled by the Department of Justice disclosed how irregularly the prohibition act has been enforced since 1921. In that year 29,114 cases were instituted. In 1922 the number increased to 34,984 cases, and in 1923 there was a big jump to 49,021 cases. In 1924, a presidential election year, the number declined to 45,878 cases only to jump to 50,743 cases in 1925. Again in 1926 there was a drop to 44,492 cases, and a still further drop in 1927 to 40,709 cases.

Analysis of the different judicial districts reveals that the largest number of cases was instituted in the southern district of New York, where 7816 cases were instituted. The district with the next largest number of instituted cases was the eastern district of Kentucky, with 2945 cases.

Interesting comparisons, the announcement said, were also found in the total fines assessed in the various districts. The total for the northern district of New York for the last fiscal year was $420,927, as against $451,424 in the previous year. In the eastern district of Kentucky, however, where the total number of cases instituted during the last year was 2945, against 2980 in the previous year, the aggregate fines assessed last year was $444,712, about $4000 in excess of the amount assessed for the cases in the previous year.

Kansas took the lead for the smallest number of cases instituted last year with 28 cases. This, however, was double the number of cases instituted in that State in 1928. The amount of fines increased from $300 in 1928 to $2985 in 1929. In North Dakota there were 40 cases instituted last year, against 58 in the previous year. The amount of fines assessed in North Dakota increased from $4530 for 1928 to $5256 for last year.

ARTHUR H. BADER.

ARTHUR BADER NAMED TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE

J. Ray Weinbrenner Will Succeed Him on Court of Criminal Correction Bench.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 21.—Gov. Caulfield today announced the appointment of Arthur H. Bader, now Judge in the Court of Criminal Correction in St. Louis, as one of the two new St. Louis Circuit Judges who are to take office Dec. 1.

J. Ray Weinbrenner, St. Louis attorney and former member of the State Legislature, will succeed Judge Bader in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Judge Bader, Republican, and a Democrat, to be named within the next few days, will hold circuit judgeships until Dec. 31, 1930. Judges will be elected for the new positions at the November, 1930, election.

Three Democrats are known to be under consideration by the Governor. They are: Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney and unsuccessful candidate for Mayor at the spring election; John T. Fitzsimmons and James M. Douglas.

In announcing the appointments, Gov. Caulfield said they were made with the distinct understanding that none of the appointees is to accept gifts from any bondsmen. "It is a very vicious practice," he said, "for bondsmen to give and for Judges to receive presents in connection with bond matters."

Judge Bader's appointment was the second he has received from the Governor in a few months. He was appointed to his present position last May, to succeed the late Judge Paul A. Gayer. He was an Associate City Counselor under Gov. Caulfield when the Governor was City Counselor of St. Louis under Mayor Kiel.

While it is thought the Democratic appointment will come from among the three men under consideration, several other Democratic lawyers are being mentioned to the Governor. They include George T. Priest, Joseph Kane, Edgar H. Wayman, George H. Moore, Whistle Salutes Sound Into the Night—1000 Persons Wait Till 11:30 P. M. at Wheeling, W. Va.

MOVABLE DAMS FEATURE OF PLAN

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ON BOARD THE STEAMER CINCINNATI, Oct. 21.—The triumph of the Ohio Valley was well displayed as the Cincinnati neared a meeting with President Hoover yesterday, the 108th anniversary of the first steam shipping on the Ohio. The cruise down the river from Pittsburg, Pa., to Cairo, Ill., celebrates completion of 50 locks and dams for a nine-foot year-round waterway to New Orleans and the ports of the world. The President will board the steamboat at Cincinnati for a trip to Louisville.

Previously the Ohio has been shut off from the rest of the great Mississippi navigation system by low water from June to November. Its traffic was almost entirely local from coal mine to steel plant, comparable to the freight haul from Southern Illinois mines to industries in the St. Louis district. Even so, the Ohio has a tributary, the Monongahela, which is one of the busiest inland waterways in the country.

Bombs and airplanes, fluttering streamers, cheering throngs and wide-open whistles have become an old story to the Cincinnati. Its own whistle is kept going more than half the night to answer salutes from factories to towboats. Dozens of persons at every lock have driven five miles or more to meet the steamer.

Welcome at 11:30 P. M.

At least 1000 persons waited five hours for the steamer to arrive at Wheeling, W. Va., at 11:30 p. m. Saturday. The levee was packed with automobiles. Shouts, whistles and bombs—all were a whisper to the din of automobile horns. For seven miles below the banks were dotted with cheering throngs.

At 1:15 a. m., when this observer decided it was impossible to outlast the celebrators on the bank, someone on the Ohio side was firing a revolver salute, and a crowd of West Virginians on the other shore shouted. "Turn on your lights" and "Wheeeeee."

Only one thing is still in the entire celebration. That is the river itself. For it is really a chain of 50 man-made lakes. The current is less than one mile an hour, in contrast to the rushing Mississippi.

Engineers have forced the current itself to do most of the heavy work of transforming the erstwhile "bottleneck" between St. Louis and Cairo into a dependable channel. On the improved Ohio there is no such current, to change a 14-mile-an-hour boat downstream into a 9-mile boat upstream, except in high water, when

The National City Bank's Bulletin.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Bulletin of the National City Bank of New York on the subject of "The Tariff and Our Export Trade" reprinted in your issue of the 6th inst., states that the extra session of Congress was primarily for the purpose of passing the Federal Farm Board bill.

I have little doubt that such a statement would be as much an item of news to Mr. Hoover as it will to the reader. Personally I cannot recall any mention of the Federal Farm Board bill in any pre-election speeches, if, in fact the Federal Farm Board bill was in existence at the time.

Mr. Hoover, through Senator Borah, did promise an extra session to find a solution for the farm problem, and it was hardly to be supposed that a cure for farm ills would be found elsewhere than in the tariff which was, by errors of omissions, responsible for those ills.

Other portions of this bulletin form almost a positive declaration of purpose to sacrifice the American farmer for the benefits that accrue to finance and industrial works by such sacrifice.

There is little doubt that with agricultural products on the free list and industrial products protected a tremendous export trade can be built up by making this nation entirely dependent on outside countries for food, and impotent in cases of war.

The bulletin says: "The important question is whether an industry is profitable to the country in the sense of making an advantageous use of capital and labor. If it is not and is a burden to industries which are, the country would be better off without it." That is strong language, because the farmer answers the specifications in the industrial eye.

In the face of such letters it will be hard for business to disclaim sympathy with Mr. Shearer and his intentions. Any statement of this kind that shows premeditation of the undoing of 30,000,000 American people on the farm, for the quite doubtful benefits to result from their undoing is, to say the least, not praiseworthy. An Artificial Play.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"CAPRICE," while lauded greatly, is an artificial, stagy, tiresome talkative play about nothing. The cast was only ordinary, each one overacting his part, one of the actresses more conscious of her dress (a beautiful blue) than of the character portrayed. There is hardly a line or a move or a situation which is not artificially worked up in a showing for effectiveness. I wasted time and money attending it.

BICARBONATE BOB.

A Suggestion for His Majesty.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that the queen is crowned, and all is said and done, might one make a mild observation?

In surveying the personnel of His Majesty's Crewe at the ball in evening clothes and gallantly bearing the Prophet's insignia, a sad truth was borne in on one's consciousness—and that was, that not yet, oh lackaday, has the perfect collar button been invented!

To witness the galaxy of weary business men standing dejectedly, like unto tired cabhorses in the shafts, with orange or purple ribbons, mounting tie, collar and up on the neck, was fairly depressing! Many a silken band had lost its pristine freshness and lay limp and dewy with collected moisture at the hair line.

For decades the faithful hausfraus of our city have spent valuable moments untiringly dusting these useless whatnots dispensed by V. P. & Co. as annual souvenirs. Is it not high time something really useful and need-crying as a token were thought of, and what more appropriate than a perfectly secure collar button guaranteed to hold in its tenacious grasp tie, collar and gros-grain ribbon at the same time? What about it, oh Mysterious Majesty? YQUEM.

Babies and Vaccination Marks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Lions Club is to be congratulated for having such liberal-minded doctors examine the babies in its late contest. Usually a vaccination scar counts so many points, but the fine baby girl, ranged 100 per cent, who carried off the honors this time, has never had any serums or vaccines injected into her blood.

The Lions Club could be of further help to healthy children if it would work to replace the serving in our schools of pasteurized milk from tuberculin-tested cows with pure orange juice.

THE GENIUS OF EDISON.

Fifty years ago today at Menlo Park, N. J., the incandescent electric lamp was born. Its inventor, Thomas A. Edison, then 32 years old, had spent $40,000 and engaged in numerous discouraging experiments to do what many of the leading savants of the world said could not be done—cause electric light to glow on a carbonized filament in a glass-inclosed vacuum. On Oct. 21, 1879, Edison produced a lamp containing a loop of carbonized cotton thread which burned for 40 hours.

Tonight at Dearborn, Mich., whence Henry Ford has transplanted Edison's original laboratory, the inventor will re-enact the fabrication of the first incandescent lamp before a brilliant audience including President Hoover and Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium. As befits an event which has so profoundly affected modern life, an international radio hookup has been arranged which will carry Mr. Hoover's voice across the Atlantic and bring a response from Prof. Albert Einstein in Germany.

The little, white-haired, stone-deaf man who is the guest of honor fits the much-abused term, genius, whether genius be defined as an infinite capacity for taking pains, or as a superior intellectual equipment capable of rare insight into what seem to be insoluble problems. Mr. Edison's career abundantly demonstrates his possession of both qualities. His formal education was limited to three months in a Port Huron, Mich., public school and his youth was spent in such apparently unpromising occupations as train news butcher and journeyman telegraph operator.

His brain, however, was always in seething ferment and from early youth he displayed an antonishing ingenuity. While still a news butcher, for example, he printed, edited and distributed a newspaper devoted to news along the line. His headquarters were the baggage car. In 1869, he took out his first patent (by April, 1928, his patents numbered 1033) on an electric vote recorder. Then began a long series of important inventions which reads almost like a roster of progress in the last half-century—the stock ticker, duplex, quadruplex and automatic telegraph systems; the electric pen, progenitor of the mimeograph machine; the carbon transmitter which helped immensely in the development of the telephone; the phonograph; the kinetoscopic camera, forefather of the movies; the "Edison effect," rude ancestor of the radio tube.

Invention of a successful incandescent electric light brought in its train a whole series of attendant inventions designed to make practicable its general use. Thus, for 10 years after 1879 Mr. Edison devoted himself to creating means for the generation and distribution of electric light, heat and power, such as the three-wire system, improved motors and dynamos. When he turned from that it was to study a magnetic method of concentrating iron ores, and still later to invent a new kind of storage battery. During the war he was engaged by the Government on various problems, from the production of chemicals to naval studies.

It would be difficult to estimate the influence of Edison in our civilization, as it is difficult to classify him historically. He is a kind of household Prometheus who has added enormously to our convenience, comfort and amusement; his works have a universality that staggers the imagination. The Siberian peasant who lights his sodded shack from the current of a home-made electric plant is his beneficiary along with the pampered masses in the gorgeously illuminated centers of civilization.

In one sense, the progress of mankind can be traced from the improvised torch of primitive times through the dim days of oil, candle and kerosene to the one-time miracle of illuminating gas and finally to the magnificent blaze set 50 years ago in Menlo Park from a loop of cotton thread. What philosopher, descendant of those who peered at their tomes through the gloom of medieval night, will digest and synthesize Edison's contribution to mankind?

THE BINGHAM PERFORMANCE.

Senator Bingham of Connecticut has secured advances in tariff rates for the manufacturers of his State which, it is calculated, will add $76,000,000 to the American consumer's living costs. If every Senator did as well for his constituents—if every one of the 96 Senators was as diligent and capable as Bingham—the American consumer's yearly bill would be increased by $7,296,000,000. The disciple of deadly accuracy may discover an error in this accounting. Pointing a finger at Mr. Vare of Pennsylvania he may remind us that there are only 95 Senators and that $76,000,000 ought, therefore, to be subtracted, reducing the total to $7,220,000,000. Even so, that might fairly be called a pretty penny, and in no wise dims the starry magnitude of Bingham's performance. Connecticut manufacturers are said to be delighted with Bingham, but we hope their appreciation will take more substantial form than fulsome flattery. They might, we imagine, properly decorate the Senator with a hand-carved nutmeg of purest mahogany.

A Government survey shows a 9 per cent increase in the turkey crop. If the price is to be anything like it has been for several years that ought to mean more to the farmer than the special session of Congress.

JAPAN'S REPLY.

Japan does more than cordially accept Great Britain's invitation to the Five-Power naval limitation conference to be held in London next January. She suggests the conference go beyond mere limitation and undertake to reach an agreement on the reduction of armament "that all nations should seek to attain." It is not difficult to understand, of course, that Japan should follow so enthusiastically the lead of President Hoover and Premier MacDonald.

Ever since 1904, when Japan disposed of Russia, her only troublesome rival in the East, Nippon's position has been secure. If she was disturbed by the growing power of the United States, she found reassurance in the Four-Power Treaty of 1921. That treaty, dissolving the old Anglo-Japanese alliance, established a kind of informal league of nations among the Powers with interests in the Pacific, whose surface since has been unrippled. It is only natural that Japan should seek to cement the friendly relationship with the only two Powers whose navies are at all comparable with hers.

Aside from this friendliness which dispels Japanese fear of British and American intentions, there is the economic side. Japan is in no position financially to engage in a naval race with us or Great Britain. She is not only willing but eager to join in an agreement "to relieve humanity of the heavy burden of armament, whether existing or contemplated," especially since she can do so without upsetting the relative strength of the three most powerful navies. Such an agreement will release funds badly needed by Japan in other fields.

All of which makes for an auspicious beginning for the plans of Messrs. Hoover and MacDonald.

A BOURBON BLAST FROM BECKER.

Secretary of State Becker is opposed to the recommendations of Gov. Caulfield's survey commission for greater efficiency and economy in the State's public affairs. The commission, to be sure, has not yet made its report, but the prescient Mr. Becker knows that any suggestions offered will be unwise, dangerous and, as regards the country press, will be tragic. He has said all this, and a good deal more, in an open letter from his news bureau to the rural Republican editors of Missouri.

The matter of printing the proposed constitutional amendments is an item that moves Mr. Becker profoundly. Should that piece of business be taken out of Mr. Becker's office and placed under the Governor's control, which Mr. Becker is confident will be proposed, the consequences will be terrible. The corn will wilt in the stalk, the paw-paw curl up and die in its innocent infancy, the buffalo will vanish from the lush meadows of the Ozarks and the wild turkey's lyric sonata will be heard no more in bosky dell or shaded glen. And heading the exiled trek of our fauna and flora will be the country editor.

To a 100 per cent Missourian like Mr. Becker this exodus is distressing. And, grievous enough as this is, the surface of despair hasn't been scratched if once the printing of constitutional amendments is seized by the Executive. The Governor then will be the Czar, Pooh-Bah, Panjandrum and Genghis Khan of Missouri. He will not only catapult himself into what higher preferment he chooses, but he will nominate and elect all the judges of all our courts, all our State officers, all our Legislators, Congressmen, Prosecuting Attorneys, Mayors, Aldermen, bat boys, golf pros and caddies, college professors and ping-pong instructors.

On the word of Mr. Becker, the only thing that stands between the people of Missouri and the Governor's tyranny is the printing of the constitutional amendments as designated by that hardy official perennial, the present Secretary of State.

The government of Missouri as is is perfection's fullest bloom. Any change, innovation or departure from the status quo means ruin.

So sayeth Mr. Becker. The noblest Bourbon of them all couldn't say it better.

ILLINOIS' WONDERFUL ROAD PROGRAM.

Governor Emmerson said at the dedication of the new bridge across the Mississippi River at Cairo last week that Illinois has spent upwards of $250,000,000 on more than 6000 miles of hard roads, and she is not yet done. The Governor says she is going to build another 3000 miles of hard roads, or 9000 miles in all.

Illinois is, of course, the third richest state, her wealth being eclipsed by that of New York and Pennsylvania alone. Missouri has appropriated $150,000,000 for roads, in addition to which many of the counties, notably Jackson, St. Louis, Jasper and Buchanan, have themselves appropriated other millions. St. Louis County has had two road bond issues, one of $3,000,000, and another of $10,000,000.

SPRINGFIELD'S SATURNALIA.

When the wowsers of Springfield, Mo., lost their fight to oust Mayor Thomas H. Gideon, there ensued, to use the rather gray cliche of the Associated Press, "one of the most riotous demonstrations in the city's history." For a few purple hours, Springfield lost its inhibitions and became what Paris was after the fall of the Bastille, with the sans-culottes dancing the carmagnole in the streets, or, more patly, what London was when the frenzied bacchanalia of the Restoration dispelled the last wisp of Cromwellian gloom.

Should the judicious grieve at the behavior of Springfield's groundlings? Not so. With the details of the quarrel between Mayor Gideon and his opponents we are not concerned. It may be that Mayor Gideon represents Darkness and his enemies Light, at least, in the latter's lexicon. But fundamentally the uprising was the natural reaction of man against tyranny, this time of the puritanical brand, which pries and peers and snoops and threatens until man's explosion valve is tripped.

What happened in Springfield is on the verge of happening throughout the country. American citizens, despite their long tradition of individualism, are enduring a theocratic tyranny to find a parallel to which one must go to colonial New England. Dry laws, blue laws, Sunday laws, all sorts of restrictions, have been placed on man's right to the pursuit of happiness in his own way and at his own time. The wowsers, the moralistic Cossacks, are in the saddle and riding hard.

All that is needed, judging from Springfield's rowdy demonstration, is the spark to set off reaction.

Jack Dempsey, in a luncheon address, says prize-fighters are gentlemen nowadays and the game has come up from barbarism in the last few years. Gentleman Jack must have been reading Prof. Tunney's article in the new Britannica.

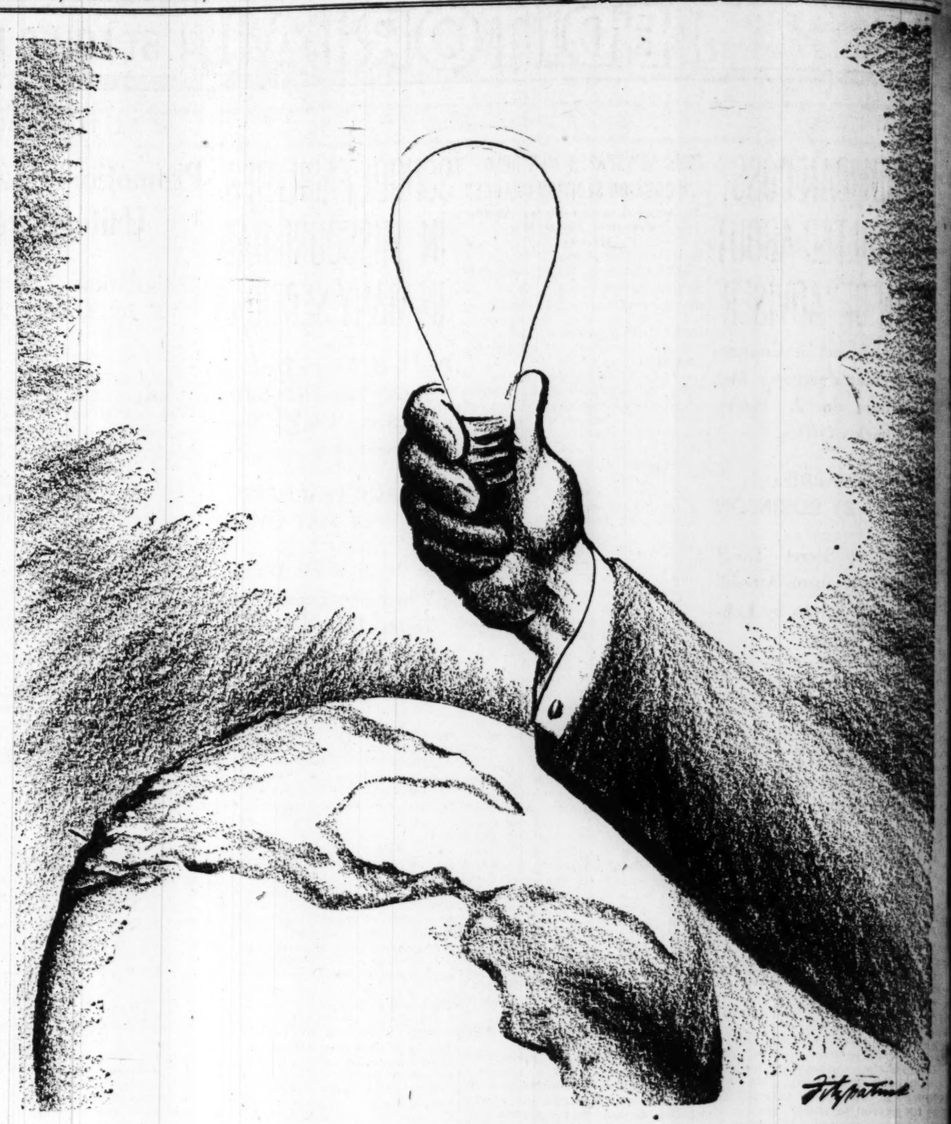

POST-WAR PHILANTHROPY.

With great ceremonial fanfare the other day Johns Hopkins University, one of our most highly respected institutions of learning, dedicated a new chair of chemistry, named for the man who put up the money—Francis P. Garvan, A. B., LL. B., LL. D., M. A., recipient of the American chemists' Priestley medal, patron of the arts and sciences and perfect 100 per center. It was this Garvan who, as Alien Property Custodian, back in 1919, sold for $250,000 some $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 worth of German industrial formulas, processes and dye patents to the (American) Chemical Foundation, Inc., of which Garvan himself later took the presidency.

An institution like Johns Hopkins could hearten the morale of the country by refusing to accept money from such a source.

Rip Van Winkle finally stirred and sat up. "Did the St. Louis polo team ever win a game?" he asked.

Senator Borah put the if in the tariff.

WHAT EDISON DID.

Mrs. Michael's Defeat

In an analysis of Mrs. Michael's defeat for president of the School Board, organ of Women Voters League ascribes it chiefly to sex prejudice; Mrs. Michael is lauded as a symbol of progressivism and liberalism in education, and failure to use her attributes to the fullest is declared a loss to St. Louis schools.

From the Bulletin of the League of Women Voters.

THE failure of the Board of Education to elect Mrs. Elias Michael president at the meeting on Friday, Oct. 11, is a matter of public concern, for the reason that the president wields such influence on the general conduct of the schools. Therefore, the action of the board is much more than the refusal of an honor due Mrs. Michael, according to every criterion and eminent fitness. It involves fundamental issues in the policy of our school board. Such being the case, an analysis of the causes leading up to it is in order.

The selection of a president of the Board of Education is by custom determined by a caucus of its members. The members bind themselves to vote at the formal election in accordance with the decision of the caucus, the purpose being to give to the person elected the honor of a unanimous election. It has been the custom for some years to promote the vice president to the presidency. Mrs. Michael was vice president.

On Oct. 3 the president, Mr. Blumeyer, assured the vice president, Mrs. Michael, and Mrs. Ernest R. Kroeger, that 12 members were going down the line for Mrs. Michael as president. At 10:30 a. m. on Friday, Oct. 11, the day of the election, Mr. Blumeyer again assured Mrs. Kroeger that there would be at the caucus 12 votes for Mrs. Michael as president. What happened between 10:30 and 4 p. m., the hour of the official caucus, at which the first ballot was 5 for Mrs. Michael and 5 for Mr. Blumeyer? Mrs. Michael and Mr. Blumeyer did not vote. The second ballot stood 6-4 for Mr. Blumeyer, whereupon Mr. Blumeyer was elected.

Early in September it was deemed advisable, owing to the reorganization plan in the instruction department, to hold over the present officers, Mr. Blumeyer as president and Mrs. Michael as vice president.

Shortly thereafter the secretary-treasurer died, and, a few days later, the building commissioner. Besides these unforeseen and unfortunate events, other evident changes of policy of a fundamental character and influence became apparent. Mrs. Michael at once expressed the view that since it was no longer a question of the instruction department only, the board should not feel bound to hold over the existing officers but should feel free to reconsider the whole matter. Mrs. Michael thereupon expressed her willingness to run for the presidency, and definitely made her position known. Mr. Barth was to be the candidate for vice president.

* * *

Mrs. Michael had been maneuvered into the position of approving Mr. Blumeyer's re-election as president by her assent to the proposal made in September, and of favoring Mr. Barth for vice president when she later agreed to run for president herself. Hence, the statement that Mrs. Michael did not want either office.

As to the advantages of continuity of administration, we agree with the Post-Dispatch in that "we are not impressed."

The defeat of Mrs. Michael may be attributed to many causes, chief among them a discrimination against women in public office. The hurdles are still high, and a woman needs to be a little better qualified than a man for the same position. But that women contribute a valuable point of view, and that they have demonstrated their ability to serve effectively, is unnecessary to state here. Mrs. Michael's training, her experience, her idealism and her sense of social duty, make her the best qualified person to serve as president of the school board. It is a loss to the schools that such attributes are not used to the fullest advantage. Her work in the fields of education and social progress would make her an outstanding citizen in any community.

Why does the Board of Education fail to appreciate the value of her leadership?

* * *

But, it was not Mrs. Michael alone who was discriminated against at that election. She is a symbol of progressivism and liberalism in education. She represents a desire to recapture for the St. Louis public school system the high position it held under such a leader as Dr. W. T. Harris. She represents a rebellion against mere traditionalism in teaching and thinking; while those who do not understand the ferment and the growth in education throughout the world, wish to maintain the status quo. But, of course, it is impossible to stand still; for education is dynamic, not static. School board members need not be educators, but they ought to be aware of John Dewey in order to spend the public money wisely.

It has always been maintained that politics has no place in the Board of Education, and it is true that there are no opportunities for voting according to party political lines. Therefore it becomes pertinent to ask whether there could have been a secret caucus, a doubtful political measure, preceding the official caucus? Is this device taught in our civics classes as an example of good government, or of bad?

* * *

The League of Women Voters has always emphasized the importance of electing to the school board only those who are fully qualified by education, experience and ideals to work whole-heartedly for the improvement of the quality of our schools. But, it is not sufficient to elect such persons; the public must maintain and express a sustained interest in the conduct of its public servants in order to enable them to use to the full those qualifications in the interests of progress. No truer statement can be made of the problem which is with us constantly, even though it emerges into the limelight only occasionally, than the query: Do the voters of St. Louis and the parents of the children want to entrust the conduct of the schools to the men and women who have shown a sincere and enduring interest in the schools and who regard education as their primary purpose, or to those, who by their own confession, "need no English, for we're the guys that run"?

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.

A LOT of idle talk is heard at the Capitol every now and then about the career men in the American diplomatic service. Very little of it is complimentary. The back-country Congressmen feel they are on safe ground when they indulge in uncouth rural sport at the expense of the young men of education and family who forego the money marts to work in out-of-the-way places of the earth and be nice to visiting Babbitts.

Some time, I am going to present a compilation of the comment of the wives of diplomats and consuls on the goofy American women they have been obliged to entertain lest some demagogue on Capitol Hill should raise an issue of snobbery.

The wonder is that the United States is able to retain in its diplomatic service men of the caliber the State Department has on its rolls.

* * *

IF IT be argued that the American boy without a Harvard accent ought to have a chance to become one of his country's diplomats, the parents of moderate means ought to be reminded constantly of remarks which Col. George Harvey, one-time Ambassador to the Court of St. James, made to me one night at a dinner party.

"I spent my first year's salary as Ambassador to London on the first formal party I was obliged to give there," Col. Harvey said.

"A $17,500 party ought to have been a pretty swell party," I returned.

"It seems incredible, doesn't it, but it's true," Col. Harvey countered. "The trouble about it was that every florist, every caterer, every other kind of person to whom I had to go for the things you have to have for a party of four or five hundred people, charged prices outrageously beyond anything you could imagine. I could have bought all the palms in Florida for what I paid to rent a dozen or so for that afternoon."

* * *

GOING West on the Capital Limited from Washington the day after he had quit the Vice Presidency, Charles G. Dawes, now Ambassador to London, declared that the most amusing experiences of his Washington career were his acquaintanceships with the professional waiters at smart dinner parties in Washington.

"I came to know those fellows better than a lot of the hostesses whose dinner tables I had an obligation to grace," the retiring Vice President declared. "I would meet them one night in purple and old gold and knee breeches; in green and a lot of red braid the next night at another dinner; in another uniform the third night; in plain American full dress clothes another time, and so on and so on, night after night.

"It got so I began to exchange winks of recognition with them. I just couldn't help it. I'm sure they were just as much amused as I was over encountering them in the uniform of the old family servant here and there and damned near everywhere. They knew that I was on to the racket. I knew that they knew it. Between us we got a lot of fun out of it."

Another War Book

F, as has been said, a novel should be a "slice of life," this story of the World War demonstrates the formula. The narrative unfolds as almost a day to day account of the war-time experiences of Ann Wentworth, a New England girl with a cultured background, one of a family of social prominence whose members, imbued with high humanistic ideals, offered themselves for service in the world conflict.

Ann, as a civilian employe of the United States Army, acted as stenographer to various A. E. F. chiefs at Bordeaux and Paris. Later, as a staff worker with the Y. W. C. A., she had a close-up view of conditions at the front and with the army of occupation in Germany. This bare outline of activities closely parallels the actual experience of the author, and the book is really autobiography thinly disguised as fiction.

Through the stream of consciousness method, impressions, emotions, adventures, descriptive passages and dramatic episodes crowd one another with prodigal profusion, the whole offering a convincing picture of war and the men who wage it.

This efficient, capable spinster, broadminded, tolerant, observed with sophisticated understanding all the chaos of war-time conditions. The characters sketched are the familiar actors of all war books, doughboys, hard-boiled sergeants, nurses, inadequate bunglers in officer uniforms, the quiet, unsung heroes of the rank and file.

The disgusting scenes in overcrowded, understaffed hospitals, the hunger, mud, rain, cold, death under horrible circumstances in the trenches are counterbalanced by the petty intrigues which occupied the more fortunate personnel in the sinecure jobs behind the lines.

The book is formless, diffuse and aimless, but one closes it with a sense of its having realistically pictured a large portion of humanity in the historic crisis.

"It's a Great War" is one of the two books, both by American writers, which shared the prize of $5,000 offered for the best World War novel by the American Legion Monthly and the Houghton Mifflin Publishing Co.

The Week's
—:— By NI

GLORIA SWANSON, who has been out of the picture, and the pictures, for some time, gets back into them both with "The Trespasser" down at Loews this week. It is an excellent, if complicated picture with Gloria doing the best acting of her career and displaying a most pleasing singing voice—for, of course, there is a theme song. Miss Swanson has quite a time of it before "The Trespasser" comes to the usual cheerful conclusion. Battle and murder and sudden death, figuratively speaking, all play a part in bringing happiness to a poor working girl at the end of reel eight and Gloria sniffles, or smiles or sings her way through the trio's and tribulations which beset a poor working gal who has a baby, an ex-husband and a rich provider on her hands at the same time. You see she married a boy in Chicago who took his powerful father's advice and left her flat to marry a girl in Our Set. Then the baby and rent day came around and Gloria cried out her troubles on the shoulder of her employer who was so touched that he moved her from her hall bedroom in the loop to a palace on Chicago's Gold Coast. He bought her a fur coat and a new, and more cheerful, theme song and Gloria was sitting pretty until he went back to his wife and died. About the same time husband No. 1 and his new wife got tangled up in an automobile accident over in France. Well, it's all pretty much mixed up and doesn't really stand telling but in the picture everything works out just as it should and the fade-out shows Gloria and her son and her ex-husband and his old father shaking hands or something. "The Trespasser" is really an entertaining film and Swanson is surprisingly good in it.

Crooks On an Ocean Wave

OLA LANE wasn't really from Havana at all despite the fact that in "The Girl from Havana," at the Fox, she poses as an innocent little chorus girl from a show in the Cuban city. Lola was actually a detective trailing a gang of jewel thieves at sea and her peace of mind is nearly destroyed when she finds herself falling in love with Paul Page, a member of the robber band. But Page wasn't in the level, as a crook, either. Another War Book

If, as has been said, a novel should be a "slice of life," this story of the World War demonstrates the formula. The narrative unfolds as almost a day to day account of the war-time experiences of Jim Wentworth, a New England youth with a cultured background, one of a family of social prominence whose members, imbued with high humanistic ideals, offered themselves for service in the world conflict.

Jim, as a civilian employe of the United States Army, acted as stenographer to various A. E. F. chiefs at Bordeaux and Paris. Later, as a staff worker with the Y. M. C. A., she had a close-up view of conditions at the front and with the army of occupation in Germany. This bare outline of activities closely parallels the actual experience of the author, and the book is really autobiography thinly disguised as fiction.

Through the stream of consciousness method, impressions, emotions, adventures, descriptive passages and dramatic episodes crowd one another with prodigal profusion, the whole offering a convincing picture of war and the men who wage it.

This efficient, capable spinster, broadminded, tolerant, observed with sophisticated understanding all the chaos of war-time conditions. The characters sketched are the familiar actors of all war books, doughboys, hard-boiled sergeants, nurses, inadequate bunglers in officer uniforms, the quiet, unsung heroes of the rank and file.

The disgusting scenes in overcrowded, understaffed hospitals, the hunger, mud, rain, cold, death under horrible circumstances in the trenches are counterbalanced by the petty intrigues which occupied the more fortunate personnel in the sinecure jobs behind the lines.

The book is formless, diffuse and aimless, but one closes it with a sense of its having realistically pictured a large portion of humanity in the historic crisis.

"It's a Great War" is one of the two books, both by American writers, which shared the prize of $35,000 offered for the best World War novel by the American Legion Monthly and the Houghton Mifflin Publishing Co.

TOMORROW'S ALMANACK AND EVERY-DAY BOOK of 1930. Thayer Hobson, Philom (Morrow).

For several years now, Mr. William Morrow of New York has been giving the bright boys and girls of literary Gotham an autumnal picnic. Here is the latest one—64 precocious children gone native without any mammas to watch them! And how they do cut up! Everybody bent upon being funny, and many of them succeeding almost too well. It's a wild party, what with all the haw-hawing and the nose-thumbing and the head standing and the hand-springing and the leap-frogging and the wise-cracking and—. Well, if their mammas knew what some of them are saying, they'd get spanked. Perhaps what men and women laugh at is more significant than what they are sober about. If so, this should prove a valuable exhibit in the case of Posterity against our generation.

GREAT DETECTIVE STORIES OF THE WORLD. Edited by Joseph Lewis French. (Dial Press.)

The editor of this compilation undertakes to give his reader an idea of how the detective story has developed, offering the examples of sleuth yarns in chronological order. The series begins with Voltaire's "Zadig" and leads up to Conan Doyle, and some notable stories which are not ordinarily found in collections are included. Although the book contains more than 1100 pages, there are only 13 stories. This is explained by the fact that several of them are condensed novels; for instance, Dickens' "Bleak House" is edited into a detective yarn called "Inspector Bucket."

SEEING GERMANY. By E. M. Newman. (Funk & Whgnalls.)

Mr. Newman is the author of a well-known series of travel books, and this is his latest. Although he pays rather more attention to palaces and museums than to people, the writer gives a well balanced description of his subject. Best of all, he travels with a camera, and illustrates each volume with many photographs. The present book is sprinkled with upwards of 300 pictures, from all parts of Germany. Having been familiar with that country in the pre-war days, Mr. Newman is able to draw comparisons and to show wherein the new Germany differs from the old. This is particularly of interest when he writes of the former Kaiser's palaces, and of the changed attitude toward them in Berlin and Potsdam.

The publisher's announcement asserts this is "the first travel book about Germany since the war." This is a bit over-enthusiastic. An excellent one called "Towns and People of Modern Germany," by Robert Medill McBride, was reviewed in this column almost two years ago. And there must have been others.

"PLEASURE BOUND" A WHOOPEE REVUE

Comedians, Girls and Scenery Provide Plenty of Rough Enjoyment at Shubert.

A HALF dozen or so vaudeville headliners, some pretty scenery, a lot of active young women and, now and then, some unpardonable vulgarity make "Pleasure Bound," which came to the Shubert Theater last night, a typical Shubert whoopee revue. Aileen Stanley, Jack Pearl, Phil Baker, Shaw and Lee and Rosita Moreno provide most of the entertainment by wandering in and out and doing their acts whenever the very slender musical comedy plot threatens to collapse. Miss Stanley, who knows better than any other woman on the stage how to combine her charming personality with an unusual, if not entirely musical voice, puts over several new ballads in a tremendously pleasing manner and Phil Baker, with his accordion and familiar accomplice in a box seat stops the show with the same stuff he did, in the same way, last year and the year before. Once, in the latter part of the long show, Baker and Miss Stanley pooled their efforts and provided the high spot of the evening.

Jack Pearl with his German dialect is the chief comedian of "Pleasure Bound" and gets all of the laughs expected of him. Shaw and Lee, a pair of very funnny vaudeville comics, also take a hand in stopping the show and Rosita Moreno is the leading dancer and a good one. Then, too, there is a chorus girl, on the end of the line, who has been given some very funny business. Unnamed on the program she is one of the hits of the performance.

There is plenty of enjoyment to be found in "Pleasure Bound" of the regular revue pattern and a big Sunday night audience enjoyed it hugely.

SUNSHINE SAMMY, DANCER, HEADLINER AT THE ST. LOUIS

Sunshine Sammy, young Negro, at one time in the "Our Gang" movie comedies, has turned out to be a razzle-dazzle, slap-'em-down tap dancer, fast and clever and a credit to Bill Robinson, king of the clog, whose protege he is. Sammy is appearing at the St. Louis Theater this week with two other little Negroes who sing and dance. The bill is highly entertaining.

The Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet is back with a well selected program—a floral chorus, mechanical doll bit and a "Blue" Danube" interpretation, the last a truly beautiful creation in rhythm. Harry Holmes, a nut, provides lots of laughs with monkey-shines at a piano. The Briants offer their classic or Pantomime, "A Moving Man's Dream." Eva Mandel sings.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.

DIARY of a modern Pepys. Hurried out to meet a train and falling down the steps of my inn, swore a pox on those who laughed mockingly. Nor save for Will Mahoney have I ever seen a man arise from a hard fall without appearing utterly foolish.

Then to see Frazer and Emma Hunt, back from their Alberta ranch to set off to London again Home, where came by express six huge goblets of glass from Amon Carter in Ft. Worth, the largest I ever beheld and where I shall put them is a problem.

In the evening with my wife to drive to Ray Long's in Connecticut, the first time I have seen his new estate, and Hugh and Sadie Murray there, also Hattie Belle Johnston Eva Steinmetz Otis Ralston Reinald and Verna Werrenrath and I kissed all the ladies. Home late.

FIFTY-SEVENTH street is to have the largest swimming pool in America and will feature a celebrated jazz band. Among tunes I have thought up for them to play are "Asleep in the Deep," "Shall We Gather at the River?"—and this is not turning out as funny as I thought.

IN SCOTLAND there is a New York. It is the western shore of beautiful Loch Awe where the sky is always the smoky blue of a desert twilight. There are quite a number of Scottish New Yorkers in the metropolis.

A COCKTAIL diversion from Britain is called appropriately enough, The Sparker. It consists simply of a raw egg beaten up in a glass of champagne and has long been a "pick-me up" for English jockeys. The drink not only has a reviving glow but will not add a fraction of weight. Three of them, however, and you're fried.

SPEAKING of jockeys, in other days Broadway had a retired jockey or so among the flash spenders. They rode hard out of the saddle and wound up with a benefit—and quick oblivion. Many jockeys today, however, have attained financial independence in retirement. Perhaps the most picturesque jockey along the street was Tod Sloane. He was a diminutive fashion plate, witty conversationalist and a graceful epicurean. At the peak of his career he added to his glamor by marrying Julia Sanderson, the reigning musical comedy toast of the town.

AND a toney inn has a sign over its chief porter's cage labelling that worthy: "Esquire of Travel."

MANY chief porters as well as underlings in hotels are a prolific source of revenue for hand books. Nearly all play the ponies. Waiters are next in enthusiasm for a game that cannot be beaten.

AN overworked publicity racket in the theatrical field is to cook up "rumor engagements" among stars and broadcast them. One newspaper now has a rule the actual marriage must take place before a line, ha, ha, will be printed.

A NEW YORKER who never took a drink in his life carries a completely filled flask. And why is it those who do so much drinking rarely carry even an empty flask? I'm not sore—merely asking.

THE Park Commissioner is pleased with the way the young trees in Central Park are growing. Still, after deep reflection, there isn't much else they can do.

A HARDENED Broadwayite with a disquieting pallor the other night described trees as "those things small town yaps hold to while going home at night."

A COUNTRY boy gets little emotional reaction out of a tree. He was brought up to look upon it as something to chop down.

AND if he goes to the city a tree represents only so many tooth picks. Is that enough? Or do you want me to get off something else about trees?

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

GLORIA SWANSON, who has been out of the picture, and the pictures, for some time, gets back into them both with "The Trespasser" down at Loews this week. It is an excellent, if complicated picture with Gloria doing the best acting of her career and displaying a most pleasing singing voice—for, of course, there is a theme song. Miss Swanson has quite a time of it before "The Trespasser" comes to the usual cheerful conclusion. Battle and murder and sudden death, figuratively speaking, all play a part in bringing happiness to a poor working girl at the end of reel eight and Gloria sniffles, or smiles or sings her way through the trials and tribulations which beset a poor working gal who has a baby, an ex-husband and a rich provider on her hands at the same time. You see she married a boy in Chicago who took his powerful father's advice and left her flat to marry a girl in Our Set. Then the baby and rent day came around and Gloria cried out her troubles on the shoulder of her employer who was so touched that he moved her from her hall bedroom in the loop to a palace on Chicago's Gold Coast. He bought her a fur coat and a new, and more cheerful, theme song and Gloria was sitting pretty until he went back to his wife and died. About the same time husband No. 1 and his new wife got tangled up in an automobile accident over in France. Well, it's all pretty much mixed up and doesn't really stand telling but in the picture everything works out just as it should and the fade-out shows Gloria and her son and her ex-husband and his old father holding hands or something. "The Trespasser" is really an entertaining film and Swanson is surprisingly good in it.

Crooks On an Ocean Wave

LOLA LANE wasn't really from Havana at all despite the fact that in "The Girl from Havana," at the Fox, she poses as an innocent little chorus girl from a show in the Cuban city. Lola was actually a detective trailing a gang of jewel thieves at sea and her peace of mind is nearly destroyed when she finds herself falling in love with Paul Page, a member of the robber band. But Page wasn't on the level, as a crook, either. He had joined the outfit just to find the murderer of his father, and when all this comes out, after a lot of exciting adventures on shipboard, Lola and Paul are ready for a trip to the altar. One can hardly call "The Girl from Havana" an underworld picture for most of the action takes place at sea but you know what sort of a picture it is.

Big-Hearted Clara

ALTHOUGH Charley Skouras denies it emphatically, we recall, somewhere in the dim distant days before the talkies came, having seen "The Saturday Night Kid." Maybe it wasn't called that then and maybe Clara didn't have the star role. At all events, the picture, all rigged up with the squeaking attachments is at the Ambassador now with the red-headed IT girl doing the stuff in which the millions of Bow fans around the country take the greatest delight. Clara is an honest little shop girl flapper who has a dumbbell sister who makes away with the funds of the store's welfare association to bet on the fifth race at Fairmount, or somewhere. Also she manages to take Clara's boy friend but about the time the picture winds up Clara gets the money back in a crap game, lines up her straying steady again and there is a promise that wedding bells will soon be heard in the offing—wherever that is.

Well, Not Entirely Happy

THE rush of the talkies to get anybody capable of making any sort of a sound out to Hollywood to be photographed and recorded, resulted in Ted Lewis being dragged before the camera. A hodge podge affair, called "Is Everybody Happy?" which is showing at the Missouri, was the ultimate result. There is a story of a poor young Russian boy who became a great clarionet player in a jazz band with Lewis, of course as the boy. He wins fame and fortune and a nice girl before the thing is over with. Some of the band numbers in the film are pleasing but if the producers are really putting a question with the title the answer is "No."

MRS. ELISE TOENSFELDT DIES

She and Husband Formerly Conducted Private School.

Mrs. Toensfeldt and her husband, John Toensfeldt, conducted a private school on the South Side for 25 years, abandoning it about 30 year ago. Besides her husband, a daughter, Miss Grete Toensfeldt, and three sons, Ralf, Kurt and Hans, survive.

CAULFIELD DEFENDS SURVEY COMMISSION

Improvement of Public Schools and State Institutions Sought, Governor Says.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 21.—Attacks on the work of the State Survey Commission which have appeared in a few rural newspapers in Missouri, apparently based on the belief the commission would recommend a general reorganization of the State government, were characterized by Gov. Caulfield as useless "shadow boxing," in an address here Saturday night before the Republican Editorial Association of Missouri.

Caulfield said there was no intention to urge reorganization of the State government through the State survey, and that an effort to arouse opposition on that basis was "just putting up straw men and knocking them down."

"My idea in recommending creation of the survey commission by the 1929 Legislature was to investigate the needs and determine the means for bettering the condition of the public schools and the State educational, eleemosynary and penal institutions," Caulfield said. "The man who blocks the purposes of this survey will do great injury to the State and the welfare of its institutions."

The Governor did not refer to the source of this opposition, but it is known that some of the State officials and job holders are opposed to any reorganization of departments that might reduce political patronage, and have feared such a reorganization would be recommended by the commission, which has been carrying on its survey for several months.

Opposition to such a reorganization has been expressed by Secretary of State Charles U. Becker, who maintains a Republican publicity bureau which furnishes weekly publicity copy to rural newspapers, including the one or more newspapers in each county which receive the biennial initiative and referendum printing contracts from Becker. This publicity bureau is conducted by a State-paid employe in Becker's department.

Mayor Miller of St. Louis was introduced by the presiding officer as "a possible candidate for United States Senator in 1932." Miller discussed the development of St. Louis and said the city not only was working for its own benefit but for the benefit of the entire State.

The Mayor quoted various statistics concerning the city, including the fact that it casts 25 per cent of the Republican vote in Missouri, annually pays about $30,000,000 in general taxes, and contributes heavily in State revenues.

Miller criticised what he called the "so-called" independent newspapers and said such papers deprived the public of the opportunities for knowledge presented by partisan papers. The Mayor alluded to the "great metropolitan religious dailes" in offering an apology for reading his speech, explaining that he had been misquoted at times, and for that reason had prepared a manuscript to avoid misquotation.

The Editorial Association concluded a two-day meeting this evening. Included in the resolutions adopted was one appealing to Republican party organizations, to subscribe to and patronize Republican newspapers, on the ground the newspapers were an important factor in the party organization.

A resolution which had been prepared in advance of the meeting by a special committee of the association, urging more recognition of Republican editors, both in party councils and in appointments to State jobs, was sidetracked and was not brought before the association for adoption. The committee which drafted this resolution was headed by Sam A. Clark of Carrollton, publisher of a Republican paper, who was unsuccessful applicant for appointment to the State Public Service Commission.

ARTHUR BADER IS NAMED TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE

It is the intention to assign the two new Circuit Judges to condemnation proceedings in municipal improvements, in an effort to speed up that work.

Judge Bader served as an Associate City Counselor also under City Counselors Daues, Haid and Senti. Upon the advent of the Miller administration, he resigned. Last year he ran for Circuit Judge, won the Republican nomination and was narrowly defeated at the election. He is married, has two small daughters, and lives at 4117 Palm street. He is a son of Herman Bader, Circuit Clerk for Criminal Causes and long a force in Republican politics.

While he was attending Washington University Law School, Judge Bader played professional baseball and was sold to the Chicago White Sox. In his last minor league game, however, he was struck in the head by a pitched ball, suffering an eye injury that forced him to retire from baseball.

Weinbrenner also is a graduate of Washington University Law School. He received his degree in 1909 and has practiced in St. Louis since. From 1912 to 1920 he served as an assistant Prosecuting Attorney and in 1922, filed for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney, but withdrew just before the primary. He lives at 5861 Washington avenue.

DETECTIVE EXONERATED IN KILLING OF NEGRO

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned today, exonerating Detective James Kiernan, who fatally shot Arthur Allen, 21 years old, a Negro, when he tried to seize the detective's revolver after being arrested at Beaumont street and Franklin avenue Thursday night.

Allen, who died Saturday night at city hospital No. 2, was the sixth Negro killed by police in little more than a year and the third within three weeks.

Taking the stand at the inquest, Kiernan related that he and other detectives arrested Allen when they saw him carrying three overcoats and found three bottles of perfume in his pockets. The property later proved to have been stolen. Kiernan was left with the prisoner in an automobile while the other detectives conducted an investigation nearby.

"Allen and I were sitting in the rear seat when he suddenly reached for my revolver," he said. "I grasped him by the collar and we fell from the machine, my revolver falling out of the holster. I retrieved it and fired three shots to intimidate him, warning him to make no further resistance. He grabbed the barrel of the revolver and I fired again, the bullet striking him in the left chest."

letter that Eyanson had accomplished "far more than we bargained for in the beginning." This meant, he said, that Eyanson had been very successful in interpreting the needs of Connecticut—not only the manufacturing but the agricultural needs—to Senator Bingham.

Contradicts Eyanson.

Hubbard was excused and Edward H. Cooley, business manager of the Massachusetts' Fisheries Association, was called to the stand. He said his office was on the fish pier at Boston, and his association represented 95 per cent of the fishing industry of New England.

Cooley told of the varying fortunes of the duty on filleted fish in the Senate Finance Committee, winding up in a compromise providing a seasonal duty. He went into exhaustive detail regarding a fight between his organization and the Atlantic Coast Fish Corporation, which, having large Canadian interests, wanted a low duty on fish.

In the course of the fight, Cooley said he went to Bingham's office and was "turned over to Eyanson" whose mind he found to be "closed."

Eyanson informed him, he said that "they" had gone into the matter and decided in favor of the Atlantic Coast Corporation. His testimony contradicted that of Eyanson, who had given the committee to understand that he knew nothing about the Atlantic Coast Corporation.

The witness said he was introduced to Eyanson by a former tariff commission expert who told him that Eyanson was Senator Bingham's "righthand man" and very influential in tariff affairs.

Cooley described the Atlantic Coast concern as a member and supporter of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association. He learned this, he said, while he was searching for the source of the opposition to his proposal.

The next witness was Robert C. Buell, an investment banker and treasurer of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, who told briefly of issuing checks to Eyanson for his salary and expenses.

"I think that the work done by Eyanson was worth more than it cost us," said Buell. It was valuable, he added, for the reasons which had been stated to the committee by Hubbard.

Enter "J. Henry."

Hubbard was recalled to the stand. His attention was called to a letter written to him by Senator Bingham, in which the Senator said he would get in touch with him "through J. Henry."

The witness identified "J. Henry" as J. Henry Roraback, Republican National Committeeman for Connecticut.

"The Republican boss of Connecticut?" asked Walsh. "The Republican leader," said the witness.

Hubbard said the letter indicated that Bingham wanted to meet him at Roraback's office in Hartford. The meeting took place in Roraback's office, and it was there that Hubbard and Bingham discussed the sending of Eyanson to Washington. Roraback, he said, took no part in the conference.

"Why on earth didn't Senator Bingham go to your own office?" asked Walsh. The witness said it was probably because it was "more convenient" for the Senator to go to Roraback's office.

"What did J. Henry have to do with this business?" asked Walsh. Hubbard said he didn't think Roraback had anything to do with it.

"A New England Expression."

Questioned by Robinson on the meaning of the phrase, "more than we bargained for," in the letter from Hubbard to Eyanson, the witness said he had merely used a "New England expression."

"There was no thought of any collusion," he protested.

"Then this was merely loose language on your part?" asked Robinson. "Yes, sir," responded Hubbard.

The committee obviously enjoyed this phase of the hearing. Walsh and Blaine took sardonic delight in referring to the Republican Committeeman, when ever they mentioned him, as "J. Henry."

Hubbard declared warmly, in a volunteered statement that the Connecticut Association was an organization of high integrity, seeking to promote the best interests of the State. Caraway cut into his statement with a series of sharp questions about the conference in "J. Henry's" office. "There has been nothng covered up," said the witness.

Caraway asked why Hubbard hadn't come forward earlier and told the public that Eyanson was serving both the Government and the Manufacturers' Association.

Hubbard, sorely harassed, said it hadn't occurred to him to do so. "I approve of what Senator Bingham has done, 100 per cent, and the association is back of him," said Hubbard.

Caraway continued to fire questions, demanding to know whether the witness approved the presence of Eyanson in secret meetings of the Finance Committee. Hubbard said he approved of it "if Senator Bingham thought that was the best way to serve the public interest."

Approves Bingham's Acts.

"You approve of everything that Senator Bingham did," asked Caraway. "I do," said Hubbard.

Caraway asked about the check for $1000 which Bingham sent to Eyanson. The witness said this was a personal matter between Bingham and Eyanson. He assumed the check was an expression of Bingham's gratitude to a man who had "injured his health" in the Senator's service.

Caraway thought it odd that Bingham should have paid Eyanson $1000 for a couple of months' work, after having indicated previously, through his request for the "loan" of an expert, that he wasn't able to employ one.

Robinson asked whether the witness approved the "misrepresentation" on the Senate payroll involved in Eyanson's signing the roll, although paying over his clerk's salary to another man.

Hubbard, driven into a corner by his previous blanket indorsement of Bingham, said that he did. He attempted to explain, but Robinson cut him short.

Robinson repeated his account of the doctoring of the roll and asked: "Do you approve that proceeding?" "I do," said the witness.

"That's all," said Robinson.

OVATION GIVEN FIRST BOAT DOWN CANALIZED OHIO

the dams are laid flat on the riverbed. They are made of concrete wickets of slabs with a brace on the downstream side. When the river is sufficiently high, the braces are lowered, the wickets laid flat and the river permitted to flow as freely as though no dam had ever existed.

The locks are 600 by 110 feet, and the Cincinnati, Greater Pittsburg and Queen City pass through a lock together in 30 minutes.

Canal 99 Years Ago.

It is 99 years since the first canalization on the Ohio was completed. That was a canal around the falls at Louisville, Ky. It was navigated by 800 boats, carrying 76,000 tons.

Movable dams were advocated in 1870, and the first one was begun exactly 50 years ago. It gave Pittsburg a navigable harbor for the first time in the low-water season. In 1910 the present nine-foot, 980-mile project was adopted.

On Oct. 20, 1800, the steamer New Orleans departed from Pittsburg to steam down the winding, hazardous channel, where the Cincinnati today encounters no indication that a bottom oven exists. The 138-foot, 300-ton steamer, first to dare the cruise, reached New Orleans and in its first year made 13 trips, New Orleans to Natchez, and earned $31,200 at expenses of $6906.

History of the River.

This river has its history no less than the Father of Waters. George Washington traveled down the Monongahela and named the site of Pittsburg "The Point." There the French built Fort Duquesne and on Nov. 25, 1758, the British captured it and renamed it Fort Pitt. In 1800 a 110-ton brig built at Marietta, O., sailed down the rivers to New Orleans, thence to Cuba and France and back to Philadelphia.

The first school house in Cincinnati was a rebuilt Ohio flatboat, and on another such boat, on the way to Maysville, the first Kentucky newspaper was set up and published.

And the river has its beauties. The French called it La Belle, not without reason. For miles below Pittsburg the river flows between unbroken lines of great industrial plants. Under the soot it looks like the Des Peres, but 20 miles downstream the water becomes a clear green never found in the Mississippi at St. Louis.

The skies were not exactly smiling until the 90-mile view of factories and smelters ended at Wheeling. From there on the scene inspired wonder that songs about the Ohio could be so inadequate.

Dinner at Pittsburg.

The celebration began with a dinner, attended by five cabinet members, at Pittsburg. A river pageant of 25 steamers in the Pittsburg harbor Friday was watched by 100,000 persons. A special stamp was issued, showing an Ohio River lock and dam.

Thousands of persons gathered near the site of Old Fort Duquesne Saturday to see three depart on the cruise of the completed channel, and it seemed that every whistle in Pittsburg blew them God-speed.

River towns put on their holiday attire of flags and bunting. Hundreds of persons gathered on the banks at every village and thousands at every town. Whistles blew incessantly. Airplanes circled overhead at Aliquippa, Pa., and East Liverpool, O. They were the finishing touch in a comprehensive panorama of modern transportation. Below them lay the parallel lines of river, railroad and highway.

If the river cities have said it with bunting and whistle blowing, they have said it also with barges. Literally dozens of towns have met and saluted Cincinnati.

Twice barges were launched as the steamer passed. At every mile or so was a busy terminal. The celebrants have seen concrete grounds for their celebration—hundreds of tons of Ohio River traffic, saving hundreds of dollars for shippers and consumers.

What is behind SPA GRADE MARKED LUMBER?

THE Southern Pine Association has always stood for the highest principles and practices in manufacturing, marketing and merchandising lumber. The Mills subscribing to the services of this great lumber organization, produce more than three billion feet of southern pine lumber annually. Their grading rules based on American Lumber Standards are universally used and accepted.

The Southern Pine Association Mills have been leaders in the movement to so mark lumber that anyone can instantly identify its grade. Their trade mark S P A is nationally known, and this insignia on lumber is a certification of integrity in grade-marking.

Now in co-operation with the Southern Pine Association the Mississippi Valley Lumber Institute, composed of 43 leading yards in the greater St. Louis area, have adopted a program of grade-marking all Southern Pine which they sell. Each yard grade-marks its own lumber and imprints this SPA-1 COM.-MV-10 or a similar symbol on it. The Southern Pine Association fully alive to the responsibility they are thus assuming, are ever on the alert to prevent abuses of this privilege and employ their own corps of expert inspectors to check the grade-marking of each yard regularly.

Specify S P A grade-marked lumber, it is backed by the prestige of the Southern Pine Association, a great service institution.

SENATORS REED, ROBINSON, TO GO TO ARMS PARLEY

Pennsylvanian and Arkansan Have Accepted Appointments by Hoover, Stimson Announces.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Secretary of State Stimson announced today on behalf of President Hoover that Senators David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, have accepted posts as members of the American delegation to the London arms parley in January.

Stimson said Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had been asked by President Hoover to serve on the American commission but had found it impossible to accept.

It is possible, Stimson added, that the selection of the other members of the American delegation, which is expected to comprise five or six men, will be deferred until more is known of the general situation to be expected at the discussions.

Commenting on the forthcoming arrival here of the Japanese delegation to the London conference, Stimson said he had informed the Tokio Government he would be glad to confer with its delegates in Washington before it proceeded to London.

The Secretary explained the reason for their trip to London, by way of the American continent, was due to delays on the trans-Siberian Railway on account of the Chinese-Soviet difficulties in Manchuria.

While the choice of Senator Robinson was regarded as entirely logical, word that Reed was to be a member of the Commission was received with surprise. It is understood, however, that the President's selections were made after extended conferences with Borah and Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader.

Robinson is a member of both the Foreign Relations and Naval Committees, leader of his party in the Senate and was the Democratic nominee for the vice presidency last year.

Both Robinson and Reed advocated and voted for the 15-cruiser bill which was passed last year and each urged the ratification of the Kellogg treaty for renunication of war. Both are considered able debaters, qualifications which will come into play if a naval limitation treaty is brought before the Senate for ratification.

It is believed that Mr. Hoover passed up Senator Watson as a prospective member of the delegation through a desire that he remain in Washington during the regular session of Congress and stick to his job of Republican leader in the Senate. Another consideration is believed to have been the fact that Watson, through active membership in the Finance and Interstate Commerce Committees, has been more associated with domestic than foreign affairs.

BEARS AND BILLIKENS START PREPARATIONS FOR DRURY AND LOYOLA

FRIEDMAN, NEW END, STARRED IN GAME AGAINST GRINNELL; ST. LOUIS LINE PLAYED WELL

By Henry L. Freund

The Washington University Bears will play their second and last night football game of the season Saturday at Francis Field when they engage the Drury College eleven. The Drury game will give Dr. Sharpe an opportunity to experiment with new plays as it will be the last of the so-called "easy games."

Following Drury, Carnegie Tech, Missouri, Kansas and St. Louis universities will be met in rapid succession. There four games constitute the hardest November series ever scheduled by Washington University.

If the Bears are to make a creditable showing in the remaining battles of the season, Dr. Sharpe will have to develop a scoring punch. The Bears in the scoreless tie against Grinnell last Saturday showed a strong offense, plowing through the Grinnell outfit for 14 first downs as against but six for the Iowans. Twice the Bears, that is, Sauselle and Waid, for these two ball carriers were the whole offense, made long drives down the field only to be stopped when within scoring distance.

The entire squad emerged from the contest in fine shape. This was due to the soft field and to the fact that the game was very cleanly played, penalties being inflicted only for offsides and but once for holding. Bert Springer, quarterback, suffered a sore ankle, which was badly swollen after the game. It is not expected to keep him out of the practice sessions this week. Springer made one long run during the game against the Pioneers and it was on that play that his ankle was hurt.

The practice this afternoon will be the customary light workout. The various members of the Bear coaching staff who were busy this past week-end will make detailed reports on the teams scouted. Coach Davis witnessed the tie game at Pittsburg between Carnegie Tech and Washington and Jefferson; Line Coach Gale Bullman saw the Missouri-Drake game at Columbia; Cecil Drake, assistant freshmen coach, watched the defeat of Drury College by Westminster, and Ralph Kurz, varsity end coach, was an interested spectator at the St. Louis U.-Oglethorpe affair.

The work of Bert Friedman, at end, was pleasing. The newcomer played a sound game and was taken out because of exhaustion. Friedman has been out for football but one week and therefore is not in as good condition as the other members of thes quad. George Coover played the entire game, although handicapped in making quick shifts by a weak ankle.

Purple Tackle Loses 15 Pounds In Gopher Game

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.

THE task of attempting to halt the vicious assaults of Minnesota's backfield Saturday was a wearing one for Northwestern's line, especially the tackles.

Marvil, who started at right tackle, lost 15 pounds before he was succeeded by Haug, who later gave way to Engebritsen. Riley, left tackle, shed 10 pounds but remained in action throughout the contest.

Loyola Eleven Owns Good Record; Muellerleile to Return to Squad

By Glen McDonald

With one victory, the result of its 6-0 conquest of Oglethorpe University last Saturday at Sportsman's Park, the St. Louis University football team will begin today to prepare for its annual game with Loyola University of Chicago, next Saturday at the Windy City. It will be a part of the dedication ceremonies of the new Loyola Stadium on Sheridan road.

Loyola's record so far is a good one. The Ramblers opened the season with a victory over Oklahoma City University. They defeated Coe College a week later at Chicago and then journeyed to Pittsburg last Saturday where they dropped a 7-6 decision to Duquesne University. The last named game was probably the best they played as Duquesne earlier held West Virginia to a 7-7 tie.

Freshman Coach "Peaches" Browning scouted the Loyola-Coe game a week ago and reported that the Chicagoans have a fast outfit. He especially noted the work of Nolan and Weimer at the ends and Walsh and Moran at the tackles. The Loyola backfield, however, is not above the average and lacks a scoring punch.

The Billikens played good and bad football in Saturday's game. They displayed their old weakness on defense against the forward pass, Oglethorpe making a total of 143 yards on forward passes to the home team's 120 yards, although the locals completed twice as many passes as the visitors.

The big Billiken line however made up for any weakness shown by the backfield on the defensive. Titus Cornell at left tackle continued to play a spectacular brand of football. Max Newton who replaced Ed Brown at right guard early in the game was in on almost every play.

The Billikens displayed a good passing attack and came through several times for short, but necessary gains on the fourth down. The passes were thrown by Joe Abrahams, who replaced Eaton in the first quarter.

The entire squad came through the game without an injury. Charley McKinney was pretty badly shaken up and will have to take it easy for the next few days. Saul Naidorf, substitute quarterback, who received a broken nose in scrimmage last week will work out with the team again today and will use an especially made head guard for the remainder of the season. Cecil Muellerliele, 195-pound sophomore center, will be back in uniform following a week's layoff due to illness.

The Billiken authorities have received permission from the athletic office of Washington University for the use of the Francis Field for a night game with Coe College, Nov. 2. Whether or not a night game will be played depends on the consent of the visiting team.

MARS CASSIDY, RACE STARTER, DIES IN EAST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Mars Cassidy, the man who had started 50,000 races to provide thrills for thousands, died yesterday at his home in Hollis, Queens. He was 67.

Only last Wednesday, on the losing day of the Jamaica meeting, he stood in the starter's box sending the fields away and looking no older than 50 at the most, up to the last race, when feeling ill, he turned the job over to his son, George. It was his good-by to racing, a sport he loved and with which he had been closely associated 40 years.

Bladder trouble and ulcers of the stomach which led to hemorrhages were the immediate causes of his death. He was ailing for three years and was forced to give up his duties from time to time, but flatly refused to retire, always insisting his eye was as keen and his hand as steady as when he first took up the flag 30 odd years ago.

Funeral services will be tomorrow. He is survived by three sons, Wendell, Marshall and George. The last named was an assistant to his father and an associate starter of the Jockey Club. Marshall, his second son, is counted one of the best starters in the country.

Was Born in Maryland.

Mars Cassidy was born at Edgerton, Md., in 1862, and grew up with horses. He turned to starting when a young man, but first attracted attention in 1903 by his brilliant work in getting the horses off at a meeting at the old Bennings track near Washington. The attention of the late August Belmont was called to his handling of the flag and in 1904 he was engaged by the jockey club here to alternate at different meetings with Chris Fitzgerald, who had been the regular starter over tracks in this state 10 years. Later, when Fitzgerald resigned to take over the duties of president of the Brighton Beach Racing Association, Cassidy was named as starter for all tracks in this district—a position he held except for a meeting or two until his death.

In 1906, A. B. Dade was engaged for the meeting at Brighton Beach on the ground that the work of Cassidy was not satisfactory to the owners of the track, but the stewards of the Jockey Club, convinced of his native honesty and absolute fearlessness, never lost faith in him and not only gave him almost unlimited power, but were loyal to him to the end in the face, from time to time, of much bitter criticism.

Introduced Walk-Up Start.

No breath of scandal ever was attached to his name. Autocratic by nature, he prided himself on his great physical strength, while his boldness and courage in the face of almost mob violence at times became a byword. When stormed by hisses and boos for bad starts which were bound to come from time to time, he would walk back along the rail to his place in the judges' stand with a smile on his face and as unconcerned as if cheers were in his ears.

Cassidy was the first man to introduce the walk-up start, and on that he founded his reputation as one of the best starters in the history of the turf. He was supreme at the barrier and knew intimately all the great jockeys of the past 30 years.

Off the track he was a genial companion and entertaining character. His chief hobbies were hunting behind dogs and breeding game chickens.

Wray's Column

Improving.

RESULTS of Saturday's football games indicate that the two St. Louis university elevens are at least on the upgrade. Also, they point out that Washington University may not be a mere deuce spot, in the annual Thanksgiving day struggle between the two institutions.

Despite the hampering mud, Al Sharpe's Bears outplayed Grinnell, which had defeated Marquette the previous Saturday. Marquette usually has a team of "hard boys" who know their onions. Washington did not gain a score victory over the Grinnell eleven but the running story clearly shows the superiority of the local eleven.

St. Louis U.'s conquest of Oglethorpe was a still greater achievement, for the Atlanta eleven had proved its merit previously by defeating the strong Georgia University team. On comparative scores made by Georgia, Oglethorpe, Yale and St. Louis University, the St. Louis University eleven figures 27 points better than Yale—at which, of course, you are privileged to cachinate.

They laughed at Eddie Cochem's team, more than 20 years ago, until the Billikens rolled Iowa, Nebraska and other standouts into defeat. We know from the St. Louis University scores that it is going to take a real Washington eleven to hold the Billikens, next month.

Both elevens are coming nicely, however, and there seems little doubt that there will be something besides a walkover on display when the two elevens clash.

* * *

In the meantime there is another Washington-St. Louis battle in the making which will be still more interesting to fans who are concerned with the future, as well as with the present. It is the football game at night between the freshman squads of the two universities.

This will reveal the outlook at the two institutions for next year. If the whispering campaign about the Billiken yearlings means anything, it will take a great varsity team to beat the St. Louis U. freshmen.

* * *

Reads Like a Riot.

COMPARATIVE scores cause a lot of grief, but they do not always tell a correct story. If they did, the annual encounter between Washington and Missouri would be a riot of touchdowns, with Tiger backs crossing the goal line at will. Drake, for example, defeated Washington 20—0 and Missouri defeated Drake by the same score. The Tigers therefore figure 40 points better than the Bears.

But try to prove it, in a game.

It recalls that most amazing upset of several years ago, when Washington, after having been beaten by Oklahoma something like 80 points, turned around and defeated the near-champion Missouri eleven.

Scores tell something—but don't make any rash bets on the strength of them.

Roosevelt Plays Cleveland; Soldan Opposes Central in High School League Openers

By Harold Tuthill

Four football machines representing Soldan, Roosevelt, Cleveland and Central will officially open the City High School League season Saturday with a doubleheader at the Public Schools Stadium. Roosevelt and Cleveland are the first teams to compete, beginning at 1 p. m. Soldan plays Central in the second game, starting at 3 o'clock. Beaumont meets McBride, in an inter-league game Friday at the Stadium.

The various coaches view the approaching campaign with considerable trepidation, since the performances of the schools have fluctuated during the practice season. Roosevelt is a noteworthy example in that it rose from a mediocre eleven, which bowed to Principia Junior College to a championship team which smothered St. Louis University High, within a week.

Whatever caused the Roosevelt reversal is unknown, but Cleveland will have a difficult task stopping the running of Bill Hundhausen, Gorman Broe, Kenneth Koerner and Jack Barnes. Roosevelt and Cleveland are traditional rivals and fans of one school would rather win from the other than win the league title.

Coach Lee R. Carson was pessimistic about the showing of his team in the current race until the Rough Riders erupted with 33 points to subdue the Junior Billikens last week. Until that time Roosevelt owned a 6 to 0 victory over Western Military Academy and a 12 to 2 defeat by Principia.

Barnes Expected to Play.

Although Jack Barnes has been unable to play in most of the practice games, it is expected that the big fullback will be in the Roosevelt lineup. His presence will solve the problem of a capable kicker, the absence of which has hurt the team.

If quantity of games counts for anything, Cleveland should fight hard for the pennant, since it has met five schools and vanquished three of them. The Carondelet squad lost to Principia, 7 to 0, and tied Litchfield, 13 to 13. Coach Bert Fenenga had to give his team plenty of competition since there was a lack of experienced material at the opening of the season.

Cleveland has exhibited the greatest scoring punch of any of the schools, counting 90 points against 20 for the opposition. This is different from last year's team which had only 51 points when the league season began.

The development of the backfield, consisting of Earl Jansen, Capt. Ken Bieber, George Kettrer and Mike Cianciola, has added materially in elevating Cleveland's rating. Fenenga's line is always expected to be good, so that it would not be amiss to state that the team may come through with flying colors.

The situation at Central is rather unfortunate. Coach Paul H. Conant has to work with a limited-sized squad on a field five or six blocks from school. Despite these adverse conditions, Conant hopes that his team improves sufficiently to redeem its poor pre-season record. The Mid-Cityans have not won a game in four attempts, although they did tie with McBride, 6 to 6.

On a basis of comparative scores, Soldan should defeat Central by two touchdowns, as the West End School humbled McBride, 12 to 0.

To those advocates who believe that all that is necessary to defeat Soldan is to stop Cook, it may be pointed out that in winning four games, the Soldan team was not scored upon, which would indicate that the line is not a weak one.

In addition, Coach James F. Cook discourages the advancing of the ball by his son Dave. The explanation of Dave's numerous touchdowns is that in a broken field nothing can stop him. A new running mate to Cook has been found in Hartnett, who assisted in the downfall of Principia last Saturday.

MANION SHOOTS 67 FOR RECORD AT NORTH HILLS

By W. J. McGoogan

Dick Bockenkamp, Midland Valley, won the North Hills Invitation Golf tournament with a score of 142, 18 holes being played over the North Hills west course yesterday morning and 18 over the east course in the afternoon. Bockenkamp had 72, one over par on the west course, and 70, one under par on the east course.

Although he had a good lead after the morning round, Bockenkamp needed his 70 in the afternoon, for Jim Manion, St. Louis open champion of Normandie, after a rather poor 79 in the morning, came back in the afternoon with an east course record of 67 for a total of 146 to tie with three others for second place.

Lester Slattery, Crystal Lake, had 71-75 for 146; Chester O'Brien, Westborough, had the same, as did Bryan Winter of North Hills. Second and third prizes were divided between the four.

Bill Medart of North Hills was only one stroke out of the money with a 72-75—147, while the next low score was 150, turned in by Chris Kenney of Sunset Hill.

A field of more than 50 golfers competed and both courses were in splendid condition despite the rain of Saturday night.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.

Barney Abel, owner of "Seal" Harris, 22-year-old giant Negro boxer, so far as his ring activities are concerned, offered to dispose of Harris' contract today at $4 a pound, or for a total of $900.

Harris, rated as a capable boxer, weighs 225 pounds and stretches 6 feet 3½ inches in the air. Abel plucked him off a coal wagon three years ago.

Abel's reason for wishing to dispose of him is because he found it difficult to get matches for a Negro among the present-day crop of heavyweights.

ST. LOUIS POLO FOUR LOSES TO KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—Starting at the half way mark with the score 5-4 against them, although having played an aggressive, ... battle, the St. Louis Country Club Polo four ... n into a long series of misfortunes, and when the smoke of battle had blown away it was found that the Kansas City Country Club team had won by a score of 10 to 4.

There seemingly was little difference in the play of the two teams on the field in the second half. But ... the goals it was a different story. St. Louis could not get the ball through the goals. Many beautiful tries missed by close margins.

Accurate polo at all times was out of the question, due to the fact that the field was wet and muddy after recent rains. Players on both teams disregarded the danger of the muddy field, however, giving many an extra thrill to the spectators.

Baylor at Head Of 32 Unbeaten Football Teams

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The national list of unbeaten and untied college football teams had dwindled to thirty-odd today with the rampaging Bears of Baylor showing the way to all the rest.

The Bears have rolled up 213 points in compiling a record of five successive victories but the heaviest scoring unbeaten team in the country is Dartmouth, which has piled up 222 points in four games while holding the opposition scoreless. Only four other teams can boast of uncrossed goal lines—Fordham, Texas, Utah and Missouri.

Records of the major undefeated and untied teams follow:

Davenport led the Mississippi Valley League in attendance the past season with 42,193 paid admissions.

Drake Opposes Grinnell Eleven In M. V. Feature

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 21.—For the second successive year the Missouri Valley Conference football title is due to land in the lap of one of that circuit's two Iowa members. Which of them shall claim it will be definitely decided Saturday night at Des Moines in one of the State's annual "grudge" battles, featuring Drake and Grinnell.

The Bulldogs now have very nearly a strangle hold on the title they already hold, having won their first two conference games.

Grinnell, Saturday, in battling Washington University to a scoreless tie, however, was prevented from trying its most effective weapon of attack, the forward pass, due to a heavy rain. Given a dry field, its star tosser, Ruff, may be able to flip enough of them into the hands of his backs and ends to outscore the Bulldogs.

On paper, however, it seems unlikely that Grinnell will be able to ward off the hard-plunging Nesbitt and Van Koten or stop the shifty, speedy King, who now leads the Valley circuit in individual scoring with 26 points in conference games and 20 in non-conference contests.

The rest of the week-end slate is taken up with non-conference battles on the home fields of the Valley participants. Creighton at Omaha plays host to Haskell, Oklahoma A. and M. at Stillwater entertains West Virginia.

George "Pep" Young, who managed the Burlington team of the Mississippi Valley League the past season, will again pilot the Bees in 1930.

MADISONS

LOCAL LEADERS HAVE NOT BEEN TALLIED UPON IN TWO GAMES

By James M. Gould

With their goal-line still uncrossed this season, the Madisons, after two games are holding a two-point lead over their rival members of the St. Louis Soccer League. They added a pair of points to their total at Sportsman's Park, yesterday, when before 1500 fans, they defeated the Tablers, 2-0, in the second part of the usual Sunday double-bill. In the first game, played by the Millers and the Hellrungs, there was some doubt as to just what the real score was but the final decision was that it was a 2-2 tie, a goal shot by Ballom of the Millers being nullified because it was scored after the final whistle.

The Madisons now have four points and the Millers, having two tie games, follow with two. The Tablers and Hellrungs are credited with one point each.

Though not billed as the feature, there was much more excitement in the opening game. After 12 minutes of play, Ahrens scored for the Hellrungs and his team held that advantage until after 12 minutes of the second period when Nash tied it up. Play was even in the last half of this contest. Some Hellrung chances were missed because Tate Brady's men seemed to think no one but Ahrens should be given a shot at the Miller net. Both teams, with the score tied, abandoned the short-passing style and went for the useless long kicks which mean so little in a soccer game. Hamm, the Miller goalie made a fine stop of a shot by Rudge with about five minutes left of play but, a minute later, a cross from O'Shaughnessy to Rudge gave that clever kicker another chance and this time he made good.

Referee Loses Decision.

With two minutes to go, Ballom scored on a long shot. Right here, Referee Mossman gave a very vacillating exhibition and, momentarily, lost control of the players and the game. He whistled a foul on Ballom's shot but, after a protest on the part of the Millers, finally put the decision up to Linesman Zarschel who reversed the verdict and the goal was allowed. Then, followed Ballom's shot not allowed because the whistle had blown.

The second game with the Madisons and Tablers engaged was a much tamer affair. Eddie Hansen, regarded last year as one of the best outside men to be developed here in several years, and, because of sickness thought "out of it" for the season, appeared on the Madison flank and played a clever game throughout the first half. Hennessy relieved him after the interval.

In this game, the Madisons started briskly, rushed to the Tabler goal and were stopped by some nice work by the fullback pair of Dorley and McGirl with the active co-operation of Goalie Dueker. A Tabler march at the 10-minute point was stopped by Joe Hand. At this stage of the game, the veteran Harry Ratican did some clever work with his accurate kicks but the shots which followed his placings were wide. The Madisons nearly scored on two successive corners and Hansen missed by inches at the 20-minute mark. Hesitation by Grennon cost the Madisons a goal, but, with only two minutes of the first half remaining, Dueker was decoyed out of the Tabler goal and his clearing kick went to Grennon, who, with no one in the Tabler uprights, rolled the ball through for a goal.

Worden Puts in Score.

In the second half, Cronin missed a tieing goal when his hard shot hit the Madison post after six minutes of play. The ball see-sawed from one team to the other for most of this period, the Madisons playing on the defensive for most of the second part of it. A rush by the Madison, after 24 minutes had elapsed, gave Hennessy a chance to cross to Worden. The cross was perfect and Dueker had no chance to clear Worden's well-booted goal.

With two goals to the good, the Madisons then settled back to protect their lead and succeeded in doing so.

LOYOLA

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.

Barney Abel, owner of "Seal" Harris, 22-year-old giant Negro boxer, so far as his ring activities are concerned, offered to dispose of Harris' contract today at $4 a pound, or for a total of $900.

Harris, rated as a capable boxer, weighs 225 pounds and stretches 6 feet 3½ inches in the air. Abel plucked him off a coal wagon three years ago.

Abel's reason for wishing to dispose of him is because he found it difficult to get matches for a Negro among the present-day crop of heavyweights.

ST. LOUIS POLO FOUR LOSES TO KANSAS CITY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—Starting at the half way mark with the score 5-4 against them, after having played an aggressive, even battle, the St. Louis Country Club Polo four n into a long series of misfortunes, and when the smoke of battle had blown away it was found that the Kansas City Country Club team had won by a score of 10 to 4.

There seemingly was little difference in the play of the two teams in the field in the second half. But at the goals it was a different story. St. Louis could not get the ball through the goals. Many beautiful tries missed by close margins.

Accurate polo at all times was out of the question, due to the fact that the field was wet and muddy after recent rains. Players on both teams disregarded the danger of the muddy field, however, giving many an extra thrill to the spectators.

The game was played from scratch, both teams having the same handicap ratings, nationally.

Ghost Stories.

THOSE writing players help a lot—
They put us wise to this and that,
But in a series like as not
The pen is mightier than the bat.

Undying epics may be writ,
When in their hand a pen they take;
Their stories often make a hit,
But that's the only one they make.

So oftentimes a batting champ
Is forced to spring an abili;
Because he finds that writers' cramp
Has settled in his batting eye.

Fair Enough.

See where the New York Giants want Hughie Critz. Of course they do. Probably want to trade him to Boston.

Incidentally they have sold Andy Cohen, successor to Rogers Hornsby to Newark. So after all they may want Hughie to fill Andy's shoes.

After what happened to Hornsby in New York we have ceased trying to fathom the workings of a master mind.

However, as Dan Howley will have no more use for a ball player of the calibre of Critz than a starving Armenian would have for a square meal he would probably be willing to trade Hughie to the Giants for Jackson and Lindstrom.

Coach Anderson of the Billikens is going to emulate the Rockne system of using two teams in football games. It would work fine if he could use 'em both at once.

Blewaway moved, fast from the start, crossed over a trifle at first turn, made the pace under restraint to stretch and shaken up in stretch held Maiden's Choice safe. Latter, never far back moved up menacily after reaching stretch, but falterred badly in final sixteenth. Finnic raced forwardly and had no mishap. Happy Hanly showed a fair effort. Gotham almost fell at the first turn, raced wide to stretch then closed some ground on inside. Baby Delhi had no mishap.

$2 mutuels paid: Blewaway, win $7.46, place $4.36, show $3.18; Maiden's Choice, place $5.36, show $4.08; Finnic, show $9.14.

Lady Fingers, going in her best form, and having fine speed in the going, forced the early pace under steady restraint, headed Wicker with a rush in stretch, but weakened and just managed to save the lead. Wicker began fast, saved ground, appeared through when headed, but came again gamely near end. Star Lassie began slowly and raced wide. Rich Widow had no mishap. Margaret Scott had no excuse and showed a dull effort. Zircon met interference.

NEW FAIRMOUNT OWNERS BROKE EVEN ON MEETING

By Melvin D. Fulcher

The Fairmount race meet which closed Saturday after 14 days of racing did not make any money for the new owners of that racing plant, according to General Manager Robert S. Eddy. This, it is said, was caused by the unfavorable weather of the first seven days which were cold and rainy with the track in bad shape.

Dates for the racing next year will be announced soon, Eddy said.

Considerable discussion has been aroused as to the length of the racing session next season and it is regarded as highly probable that the entire 51 days allowed by law in Illinois will be run off in one meeting instead of in two meets as has been the rule heretofore. As to when this long session will open is conjectural at this time, but it is thought that a majority of the directors are in favor of opening not later than Memorial day. Others, it is reported, are in favor of opening July 4 and racing until Labor day, thus taking in the mid-summer season.

There was a general scattering of horsemen, officials and jockeys after the racing closed. Presiding Steward John T. Ireland went to his home in Kentucky, where he will remain until Jefferson Park meeting at New Orleans opens, where he will again officiate in the steward's stand, later going to Miami. A number of the horsemen are preparing to ship to Arlington, Tex., where racing starts Nov. 6 and which meeting of 10 days' duration will break the gap between now and the opening of the winter tracks. Others shipped to Latonia, including the stable of the Anderson brothers with Le Flore, Senator Seth and other horses. Some owners shipped to Jefferson Park, where they will rest their charges until racing starts there, Thanksgiving day.

General Manager Eddy will remain here until about Nov. 1 to wind up all matters of business pertaining to the meeting just closed, and making some arrangements for next season as well.

Leading owners at Fairmount were Charles Irby $4150, C. Morris $3550, B. B. Rice $3094.50, Paradise Stock Farm Stable $2645, P. O. Anderson $2244, W. C. Reichert $2214, William Cain $2050, S. H. Lee $1900, G. F. Jenkins $1709, J. H. Edwards $2050, Ed McCuan $1620, E. E. Watson $1500, J. G. Demarest $1800, O. Viau $1325, G. W. Ogle $1325, P. L. Lycan $1325, H. W. Miller $1665.

It is noticeable that owners who have in the past been very prominent in the amount of money won by their horses at Fairmount were not so high on the list at this meeting. These include William Cain, Ed McCuan and E. E. Watson. Irby's main winner at the meeting was the racer Russell Gardner, which won three straight races. The main money winner for the Rice stable was Theo Rochester. Torch was the best horse at the meeting for the Reichert stable and Frank D. was S. H. Lee's dependance.

A total of 42 per cent of the favorites in the 102 racers ran at the meeting were successful, which is a high average, 38 per cent being considered a normal showing. There were 43 winning favorites and 59 losing ones.

The Reichert brothers continued their success with Brown Wisdom when that racer won the Autumn Handicap at Latonia Saturday, running six furlongs in 1:11 and carrying 121 pounds. My Dandy, a stable mate, was fourth after quite an absence from the races and saved his nomination and starting fee.

CHICAGO BEARS AND CARDS PLAY SCORELESS TIE BEFORE 20,000

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Chicago's representatives in the National Professional Football League, the Bears and the Cardinals, fought to a scoreless tie yesterday before 20,000 spectators. The Cardinals with Ernie Nevers and Mickey McDonald doing most of the work, outgained the Bears, who depended on Red Grange, Joe Sternaman and Paddy Discoll, but progressed no nearer than the Bear 12-yard line. The punting of Walter Holmer helped the Bears out of several holes.

MILLER TO BE FETED BY HOME TOWN FANS

VINTON, Ia., Oct. 21.—Hometown folks today welcomed home the man who just a week ago made the $50,000 hit for the Philadelphia Athletics in the world series.

Edmund J. (Bing) Miller was home to attend a banquet arranged by his schoolday neighbors. Born and reared on a farm near here, he first starred as a pitcher on the old Vinton Cinders semi-pro club. With his brother, Eugene, who received his tosses, Bing lost only one game in the two years while playing for Vinton.

Ripon at Minnesota.
Wabash at Northwestern.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21. — Ohio State, doped as a dark horse in the Big Ten conference football race, at the opening of the season, upset the dope again last Saturday by handing Michigan a 7 to 0 defeat. As a result, the Buckeyes went into a commanding lead in the gridiron campaign, having two games to their credit with no defeats.

Minnesota entered the race by defeating Northwestern, 26 to 14, while Illinois' initial game resulted in a 7 to 7 tie with Iowa.

In non-conference games, Wisconsin fell before Notre Dame by a 19 to 0 count; Colgate walloped Indiana, 21 to 6; Purdue won over De Pauw, 26 to 7, while Chicago grabbed a double-header, winning over Indiana State Normal 18 to 0 and Ripon 10 to 0.

Based on the showing already made, Ohio State has an excellent chance at the championship this season.

The Buckeyes, coached by Sam Willaman, who is making his debut in the Big Ten conference this fall, won over Iowa at the start of the season by a 7 to 6 score; and, with Michigan out of the way, will have things fairly easy until the final game of the season when they meet Illinois.

Ohio Meets Indiana.

This week-end Ohio State clashes with Indiana at Columbus with the Buckeyes having the best of the argument. Following the Indiana game, Ohio State has a non-conference game and then tackles Northwestern. Indiana and Northwestern are not considered as strong as Ohio State, hence Illinois, champions the last two seasons, will likely be the only hard barrier remaining on the Buckeye schedule.

Michigan will be compelled to display a better brand of ball than it has shown so far this season, if the Wolverines expect to defeat Illinois at Champaign Saturday. They have been crippled so far this season by several regulars being on the side lines due to injuries, hence with the return of these players Michigan should be somewhat stronger.

Illinois' team is composed mostly of veterans and Zuppke's offensive should be working smoothly by the time the Michigan game is called.

The Iowa-Wisconsin game at Madison should develop into a bitter struggle, with the outcome in doubt until the closing minutes of play. The two teams appear about evenly matched. The same holds true of the Chicago-Purdue game to be played at Chicago.

In nonconference tilts, Minnesota should have little trouble in defeating Ripon while Wabash will have a hard time to keep Northwestern from running up a large score.

Proves Successful Day

THE total of points scored by the Billikens of St. Louis and the Bears of Washington in Saturday games was but six, and yet the day was the most successful of the season for both elevens. The six points scored by the Billikens was just that many more than Oglethorpe could score and as many as Georgia could score against those same Petrels. The Bears failed to score, but in so doing, equalled the effort of the Grinnell Pioneers. The records of both Oglethorpe and Grinnell, in earlier games, were so impressive that both opponents of the local universities were natural favorites to win.

In both cases, however, said opponents were completely outplayed despite the closeness of the scores. With a bit more luck, St. Louis U. might have totaled three touchdowns; at Grinnell, the slightly-heavier Bears, unawed by the Pioneer defeat of the strong Marquette team the week before, "played their game" in the mud and muck of a soaked gridiron and showed a real superiority over their Iowa fellow-members of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Bears Play Drury Here

The Billikens are in Chicago this week-end to play Loyola. After a diet of Davis-Elkins, Georgetown and Oglethorpe, Loyola might appear in the light of easier competition. As a matter of fact, the Chicago school is represented by a hustling combination which has shown well and overconfidence on the part of the Missourians will be fatal.

Washington should win handily over Drury in the second and final night game of the Francis Field varsity schedule. The Bears' backfield has been working well all season and now that the line seems to have found itself Coach Sharpe's team should move briskly. And, it must move briskly, as after Drury come Carnegie Tech, Missouri, Kansas and St. Louis—four football mouthfuls for any team to try to digest.

Soldan Early Favorite

THIS coming Saturday will see the start of the High School League competition. Preliminary games and the results thereof would seem to make Soldan a heavy favorite but coaches of Cleveland, Central, Roosevelt and Beaumont are devising plans of defense which have for their culmination the stopping of Dave Cook, Soldan's outstanding star. Coach Jimmy's husky son, some say, IS the Soldan team. Hence, the cry in other schools, "Stop Cook."

The Billikens have scored in two of their three games; Washington has counted in one of its three. Yet, the Bears show better on the basis of points scored for and against with 34 for them and 27 for their opponents. The St. Louis team has scored 19 points against their opponents' 35 and had harder opposition to meet, though Drake and Grinnell cannot be classed as easy by any means.

Harvard Has Something

OBSERVERS in the East have predicted and still are predicting a banner year for Arnold Horween and his Crimson cohorts at Harvard. That the Cambridge eleven "has something" was shown in the game with the Army when Harvard fought so hard as to overcome a West Point lead and tie the count, with but a minute to play. Football fans are alike in all sections for, aware of Harvard's 1929 power, 57,000 followers—the largest crowd ever to watch a contest in the Harvard Stadium, turned out to see the battle.

Harvard always has been a tough foe for West Point. Going back to the Cadets' season of 1901, this writer remembers that, in that year, Army tied Yale and Princeton, defeated Pennsylvania 24—0 and the Navy, 11—0, but were beaten by Harvard, 6—0, when Kernan ran for a touchdown in the last 40 seconds of play.

You hardly ever can tell in this game called football. A week ago, Yale was beaten by Georgia and Brown defeated Princeton. An unexpected wallop like that handed Yale might well have hurt the morale of the Blue. Instead, it apparently taught the danger of over-confidence and made Eli a better team as evidenced by the impressive though close victory over Brown, Princeton's conqueror. Also, the passing game having failed against Georgia, Coach Mal Stevens ordered "straight" football and with Booth, the lightest man on either team, carrying the ball, Yale rushed to two touchdowns. Adaptability means as much to an attack as weight and power.

PHIL PITCHER TWIRLS TWO SHUTOUT GAMES AND FANS 23 BATTERS

PARIS, Mo., Oct. 21.—Sam Dailey, Ph. delphia National League pitcher, a native of Monroe County, pitched two games for the Paris Maroons here yesterday afternoon against Mexico, holding the visitors to a 1-to-0 score in the first game and 3-0 in the second. Dailey pitched the entire 18 innings. He struck out 23 men, while three Mexico pitchers struck out only 12. Paris got 17 hits and Mexico only seven in both games. Dailey had errorless support.

Strong Team's Mistakes and Not Weak Defense Aid Weak Ones to Score, Warner Says

By Glenn S. Warner,
Member All-America Football Board.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office).

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 21.—I have been alluded to by football critics as being primarily an offensive coach. That reputation might be merited as well as the general opinion that I have not shown any great ability as a defensive coach from the fact that most teams I have coached have been scored on rather freely even when they have outclassed their opponents offensively. Being scored upon, however, does not necessarily prove that a team is weak defensively—scores against a stronger team are very likely to be made not because of the stronger team's weakness upon the defense, but because of mistakes they make upon the offense and the number of mistakes so made depends largely upon the style of offense used and how many rather intricate plays are attempted.

Touchdowns or opportunities for scoring them by opponents may result from fumbles and intercepted forward and lateral passes and it stands to reason that a team which takes desperate chances and uses plays where there is a great deal of passing from one player to another, double passes, triple passes, forward passes and lateral passes is going to make more mistakes and be scored upon more often than a team which plays a conservative style of game and takes no chances and plays simple, easily executed plays.

WARNER

I admit that I like to teach a rather intricate and deceptive style of attack in which there are a lot of double and triple passes as well as some nifty lateral and forward passes—in other words I have been an advocate of taking chances and the result has naturally been that quite a number of scores have been made by opponents who have cashed in on errors and mistakes of the offensive team.

Cites a Few Cases.

I can recall two games in recent years which Stanford lost to teams which did not gain a single first down on running plays in both of which games Stanford gained a large number of first downs and plenty of yardage. Both these were early season games. I am citing my own experience to show that it is not always a weak defense which loses games or permits opponents to score but that rather often it is the mistakes a team makes on the offense which results disastrously.

This is the reason we hear so many coaches and critics repeating that old slogan, "Kick and play for the breaks." Although I side in with those coaches who believe that a "good offense is the best defense," and who stress offensive plays, rushing the ball at every opportunity. Kicking and putting the burden of rushing the ball on the other fellow may work well in the early season when the plays are ragged and the ball handling is crude but the team which works up a good offense will beat the defensive kicking team every time later in the season when that offense is smoothed out so that few mistakes are made—and how are those plays going to get smoothed out unless a team takes chances in the early season and becomes by experience adept in their use.

Will Not Be Fruitful.

It is natural that a coach who does not have creative and inventive ability enough to map out and teach his team an effective and workable set of plays will fall back upon the easier and simpler plan of developing a good kicking game and trying to stop the other fellow. Those coaches have about as much chance to win their big games as a prizefighter does who simply aims to block his opponent's blows but never strikes a blow himself. He may not get hurt much, but neither is he likely to overcome his opponent.

Kicking and playing for the breaks is not going to be so fruitful of good results since the new fumble rule has come into operation because one great menace to the team rushing the ball had been removed in that no longer can a defensive player pick up a fumbled ball and scamper unhampered across the offensive team goal line. The defensive player may recover a fumble near the opponent's goal line in a favorable position to score, but it will take a good offense to put the ball over for that score. With this menace removed from this team carrying the ball we will not see the ball punted out of a team's territory on first and second downs so much as that has been done in the past and more teams will rush the ball to third and fourth down in their own territory. This will improve the game because offensive football is what the public likes. The supporters of a team do not enjoy having to always exhort their gridiron heroes to "Hold 'em Galford." They want to see them packing that old ball through, over or around their opponents.

Coaches, players and spectators get their thrills from offensive football.

NEBRASKA AND MISSOURI GAME MAY DETERMINE BIG SIX TITLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 21.—Big Six football this week will take on an exclusively intra-conference play that seems likely to settle the title race, or at least furnish a definite indication of where the 1929 champion will be found.

Missouri, by handing Drake University last Saturday an unexpectedly decisive 20-to-0 defeat, injected an uncertainty into the championship chase that heretofore appeared like a repetition of last year's routine and victorious march by the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Until the Drake game Missouri was given little more than an outside chance to stop the Nebraskans in the annual Tiger-Husker clash here next Saturday. Today, however, if comparative scores can be taken as any criterion Missouri might be said to hold a slight edge over the Cornhuskers. There was little dishonor in the Nebraska defeat by Pittsburg Saturday, for back East the Smoky City team is regarded as a likely national championship selection.

Nebraska Scores on Passes.

It was particularly significant that, although the Panthers succeeded in stemming the Huskers' line-smashing attempts the Nebraska eleven shifted its offense to the air and made a touchdown, and continued to uet substantial gains.

Missouri, in its conquest over Drake, showed qualities not unlike the Nebraskans. The Tiger forward wall, which has been one of Coach Gwinn Henry's chief worries, performed effectively, stopping Drake rushes when they got into dangerous territory. The Henry men, too, showed versatility, gaining with equal facility by the air route and through the line.

The most surprising thing about Missouri's victory was the disclosure that Coach Henry will face the remainder of the season with three complete sets of backs of varsity caliber and a little more than two complete lines of the same ability, something very unusual for a school the size of the University of Missouri. It has always been Henry's policy to use as many men in each game as possible, but this year, there is actually such a small difference in ability among 30 men, that a selection of a regular varsity lineup is an impossibility. Henry demonstrated Saturday that reserve power will be one of Missouri's chief assets this fall.

The first quarter was scarcely started before an endless stream of Henry's substitutes were besieging officials. It was this reserve power that wore the highly touted Bulldogs to a frazzle. More than 40 men played in the game for Missouri. What added to the impressiveness of the victory was the fact that Drake had previously defeated Washington U. and the Oklahoma Aggies by substantial scores.

Although Texas U. was added favorite over Oklahoma Saturday the Sooner defeat by a 21 to 0 score, came as somewhat of an upset. During the first part of their encounter with Texas, Coach Lindsay's Sooners outplayed the Southerners, but for the last three periods, gave way before a powerful line attack. But Oklahoma's defeat can be counted as little to hearten the Kansas Aggies, who will entertain the Sooners next Saturday. Texas U. has one of the outstanding teams of the nation and there was small discredit in Oklahoma's first defeat of the season at its hands.

Sooners Favored Over Aggies.

Despite the fact that Coach Mc-Millin's Kansas Aggies triumphed over K. U., 6 to 0 the Oklahoma eleven must be given a considerable edge in its clash with them this week. The deciding touchdown of the interstate Kansas game came from a single pass that spanned half the gridiron, while the Jayhawkers outplayed the Aggies for the rest of the game, but failed to produce a touchdown.

The remaining game in the conference Saturday, Iowa State vs. Kansas U. at Ames, offers little in the way of dope one way or the other. Each team has one victory to its credit over a decidedly weak foe, Kansas vanquishing the Emporia Kansas Teachers and Iowa State defeating Simpson. The clashes this week will bring Oklahoma and Nebraska into conference play for the first time this year.

famous pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"You housewives should know that here at last is a cigar manufacturer who looks at his product as an article of human consumption and gives it the same care and thought that I wish existed in the minds of every food manufacturer in the land. No longer need the spectre of spit and disease-lurking germs endanger the health of cigar smokers.

"Every man who smokes Cremo has the double assurance of fine cigar quality plus protection against the menace of spit-tipped cigars.

"Every tobacco leaf entering the Cremo factory is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. Every sanitary precaution known to science is taken to safeguard its purity along each step of the way.

"Cremo Cigars are folded, wrapped and tipped by amazing inventions without the menace of spit . . . in factories that are models of cleanliness . . . air-flooded, sun-baked, spotlessly clean!

"This Cremo purity is sealed . . . in separate sanitary foil wrappers. Thus the method of manufacture used by Cremo insures a cigar that aims to give the same standard as found in certified milk."

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends? What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

Here's a suggestion deliberately made with confidence which you smokers of imported cigars will appreciate: Try a Certified Cremo. You will recognize the superiority of Certified Cremo which starts with the choicest and tenderest leaves, ripe and mellow, and continues in goodness through a slow, expensive maturing and mellowing process . . . topped off with the finest imported wrapper! For 5 cents you get the delight of a high priced cigar for Certified Cremo contains no scrap—no floor sweepings—all long filler—all fresh, tender leaves. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo that insures uniformly fine, clean cigars. Foil-wrapped . . . sanitary . . . crush-proof . . . the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall must have had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

A HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR THE CHILDREN

Hallowe'en is the time that is just made for pranks and frolics, and what fun it is to have a celebration with friends and tell stories or play games that are spooky and weird!

And then to serve refreshments that have names like Witches Faggots, Brown Brew, Halloween Cake. Wouldn't you like to plan such a party all by yourself this year, or with the help of a few friends? All right, here are some suggestions as to how to do it.

First there is the question of invitations. Real spooky ones are done in "ghost writing." Take plain white sheets of note paper and paste a little black cat on the top of each. These can be bought in paster form, or perhaps you will prefer to draw them yourself. Under the black cat write in black ink, "I am the favorite spirit of Hallowe'en, and I have a message for your eyes alone. If you will hold this paper very near the electric light globe, you will be able to decipher the mystic words."

The invitation itself is then written with a clean pen point dipped in a strong mixture of baking soda and water. When dry the words will not show, but when the paper is held near the heat of the light bulb, the word will appear in dark brown.

Plan games of the guessing and fortune telling variety. The libraries have books of games suitable to various holidays and seasons and by consulting them, you will be able to find several that are simple to carry out. Be sure to include some of the old traditional Halloween pranks such as ducking for apples, telling fortunes by apple peelings, etc.

We all like good things to eat and this season of the year has some particularly good ones. Sweet cider, apples, nuts, pumpkin pies these are traditional with Hallowe'en. So see that you use them in some way.

A good menu that you can prepare yourself consists first of Witches Faggots, which are sandwiches made of brown bread spread with a mixture of peanut butter moistened with a little orange juice and mixed with well mashed, ripe bananas—allowing one-half cup peanut butter, one half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon milk and two bananas. Cut the sandwiches in stripes one inch wide and arrange in piles on platter. If made early in the day, wrap the sandwiches in waxed paper and then in a slightly dampened napkin and put them in the ice box.

Other sandwiches made of cream cheese mixed with finely chopped nuts and raisins spread on whole bread and cut in rounds should be served also.

Brown brew makes an appropriate drink. Pour sweet cider into a punch bowl over a block of ice and add a dozen or so strips of orange peel. Hallowe'en cake is made from the following recipe:

Halloween cake: Work to a cream half cup butter and one cup sugar, then add one egg and beat well. Stir in one cup sour milk or buttermilk. Sift one and three-fourths cup flour with one-half cup dry cocoa, one teaspoon baking soda and one-quarter teaspoon salt. Add to the liquid mixture and when well mixed, pour into greased, shallow cake pan and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Cool, spread with chocolate icing and decorate with marshmallows that have been made into funny faces by drawing features on them with a toothpick dipped in melted chocolate. Cut in squares for serving.

Put a bowl of red apples and another of red and white grapes on the table and serve cracked nuts or popcorn.

PRUNE TARTS OR TURNOVERS

Individual Tarts Are More Easily Served Than Pie.

Wash, dry, pit prunes; put through a food chopper. To chopped prunes, add beaten egg, soda cracker rolled fine, grated rind and juices of one-half lemon.

For turn overs cut pastry into four-inch squares, moisten edges with cold water, place spoonful of mixture in center, fold over to form a triangle, pressing edges together. Prick top with fork to allow steam to escape; bake in hot oven.

SERVE MILK TOAST OFTEN

Old-fashioned milk or cream toast makes a good, nutritious breakfast dish and one that could be used occasionally in place of the regulation hot cereal, which, even in the best of families, occasionally grows tiresome.

Children as well as grown-ups will relish such a change, and the speed with which it can be prepared will appeal to the busy mother who has to cook the breakfast.

LL RACE

riods, gave way before a powerful line attack. But Oklahoma'e defeat can be counted as little to hearten the Kansas Aggies, who will entertain the Sooners next Saturday. Texas U. has one of the outstanding teams of the nation and there was small discredit in Oklahoma's first defeat of the season at its hands.

Sooners Favored Over Aggies.

Despite the fact that Coach McMillin's Kansas Aggies triumphed over K. U., 6 to 0 the Oklahoma eleven must be given a considerable edge in its clash with them this week. The deciding touchdown of the interstate Kansas game came from a single pass that spanned half the gridiron, while the Jayhawkers outplayed the Aggies for the rest of the game, but failed to produce a touchdown.

The remaining game in the conference Saturday, Iowa State vs. Kansas U. at Ames, offers little in the way of dope one way or the other. Each team has one victory to its credit over a decidedly weak foe, Kansas vanquishing the Emporia Kansas Teachers and Iowa State defeating Simpson. The clashes this week will bring Oklahoma and Nebraska into conference play for the first time this year.

A HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR THE CHILDREN

Hallowe'en is the time that is just made for pranks and frolics, and what fun it is to have a celebration with friends and tell stories or play games that are spooky and weird!

And then to serve refreshments that have names like Witches Faggots, Brown Brew, Halloween Cake. Wouldn't you like to plan such a party all by yourself this year, or with the help of a few friends? All right, here are some suggestions as to how to do it.

First there is the question of invitations. Real spooky ones are done in "ghost writing." Take plain white sheets of note paper and paste a little black cat on the top of each. These can be bought in paster form, or perhaps you will prefer to draw them yourself. Under the black cat write in black ink, "I am the favorite spirit of Hallowe'en, and I have a message for your eyes alone. If you will hold this paper very near the electric light globe, you will be able to decipher the mystic words."

The invitation itself is then written with a clean pen point dipped in a strong mixture of baking soda and water. When dry the word will not show, but when the paper is held near the heat of the light bulb, the word will appear in dark brown.

Plan games of the guessing and fortune telling variety. The libraries have books of games suitable to various holidays and seasons and by consulting them, you will be able to find several that are simple to carry out. Be sure to include some of the old traditional Halloween pranks such as ducking for apples, telling fortunes by apple peelings, etc.

We all like good things to eat, and this season of the year has some particularly good ones. Sweet cider, apples, nuts, pumpkin pies—these are traditional with Halloween. So see that you use them in some way.

A good menu that you can prepare yourself onsists first of Witches Faggots, which are sandwiches made of brown bread spread with a mixtu. of peanut butter moistened with a little orange juice and mixed with well mashed, ripe bananas—allowing one-half cup peanut butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon milk and two bananas. Cut the sandwiches in strips one inch wide and arrange in piles on plates. If made early in the day, wrap the sandwiches in waxed paper and then in a slightly dampened napkin and put them in the ice box.

Other sandwiches made of cream cheese mixed with finely chopped nuts and raisins spread on white bread and cut in rounds should be served also.

Brown brew makes an appropriate drink. Pour sweet cider in a punch bowl over a block of ice and add a dozen or so strips of orange peel. Halloween cake is made from the following recipe:

Halloween cake: Work to a soft cream half cup butter and one cup sugar, then add one egg and beat well. Stir in one cup sour milk or buttermilk. Sift one and three-fourths cup flour with one-half cup dry cocoa, one teaspoon baking soda and one-quarter teaspoon salt. Add to the liquid mixture and when well mixed, pour into a greased, shallow cake pan and bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. Cool, spread with chocolate icing and decorate with marshmallows that have been made into funny faces by drawing features on them with a toothpick dipped into melted chocolate. Cut in squares for serving.

Put a bowl of red apples and another of red and white grapes on the table and serve cracked nuts or popcorn.

Individual Tarts Are More Easily Served Than Pie.

Wash, dry, pit prunes; put through a food chopper. To chopped prunes, add beaten egg, soda cracker rolled fine, grated rind and juices of one-half lemon.

SERVE MILK TOAST OFTEN

Old-fashioned milk or cream toast makes a good, nutritious breakfast dish and one that can be used occasionally in place of the regulation hot cereal, which, even in the best of families, occasionally grows tiresome.

Children as well as grown-ups will relish such a change, and the speed with which it can be prepared will appeal to the busy mother who has to cook the breakfast.

BROILED VEAL KIDNEYS, TOMATOES AND MUSHROOMS

Cut large tomatoes across in thick slices, allowing two slices for each serving. Peel and scrape enough mushrooms to allow three or four per portion. Sprinkle the kidneys, tomatoes and mushrooms with salt and pepper.

Place the kidneys on a hot broiler, cut side up, and cook about three inches below the gas flame for six minutes. Then turn them over. At this time place the tomatoes and mushrooms on the broiler, putting a tiny piece of butter on each.

Make a slice of toast for each serving. Place it on a hot plate, put the kidney on the toast with the mushrooms around it and a slice of tomato on each side. Pour any gravy in the pan over the toast and serve very hot.

A Dainty Dessert.

PIE CRUST WITH HONEY

A Sweetish Pastry Which Is Used for Fruit Tarts.

Cut into one and one-half cups flour, one-half cup honey and butter and one-half teaspoon salt. Then add one and one-half tablespoons ice water.

When well blended, roll to one-eighth inch thickness, and place in pie tin, pricking bottom of crust, so as not to bulge.

This crust may be used for tarts, having as a filling fruit not sweetened too much. The sweetening in the shortening cuts down the sweetning needed in the fruit.

Combine Cereals With Fruit.

Cereals combine well with fruit and when combined with fruit they are lighter in texture and minerals and vitamins are added to the diet. It gives a change from the egg and milk mixture so often used with cereals.

Lost—Found—and Restored to The Loser.

Glasses, purses, jewelry and many other personal articles lost in the cars, busses and on the streets of St. Louis are catalogued from day to day in the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Columns, and in most cases the loser recovers his lost article. Because most persons are honest and when finding lost articles read the Post-Dispatch Classified pages expecting the advertiser to make known his loss.

Reaching, as it does, more persons in St. Louis than any other newspaper, the Post-Dispatch is the recognized Lost and Found Medium of St. Louis. To advertise a loss call MAin 1111 for an adtaker.

Hurry-Up Apple Cake.

Line a pan with sliced apples. Sprinkle apples with sugar, cinnamon and butter. Make a batter of one cup of flour, one egg, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup milk, one teaspoon baking powder. Pour mixture over the apples. Bake half an hour. SHE THOUGHT HER CASE HOPELESS

Yet ALL-BRAN Brought Relief Almost Immediately —No Trouble Since

When constipation once gets a grip on a person, it is almost impossible to relieve it, let alone prevent it with drugs and treatments. But here's a lady who was freed from her suffering—read her letter.

"Mine was an extreme case of constipation and although I had tried about everything that was recommended to me, I had almost given up hopes of ever being relieved.

"One day I came across your advertisement, so I thought I would try ALL-BRAN. It relieved me almost immediately and I have had no trouble since, which was almost three months ago."—Mrs. E. E. Leslie, 2104 Lyman St., Flint, Michigan.

Your system must have roughage or bulk daily, otherwise constipation is almost inevitable. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply this bulk. It is a healthful cereal to eat every day. To use in cooked dishes or serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation and to prevent it. Far better than pills and laxatives whose doses often have to be increased to be effective. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran and is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

TASTY APPLE DISHES ARE EASILY SERVED

Attractive to the Eye, Pleasant to the Palate and Valuable as a Food.

The apple season is again at hand and many and delicious are the ways in which this popular and healthful fruit can be served. Every meal—breakfast, lunch, afternoon tea and dinner—can find a place for some kind of an apple dish, and there are all kinds to suit all purposes.

Applesauce, baked apples, fried apples with bacon or sausage, apple muffins, or boiled rice and apples fit into the breakfast menu; apples stuffed with a variety of fillings, apple omelet, salads, apple betty, applesauce gingerbread, pop-overs filled with applesauce, apple cake, baked apples and sweet potatoes are a few of the possibilities for luncheon, and all of these with the addition of apples—baked or stewed, fried or spiced—are served for dinner.

Applebutter or marmalade, or jelly on the toast or in the sandwiches for afternoon tea, tiny cream puff shells filled with stiff apple sauce, or hot apple rolls, or tiny molds of jellied apples are all delicious on the tea tray.

Desserts hot and cold in too many varieties to mention are to be made by those who wish. And so it goes.

Few fruits that we have offer so bountiful a use as the apple. The following recipes are for a few of these dishes—some new and some old, but often abused in the making.

Apple betty is delicious when properly made, but how often do we find it so? Like scalloped oysters it is a dish that offers infinite possibilities for ruining in the cooking. Yet it is simplicity in itself. Apples, breadcrumbs, sugar, a little butter, a little spice—that is all that is needed. The apples must be tart and juicy ones though—some variety like Baldwins or Greenings are best. There should be three times as many diced apples as breadcrumbs. Butter a moderately deep baking dish and spread the bottom with a half-inch layer of buttered breadcrumbs—crumbs made from hard bread that is ground through the meat chopper. Cover the crumbs with a thick layer of apples and sprinkle with white or brown or maple sugar and a little cinnamon. Add another layer of buttered crumbs, a second thick layer of apples and a final covering of crumbs. Cover the dish and bake in a very moderate oven for 40 to 50 minutes. Serve with hard sauce. For five servings allow two cups fine crumbs, one-half cup melted butter, six cups diced apples, one cup brown sugar or three-quarters cup white sugar and one teaspoon cinnamon.

Baked apple slices are fine with pork chops, baked or fried ham or roast pork. Use Baldwin apples, core them but do not peel. Cut across in half-inch slices and place on a buttered baking dish. Mix one-quarter cup sugar and one-quarter cup hot water together and pour over the apples. Bake in a moderate oven until tender and transparent, basting them several times during baking with the syrup in the pan. Serve hot or cold.

Small, whole apples cooked in a sugar syrup until transparent but unbroken, chilled, stuffed with chopped pecan nuts and served with whipped cream make a dessert fit for any kind of a king! To serve select six medium sized perfect apples. Core and peel. Have ready a deep saucepan—the top of a double boiler is excellent—in which two cups sugar and one and one-half cups of water have been boiled for eight minutes, three whole cloves and a small strip of lemon or orange peel are cooked with the syrup. Drop as many apples as the pan will hold into the syrup, which must be deep enough to cover them.

Cover the pan and cook very slowly until transparent and tender. If cooked rapidly they will surely fall apart. Lift carefully to a shallow platter and cook the rest of the apples in the same syrup. If desired a little coloring—rose, green or red may be added to the syrup before cooking the apples. In this way the fruit takes the color of the syrup.

When the apples are cold, fill the centers with chopped pecans mixed with apple jelly or orange marmalade. Whip cream until stiff, sweeten with powdered sugar and flavor with vanilla extract. Cover the apples with cream, piping it through a pastry bag to make a decorative effect, or piling it on with a spoon. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. The syrup remaining after the apples are cooked, should be poured into a shallow pan and cooled. It will usually jell and may be cut or broken with a fork and used as a garnish.

HOW TO MAKE SCRAPPLE

One and three-fourths cups soup stock. One-half cup corn meal. One and one-half cup mixed vegetables. Four slices bacon, cut up.

Method: To highly season boiling soup stock add corn meal gradually, stirring continually until smooth and thick. Cook in double boiler for 45 minutes.

ORANGE AND GRAPE JUICE

October is the month of fruits and especially of grapes. A combination of grape and orange juice using from one-quarter to one-half grape and the rest orange juice will be found a most refreshing and healthful breakfast combination.

In addition to the pleasing flavor, the tonic qualities of the two fruits and their mineral content have a beneficial effect on the system.

SCHOOL LUNCH MUST APPEAL TO THE CHILD'S APPETITE

Provide Some Sort of a Surprise Each Day For the Lunch Box.

Often children who have rather delicate appetites have to carry their lunches to school and find it difficult to eat when the noon hour comes around.

Another is by providing some sort of a surprise each day; looking forward to this stimulates interest in the lunch hour and arouses the child's appetite.

Thought for the Day.

The minerals that are most likely to be lacking in the average diet are the lime, iron, phosphorus and iodine. Phosphorus and lime may be had economically in milk. Iron may be easily secured from spinach, parsley, egg yolks, potatoes, dried beans, raisins, dates and lean meat. Iodine is found in fish and shellfish.

CONDIMENTS CHANGE FLAVOR OF DISHES

Salad dressings flavored with a dash of curry powder whet the appetite that is a bit tired of the more ordinary French or mayonnaise dressing. Make a French dressing and add one-half teaspoon curry powder, a few grains cayenne, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and a pinch of sugar. Serve with lettuce hearts, romaine or endive.

Scrambled eggs cooked in a pan that has been rubbed with a cut clove of garlic, then served on thin, crisp slices of toast that are spread with a little anchovy or bloater paste have an entirely different flavor to the plain variety.

A deliciously piquant sauce for boiled or steamed fish is made by mixing together one teaspoon each of dry mustard and Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoon tomato catsup, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, salt to season and three tablespoons mayonnaise. Add this to one cup of medium thick cream sauce.

An excellent sauce for any kind of cold meat uses one tablespoon each of minced onion and parsley, two teaspoons grated horseradish, one teaspoon of prepared mustard, a dash of cayenne and a few drops of any good table sauce. These are mixed with one-fourth cup salad oil, a tablespoon each of cider and tarragon vinegar and a finely chopped hard-boiled egg.

These are only a few suggestions for changing the flavor of some of your every-day foods, but try them and you will have a new interest in the matter of flavoring, and will be inspired to seek new combinations of your own.

MUSHROOMS HAVE BEEN USED AS FOOD FOR CENTURIES

Their Delicate Flavor Has Appealed to Peoples of All Times and Climes.

Mushrooms have been used as food for many, many years, and some of the old books are amusing in the exaggerated claims that are made on behalf of them.

They are, however, valuable as a food because of their delicate, characteristic flavor.

In composition they are made up of a large proportion of water, some vegetable protein and carbohydrate and a very small amount of mineral matter.

They deteriorate in flavor rather rapidly after picking, and for that reason should be used as soon as possible.

The commercial mushrooms are grown in mushroom cellars and are carefully cultivated. There is no danger of getting any but edible varieties.

Do not attempt to pick mushrooms growing wild unless you are absolutely sure what you are picking. Even then it is best to leave them alone!

MISCELLANEOUS RECIPES

Salmon and asparagus salad is seasonable and delicious. Mix two cupfuls of cold, cooked salmon with one-half cupful diced celery, one teaspoonful of capers and one-fourth cupful of mayonnaise. Form in a mound and encircle with a bunch of cold, cooked fresh asparagus tips, which have been marinated in French dressing. Garnish with watercress and ripe olives.

Watercress Salad.

Wash and pick over watercress. Arrange on individual salad plates and serve with French dressing.

Fruit Sandwiches.

Mash two bananas, add one-fourth tablespoon lemon juice, one-fourth cup crushed pineapple (well drained), two tablespoons honey and mix well with one-half cup of grated mild cheese or cream cheese.

Fig Sandwiches.

Cut up the figs and mash with a fork. Add to two cream cheeses and mix together. Spread between buttered slices of whole wheat, graham or brown bread.

Dumplings for Soup.

Break into a cup the whites of three eggs; fill the cup with milk, put it with a tablespoon of fresh butter and one cup of sifted flour in a spider and stir as it boils until it leaves the spider clean. Set aside until cool and stir in the yolks of three eggs. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg, mix thoroughly and drop by teaspoons in the boiling soup 10 minutes before ready to be served.

Raw Prune Salad.

Wash and dry prunes; remove pits and put through food chopper. Add finely chopped celery and toss lightly together with dressing. Serve on lettuce.

COFFEE MUFFINS

A Delectable Pastry to Serve at a Light Luncheon.

The growing popularity of coffee as a flavor has inspired coffee muffins, which are made with one cup white sugar, one cup brown sugar, three-fourths cup lard, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, one teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon cinnamon, four cups sifted flour, one cup seeded raisins, three-fourths teaspoon baking powder, two cups cold strong coffee, to which has been added one-half teaspoon baking soda.

Mix together and bake at once in well greased muffin tins in a moderate oven. On removing from oven, sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Successful Marketing Plans are Based on Facts

The question today is how to tie up advertising more closely with the machinery of distribution. Sales activity must be planned on intelligent information if it is to succeed.

No more up-to-the-minute commercial data for this purpose is available than that furnished by the new edition of

"A STUDY of ALL AMERICAN MARKETS"

Detailed analysis of the number of business enterprises, wholesale, retail and chain—carefully compiled for each of the 8,046 towns of 1,000 population or more and the 3,072 counties in the United States. All of this information has been specially compiled for this book.

The book also contains 100 specially-drawn maps of the principal markets and a complete set of state maps, along with a copy of a specially-drawn market map of the United States measuring 44" x 66", printed in three colors.

The division of statistics in each county, giving a separation between towns of 1,000 population or more and "All Others or Rural" in the county, is an original and valuable feature in a compilation such as this book contains. The county arrangement of statistics fits in with many other analyses prepared by the United States Department of Commerce, and it may be applied to a study of the comparative values of every type of advertising medium or to the solution of sales problems.

How to get a copy

The gratis distribution of this book is limited to business executives who are interested in the utility of newspaper advertising. Inquiries should be written on your business stationery and one dollar enclosed to cover the cost of postage and packing. Otherwise The 100,000 Group of American Cities reserves the right to charge the production cost of fifteen dollars per copy.

CONDUCTOR ARBOS ARRIVES FROM MADRID

Enrique Fernandez Arbos, conductor of the Royal Orchestra of Madrid, who will be guest leader for the first seven weeks of the Symphony Orchestra's golden jubilee season, began rehearsals today for the first pair of concerts at the Odeon Nov. 1 and 2.

Among the works which he will present will be the Spanish ballet "Triana," for which he provided scenario and music for its premiere last May in Paris, the music being a transcription of some of the Albinez works, which also will be heard here this season.

Another of his presentations will be "nights in the Gardens of Spain," by De Falla, with Alfred Cortot playing the piano score. The first public presentation of this work in Spain was conducted by Senor Arbos, who also gave it for the first time outside of Spain, in Paris. It has been heard here before.

All summer he traveled about Spain with his orchestra, presenting 63 concerts in 70 days, indoors, outdoors or in the bull rings of the small towns where no theater was available.

The other guest conductors, besides Senor Arbos, will be Bernardino Molinari, Eugene Goossens and a newcomer to St. Louis, George Szell, one of the conductors of the State Opera House in Berlin.

A new concertmaster, Alexander Thiede, formerly of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, will make his appearance, as will nine other new members.

SOLDIER ACQUITTED WHEN HE SAYS POLICEMAN BEAT HIM

Jefferson Barracks Private Was Accused of Peace Disturbance After Arrest.

Charges of peace disturbance, resisting arrest and traffic violation against Private Felix Glinski, a soldier at Jefferson Barracks, were dismissed by Police Judge Rosecan today after Glinski had testified that he was severely beaten by Motorcycle Patrolman Orville Cripps.

Glinski said he thought he was obeying a traffic signal given by Cripps at Pennsylvania avenue and Haven street, Aug. 21, last, when the officer accused him of running over his foot. Cripps beat and cursed him at the patrol box and in the patrol wagon, Glinski testified. Cripps denied striking the soldier.

TRIAL PUT OFF, VICTIM IN JAIL

Barkeeper, Alleged to Have Been Robbed, Serving Dry Law Term.

The trial of Roland McDaniels, charged with robbing a saloonkeeper of $1 in a holdup, was postponed for 30 days by Circuit Judge Calhoun today because the prosecuting witness was in jail at Warrenton, Mo., serving a term for violating the national prohibition laws.

McDaniels is charged with holding up Alfonso Vallosia in his saloon at 2900 Washington boulevard. Seeking the continuance, Assistant Circuit Attorney Flynn said he expected Vallosia would be at liberty when the case was called again.

COTTON IS FAIRLY STEADY AT A MODERATE ADVANCE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—An early advance on less favorable weather reports and relatively steady cables was followed by partial reactions in the cotton market today under further southern selling and local liquidation which may have been influenced by the unsettled conditions of the stock market. Mid-afternoon prices were fairly steady, however, at net advances of 9 to 10 points.

Futures closed steady, 3 to 9 points higher; October, 17.82c; December, 18.02-03c; January, 18.14-15c; March, 18.41-43c; May, 18.71-72c; July, 18.83c. Spot quiet, middling, 18.05c.

Cotton opened steady at an advance of 7 to 10 points on trade buying and covering on relatively steady Liverpool cables and less favorable weather advices. Trading was quiet at the start, but became more active after the call when the forecast for frost in North and Central Arkansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle attracted some additional buying. December sold up to 18.13c and March to 18.54c, with the general market showing net advances of about 18 to 20 points by the end of the first half hour.

Private cables said Liverpool had been influenced by Continental and Bombay buying and comparatively light hedging. They also reported fair sales of cotton cloths to Egypt, with an improved demand from the Continent and South America.

The early advance was checked by Southern selling and realizing. Trading later in the morning was less active with prices showing reaction of some 7 to 9 points from the best. The offerings were well enough taken by further trade buying or covering to give the market a generally steady tone, however, and prices at midday held some 10 to 12 points net higher.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES AND RAIL BONDS UP

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—United States Government securities, rails and utilities made progress in the bond market today. Sweeping declines in stocks, on top of last Saturday's losses, served to turn more attention to fixed-return obligations. Easier time money was a constructive factor.

Although some irregularity was scattered through the list, low-priced rails were generally higher, and there was strength in the prime carriers. Gains of a point or more developed in Canadian National 4½s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, Denver & Rio Grande 4s, Kansas City Southern 3s and New York & Susquehanna general 5s.

Convertibles sold lower. American Telephone 4½s dropped below 200. American I. G. Chemical 5½s lost a point, but recovered most of the declined. International Telephone 4½s dipped 2 points or more and Texas Corporation 5s, after receiving good support in the forenoon trading, lost about ½. Reading Coal & Iron 6s softened.

WHEAT TURNS UPWARD AT CLOSE IN CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Executing a quick right about face, wheat turned upward at the last today, after suffering setbacks to a new low price record for the season. Persistent unfavorable crop advices from Argentina helped rally the wheat market in the late dealings. Some notice also was taken that 290,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply total today was decidedly in contrast with 975,000 bushels increase a week ago and with 6,124,000 bushels increase at this time last year.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛c to 1⅛c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ⅜c to 1½@1⅝c advanced, oats ⅜c to ⅛@⅜c up, and provisions unchanged to 7c down.

Opening at ⅛c off to ⅝c up, Chicago wheat later underwent a material setback all around. Corn had an upward trend, starting unchanged to ½c higher, and subsequently scoring general gains. Oats were easy. Provisions likewise tended to sag.

At noon wheat was ⅝ to ⅞ net lower and corn unchanged to ⅝ up.

Houses with Eastern connections did most of the selling at times today in the wheat future delivery market here, and this circumstance being associated more or less with breaks in Wall Street quotations did a good deal to promote wheat price downturns. Some of the most conspicuous traders who of late have been friendly to a rise in the wheat market were among today's sellers. Reports of frosts in Argentina caused some buying, which, however, appeared to originate largely with previous sellers that were in position to collect a profit.

Meanwhile, the amount of wheat in store at Liverpool was reported today as continuing to accumulate, and as now totaling 7,272,000 bu. compared with 2,168,000 bu. a year ago. Fresh arrivals of Argentine wheat at Liverpool were reported also as being pressed for sale, with American and Canadian shippers likewise more active, whereas Liverpool buyers were merely looking on.

Sugar Market Quiet.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Raw sugar was quiet early today with no sales reported. Uncontrolled Cuban and duty free sugars were available at 4.05c delivered, with buyers showing no interest.

Futures market opened 1 to 3 points lower under liquidation and selling by houses with trade and European connections, promoted by the disappointing showing of London and the inactivity in the spot market. Trading was not very active and price movements throughout the remainder of the forenoon were narrow. The list at midday was unchanged from initial figures, with operations inclined to limit fresh commitments and await new developments.

Refined was unchanged at 5.50c for fine granulated and while withdrawals continued at liberal proportions, new business was light and supplies through second hands at from 5.15c to 5.47½c.

Sugar futures closed barely steady; approximated sales, 12,550 tons. December, ...; January, 2.27c; March, 2.27-28c; May, 2.30c; July, 2.35c; September ...

Sugar Market Quiet.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Raw sugar was quiet early today with no sales reported. Uncontrolled Cuban and duty free sugars were available at 4.05c delivered, with buyers showing no interest.

Futures market opened 1 to 3 points lower under liquidation and selling by houses with trade and European connections, promoted by the disappointing showing of London and the inactivity in the spot market. Trading was not very active and price movements throughout the remainder of the forenoon were narrow. The list at midday was unchanged from initial figures, with operations inclined to limit fresh commitments and await new developments.

Refined was unchanged at 5.50c for fine granulated and while withdrawals continued at liberal proportions, new business was light and supplies through second hands at from 5.45c to 5.47½c.

Sugar futures closed barely steady; approximated sales, 12,550 tons. December 2.27c; January, 2.27c; March, 2.27-28c; May, 2.30c; July, 2.35c; September,

CURB STOCKS SOLD IN HEAVY VOLUME

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—A drastic slump in curb market prices during most of today's session was followed by a mild rally, which carried prices up from the low of the day, but left most issues with net declines.

The liquidation was of such proportions in all sections of the list that the ticker tape at one time was 74 minutes late in recording transactions. Many stocks were dumped in large volume as traders sought funds to protect their accounts on the "big board." Less volatile issues went down with the fast-moving shares, although the high-priced utilities and specialties, as usual, showed the largest losses.

One of the outstanding soft spots was Cities Service, which sold down about 7 points. The stock was turned over in tremendous volume from the opening block of 80,000 shares to the late trading, which found it selling at 59, as compared with Saturday's closing price of 66⅝. There was a slight recovery from the lowest quotation.

Electric Invesors, American Light and Tracton, American Gas, Middle West Utilities and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore were down 3 to 12 points at the close after having suffered maximum losses considerably in excess of those figures. Electric Bond and Share drew some support after dropping to about 118 and was marked up to around the previous close. Electric Investors tumbled to 180⅛ and then snapped back some 10 points.

Industrials and investment trusts also broke sharply and several new lows were uncovered, especially in the latter group. General Theater Equipment, Lehigh Coal and Navigation, Crocker Wheeler and Fokker, among others, lost from 3 to 4 points. Marine Midland was down about 5. Blue Ridge issues sank to new minimums, the preferred declining 2 points.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The securities markets were featured in past week by a resumption of the broad downward movement in stocks which began six weeks ago, while the bond market reflecting easier money conditions, showed the most sustained strength witnessed in many months. Public utility and investment trust issues were especially weak, in most cases falling well below the low point reached in the reaction during earlier days of the month. Rail roads and particularly the oils resisted the decline much better than did the general run of industrials and public utilities.

Trade developments took a decidedly unfavorable turn, with building, automobile and steel industries again supplying the bulk of unsatisfactory items. Average steel operations fell 5 per cent to 79 per cent of capacity, with United States Steel showing a decline to 82 per cent against 89 per cent in the previous week. The trade journals point out that purchases of steel by the automobile industry are currently at the lowest point in 18 months, while the building trade also is consuming considerably less steel than a year ago. Purchases by the railroads, on other hand, are at an extremely high level, orders for steel rails in past week being especially large. The F. W. Dodge figures for September demonstrated that building activity was at a low level, with volume of contracts awarded in 37 states east of the Rockies showing a 37 per cent decline for the month compared with a year ago, while for the nine months a 10 per cent drop was reported. Current recession in building is attributed to the unsettled condition of the mortgage money market, making possible the financing of new construction only at prohibitive rates, as well as the continued surplus of residential buildings.

CROSS BURNED BEFORE HOME OF LAMAR COUNTY ATTORNEY

By the Associated Press.

LAMAR, Colo., Oct. 21.—A fiery cross was burned before the home of Alfred Todd, county attorney, associated with defense counsel in the trial of Ralph Fleagle, third defendant in the trials growing out of the robbery in May, 1928, of the First National Bank here, and the killing of four men.

Todd is legal adviser to the county commissioners, his office having nothing to do with criminal prosecution. The flaming cross was placed by men wearing no regalia and who were not recognized.

A few hours later Charles Oswald, a farmer, told officials he was stopped four miles from Lamar by three carloads of armed men, who questioned him closely regarding strength of the jail where Fleagle is held. Oswald said he was robbed of $50 by the men. A dozen extra heavily armed guards patrolled the county jail to halt an attempt at lynching or at rescue of the prisoners.

B'NAI EL VOTES TO BUY CHURCH IN WEST END

Congregation B'Nai El, the oldest reformed Jewish church west of the Mississippi, now at Spring and Flad avenues, will buy the property of Central Presbyterian Church at the southeast corner of Clara avenue and Delmar boulevard, at a price not announced, if the latter organization, which wants to move farther west, agrees to the terms. B'Nai El's membership voted in favor of this at its annual meeting yesterday, at which Circuit Judge Moses Hartmann was re-elected president of the congregation.

The Central Presbyterian's buildings, on a lot fronting 100 feet on Delmar boulevard and 190 feet deep, are about 20 years old and contain besides the church proper, Sunday school rooms, a gymnasium and a dining room accommodating 1000 persons.

B'Nai El has desired to move from the South Side to the West End for some time, because 85 per cent of its 500 members reside in the latter vicinity. At first it planned to build a new temple. A survey, it is stated, has shown Clara and Delmar to be about two blocks west of the center of St. Louis' Jewish population.

B'Nai El was formed in 1847 and its first temple was erected in 1855 at Seventh and Cerre streets.

CHARGED WITH MURDER IN BOY'S DEATH FROM TETANUS

Marissa, Ill., Farmer Told Hospital Authorities That Mule Kicked Youth.

Grant Miles, 60 years old, a farmer near Marissa, Ill., was charged with murder in a warrant issued at Belleville today in connection with the case of Wilford G. Winter, 16 years old, who died Sept. 27 of tetanus at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Miles was arrested Saturday and placed in Belleville jail, after an investigation made at the order of the State's Attorney.

The Winter boy, son of John Winter, farmer living near Miles, suffered a wound on the face Sept. 20 and was taken to the hospital a few days later. He was injured while working on Miles' farm and at the time, it was said, Miles explained that the boy was kicked by a mule. Before he died the boy is said to have made a statement to the effect that "somebody cut me."

THE BISHOP MURDER CASE

A PHILO VANCE DETECTIVE STORY

By S. S. Van Dine

CHAPTER 19.

MARKHAM leaned over and spoke peremptorily. "We haven't time to mince words, doctor. We're investigating a series of atrocious murders. Mr. Drukker is involved in those murders — to what extent we don't know. But it is our duty to find out."

The doctor's first impulse was to combat Markham; but he evidently thought better of it, for when he answered, it was in an indulgently matter-of-fact voice.

"I have no reason, sir, to withhold any information from you. But to question Mr. Drukker's responsibility is to impute negligence to me in the matter of public safety. Perhaps, however, I misunderstand this gentleman's question." He studied Vance for a brief moment. "There are, of course, degrees of responsibility," he went on, in a professional tone. "Mr. Drukker's mind is overdeveloped, as is often the case with hypnotic victims. All mental processes are turned inward, as it were; and the lack of normal physical reactions often tends to produce inhibitions and aberrancies. But I've noted no indications of this condition in Mr. Drukker."

Dr. Barstead thought a moment. "Children's games, I should say. Such recreations are not unusual with cripples. In Mr. Drukker's case it is what we might term a waking wish-fulfillment. Having had no normal childhood, he grasps at whatever will give him a sense of youthful rehabilitation. His juvenile activities tend to balance the monotony of his purely mental life."

"What is Mrs. Drukker's attitude toward his instinct for play?"

"She very correctly encourages it. I've often seen her leaning over the wall above the playground in Riverside Park watching him. And she always presides at the children's parties and dinners which he holds in his home."

We took our leave a few minutes later. As we turned into Seventy-sixth street, Heath, as if arousing himself from a bad dream, drew a deep breath and sat upright in the car.

"Did you get that about the kid games?" he asked, in an awe-stricken voice. "Good God, Mr. Vance! What's this case going to turn into?"

A curious sadness was in Vance's eyes as he gazed ahead toward the misty Jersey cliffs across the river.

Our ring at the Drukker house was answered by a portly German woman, who planted herself stolidly before us and informed us suspiciously that Mr. Drukker was too busy to see anyone.

"You'd better tell him, however," said Vance, "that the District Attorney wishes to speak to him immediately."

His words produced a strange effect on the woman. Her hands went to her face, and her massive bosom rose and fell convulsively. Then, as though panic-stricken, she turned and ascended the stairs. We heard her knock on a door; there was a sound of voices; and a few moments later she came back to inform us that Mr. Drukker would see us in his study.

As we passed the woman Vance suddenly turned and, fixing his eyes on her ominously, asked:

"What time did Mr. Drukker get up yesterday morning?"

* * *

DRUKKER received us standing by a large table covered with books and sheets of manuscript. He bowed somberly, but did not ask us to have chairs.

Vance studied him a moment as if trying to read the secret that lay behind his restless, hollow eyes.

"Mr. Drukker," he said, "It is not our desire to cause you unnecessary trouble; but we have learned that you were acquainted with Mr. John Sprigg, who, as you probably know, was shot near here yesterday morning. Now, could you suggest any reason that any one might have had for killing him?"

Drukker drew himself up. Despite his effort at self-control there was a slight tremor in his voice as he answered.

"I knew Mr. Sprigg but slightly. I can suggest nothing whatever in regard to his death" . . .

"There was found on his body a piece of paper bearing the Riemann-Christoffel tensor which you introduce in your book in the chapter on the finiteness of physical space." As Vance spoke he moved one of the typewritten sheets of papers on the table toward him, and glanced at it casually.

Drukker seemed not to notice the action. The information contained in Vance's words had riveted his attention.

"I can't understand it," he said vaguely. "May I see the notation?"

"Have you asked Arnesson about this? He was discussing this very subject with Sprigg last week."

"Oh, yes," Vance told him carelessly. Mr. Arnesson recalled the incident but couldn't throw any light on it. We thought perhaps you could succeed where he had failed."

"I regret I can't accommodate you." There was the suggestion of a sneer in Drukker's reply. "Any one might use the tensor. Weyl's and Einstein's works are full of it. It isn't copyrighted. . . . Why come to me about it?"

"It wasn't the tensor formula alone that led our roving footsteps to your door," said Vance lightly. "For instance, we have reason to believe that Sprigg's death is connected with Robin's murder. . . ."

Drukker's long hands caught the edge of the table, and he leaned forward, his eyes glittering excitedly.

"Connected—Sprigg and Robin? You don't believe that newspaper talk, do you? . . . It's a damned lie." His face had begun to twitch, and his voice rose shrilly. "It's insane nonsense . . . There's no proof, I tell you—not a shred of proof!"

"That rot! That crazy rot! Oh, good God! Has the world gone mad! . . . He swayed back and forth as he beat on the table with one hand, sending the papers flying in all directions.

Vance looked at him with mild surprise.

"Aren't you acquainted with the Bishop, Mr. Drukker?"

The man stopped swaying and, steadying himself, stared at Vance with terrible intensity. His mouth was drawn back at the corners, resembling the transverse laugh of progressive muscular dystrophy.

"You, too! You're gone mad!" He swept his eyes over us. "You damned, unutterable fools! There's no such persor as the Bishop! There wasn't any such person as Cock Robin or Johnny Sprig. And here you are—men grown—trying to frighten me—me, a mathematician—with nursery tales!" He began to laugh hysterically.

* * *

VANCE went to him quickly, and taking his arm led him to his chair. Slowly his laughter died away, and he waved his hand wearily. "Too bad Robin and Sprigg were killed." His tone was heavy and colorless. "But children are the only persons that matter. . . . You'll probably find the murderer. If you don't, maybe I'll help you. But don't let your imaginations run away with you. Keep to facts . . . facts. . . ."

The man was exhausted, and we left him.

"He's scared, Markham—deuced scared," observed Vance, when we were again in the hall. "I could bear to know what is hidden in that shrewd warped mind of his."

He led the way down the hall to Mrs. Drukker's door.

"This method of visiting a lady doesn't accord with the best social usage. Really, y' know, Markham, I wasn't born to be a policeman. I abhor snooping."

Our knock was answered by a feeble voice. Mrs. Drukker, paler than usual, was lying back on her chaise-longue by the window. Her white prehensile hands lay along the arms of the chair, slightly flexed; and more than ever she recalled to my mind the pictures I had seen of the ravening Harpies that tormented Phineus in the story of the Argonauts.

Before we could speak she said in a strained terrified voice: "I knew you would come—I knew you were not through torturing me."

"To torture you, Mrs. Drukker," returned Vance softly, "is the furthest thing from our thoughts. We merely want your help."

"If only I could help you!" she muttered. "But there's nothing to be done—nothing." . . .

"You might tell us what you saw from your window on the day of Mr. Robin's death," Vance suggested kindly.

"No—no!" Her eyes stared horribly. "I saw nothing—I wasn't near the window that morning. You may kill me, but my dying words would be No—no—no!"

Vance did not press the point.

"Beedle tells us," he went on, "that you often rise early and walk in the garden."

"Oh, yes." The words came with a sigh of relief. "I don't sleep well in the mornings. I often wake up with dull boring pains in my spine, and the muscles of my back feel rigid and sore. So I get up and walk in the yard whenever the weather is mild enough."

"And she also saw Prof. Dillard with you."

Again she nodded, but immediately afterward she shot Vance a combative inquisitive glance.

"He sometimes joins me," she hastened to explain. "He feels sorry for me, and he admires Adolph; he thinks he's a great genius. And he is a genius! He'd be a great man—as great as Prof. Dillard—if it hadn't been for his illness. * * * And it was all my fault. I let him fall when he was a baby. * * *." A dry sob shook her emaciated body, and her fingers worked spasmodically.

* * *

AFTER a moment Vance asked: "What did you and Prof. Dillard talk about in the garden yesterday?" A sudden wiliness crept into the woman's manner. "About Adolph mostly," she said, with a too obvious attempt at unconcern.

"Did you see any one else in the yard or on the archery range?" Vance's indolent eyes were on the woman.

"No!" Again a sense of fear pervaded her. "But somebody else was there, wasn't there? — Somebody who didn't wish to be seen." She nodded her head eagerly. "Yes; Some one else was there—and they thought I saw them. * * * But I didn't. Oh, merciful God, I didn't! * * *" She covered her face with her hands, and her body shook convulsively. "If only I had seen them! If only I knew! But it wasn't Adolph—it wasn't my little boy. He was asleep—thank God, he was asleep"

Vance went close to the woman.

"Why do you thank God that it wasn't your son?" he asked gently.

She looked up with some amazement.

"Why, don't you remember? A little man shot Johnny Sprigg with a little gun yesterday morning—the same little man that killed Cock Robin with a bow and arrow. It's all a horrible game—and I'm afraid . . . But I mustn't tell—I can't tell. The little man might do something awful. Maybe"—her voice became dull with horror—"maybe he has some insane idea that I'm the old woman who lived in a shoe! * * *

"Come, come, Mrs. Drukker." Vance forced a consoling smile. "Such talk is nonsense. "You've let these matters prey on your mind. There's a perfectly rational explanation for everything. And I have a feeling that you yourself can help us find that explanation."

"No—no! I can't—I mustn't! I don't understand it myself." She took a deep, resolute inspiration, and compressed her lips.

"Why can't you tell us?" persisted Vance.

"Because I don't know," she cried. "I wish to God I did! I only know that something horrible is going on here—that some awful curse is hanging over this house * * *"

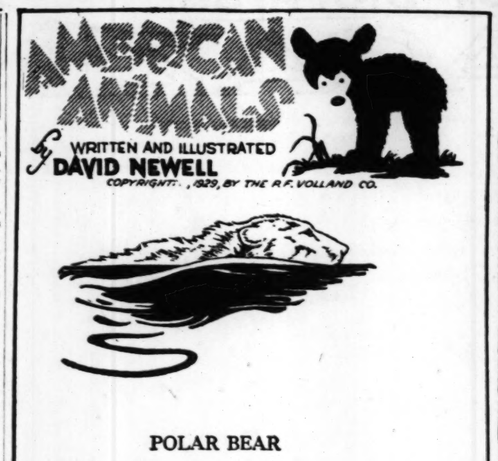

"How do you know that?"

The woman began to tremble violently, and her eyes roamed distractedly about the room.

Daily Story FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE CAVE APARTMENT

JOHN and Peggy were ahead of time. The Little Black Clock stood upon the desk in the back hall with his hands pointed to show it was 7 o'clock though that wasn't the correct time at all. The Little Black Clock remained at 7 o'clock all the time—that is as far as the world knew.

But John and Peggy knew of his reward. For being willing to remain at 7 o'clock to all the rest of the members of the family, he was given the magic that allowed him to turn himself backward or forward to any hour at all.

"What shall it be tonight?" he asked John and Peggy. "Shall I turn way ahead or way behind, or a little ahead or a little behind?"

"Let's turn the time a couple of hundred years ahead or so," suggested Peggy.

No sooner had she said this than the Little Black Clock stepped down from his place on the desk, stretched his hands and said:

"I'm sure you'll need a new apartment. It's so noisy now."

"But we have a nice house," said John.

He had hardly spoken than the whole scene changed and there was so much noise everywhere.

"I really advise a cave," said the Little Black Clock.

"A cave?" John asked.

"A cave?" Peggy echoed.

"Yes," said the Little Black Clock, "the noise from those airplanes is becoming so great that I think if you found a nice, quiet cave to live in you'd be more comfortable."

"Let's try it," John said.

Skim Milk Is Nutritive

GRANDMA'S milkman left skim milk at her door daily, and it was a favorite household drink, especially in the summer time. It might be used more liberally as a thrift item nowadays.

Skim milk contains all the protein and mineral matter of whole milk, with the exception of the cream, which has been removed to use in making butter, but this deficiency of fat can readily be made up.

In cooking, skim milk may be used in soups, chowder, oyster stews, pancakes, muffins, waffles, cakes and many of the desserts where butter or other fat are called for, and thus the food value of the milk is sustained.

When used in the diet of children there will be no loss in nutritive value if the bread is amply spread with butter and plenty of butter is added to the vegetables.

When economy is necessarily a matter to be considered or in large families, where the milk supply is a big item of expense, skim milk might be substituted for whole milk to great advantage.

THE IMPORTANCE OF A WILL

By Dorothy Frooks.

MONEY seemed to be the cause for a separation after long years of friendship. In court the contested case revealed the facts. It appeared that two women were bosom friends since their early teens. Each married and went her own way and they were separated in time, except for an occasional visit. One day, however, sorrow came into the life of one of the women when death took her husband. She became very ill, and called for her old friend, the other woman. The woman was right on hand, and promised the dying mother that she would look after her new-born baby and bring him up as though he were her very own. The child was taken into the other woman's home, reared and cared for together with other children in this foster mother's home, but never knowing that he was not with his natural mother.

Under the law in such cases, although he turned over his money to his foster family since birth, the child has no rights legally in relation to the family possessions.

As he grew he worked and turned his money to his foster mother. She had a bank account, and deposited his money in her own name. Although the foster mother loved this child, now grown to manhood, as well as her own children, the law took its course because of thoughtlessness on her part.

The woman died. She did not leave a will. All the young man's savings were in the foster mother's bank account, in her name. In the division of her estate he was excluded as a beneficiary. The other children contended that the money was given for his upkeep, and it was his contention that the foster mother intended to give him his money when he reached a certain age.

Anyone knowing these facts would readily realize that if the mother had made a will her intentions would have been made known to the world. The sudden realization of his strange relationship and strange family connections would not have been so severe if he had been included as a member of the family all these years.

A will is absolutely important. One may want to remember a friend who has been kind or in need. Sometimes friends have had more good influence in a person's life than relatives. Without a will, all the intentions in the world would do no good for the person who would have been remembered by will.

Painted Furniture.

If you cannot afford a good wood when buying furniture, it is wise to keep to the painted sort. The painted furniture gives a dainty appearance that is much more to be desired than cheaper grades of stained wood.

Perhaps your Child needs Milk of Magnesia

Too much acid always sickens

A GROWING child's system is less tolerant of an acid condition than that of a grown person. That's why a lot of sleep and a diet rich in fruits and the leafy vegetables is important to children. During sleep the acids of the body are consumed and the alkaline balance, so essential to health, is restored.

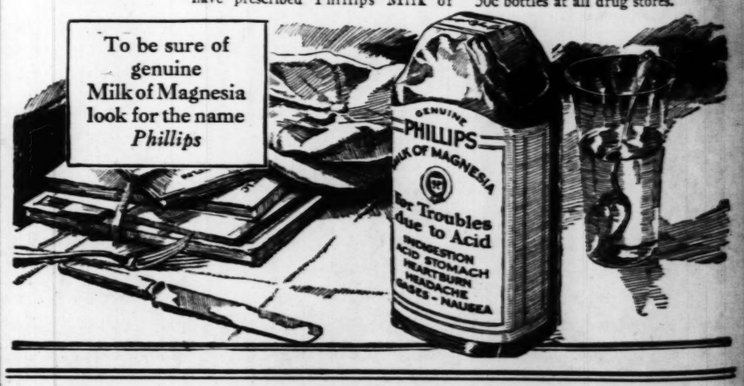

In spite of all your care, a child's system will occasionally become too acid. Of course you can correct this by rest and diet. But that takes time. The instant way is with an alkaline provided by Nature for the purpose. Milk of Magnesia.

You can make no mistake about the best form of magnesia if you follow the example set by physicians the world over. For fifty years, they have prescribed Phillips Milk of Magnesia to correct disorders caused by too much acid. In adults; sour stomach, nausea, gas, heartburn, indigestion. In children; bad breath, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic, diarrhea. Phillips Milk of Magnesia is in the form declared most effective by the U. S. Dispensatory. Its action is thorough; yet there is nothing so soothing to an ailing stomach.

A spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water and in five minutes you are happy, smiling! All symptoms of over-acidity soon disappear. A mother's duty is so much easier when she uses it. Children accept it so readily. Nothing could be superior for keeping the bowels open in constipation, colds, and children's diseases.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has many important uses in every household. Each package contains full directions, well worth reading. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores.

HAPPINESS.

THE advance notice of a new "Psychology of Happiness" declares that for the firs time in history happiness is within reach of the great masses of the people. This is interesting if true. Not having looked between the covers, and not being supposed to make premature reports anyway, I can't say just how the volume goes about proving its point. I am rendered a little nervous, however, by a reference in the announcement to the value of self-study. This is just a little too reminiscent of various free lectures to keep me staring eagerly at the calendar until the book is on the stands.

But it is rather cheering to know that psychology is nothering with happiness at all. The subject has been neglected in he past with great fidelity, psychologists being too concerned with knee-jerks, dementia praecox and how much time is involved in delivering a punch on the jaw to give much attention to beatitude.

It might also be mentioned that the topic has been greatly neglected in literature. Descriptions of happy people seem to bore most authors, partly because joy is supposed to be a static condition and partly because they get more so-nace out of writing about characters worse off than themselves. Dante seemed to derive much more enjoyment out of wandering through the icy levels of hell than he did in winging over the rose-tinted rings of paradise.

The first great difficulty about writing a book on happiness is to define the word. This is something which seems to stump even the dictionary. my lexicon describing it as "the pleasurable experience that springs from the possession of good or the gratification of desires." The dictionary as you observe, gives itself plenty of room.

After you have decided what you mean by happiness, the next problem is to find it. Once on an assignment I approached a large number of strangers and asked them if they were happy. Although they all seemed very willing to talk over their life stories, the only one who admitted owning a bluebird was a youth engaged in collecting pennies for the Salvation Army.

There is a widely prevalent notion, fostered by the jasmine school of literature, to the effect that engaged couples always walk in ecstacy. No more false idea ever used up good white paper. Some engaged people live in Paradise, but since the happy ones are generally those who had a hard struggle landing the other party, two of them are seldom found in the same couple.

A large number of young women go through their engagement period like so many armored cruisers. The man they have captured is not at all like the knight of whom they have dreamed, and so they seek to satisfy their hurt ego by making him feel that he is first cousin to an earthworm.

When he seems goaded to the point of taking his floral offerings elsewhere, panic drives his lady into luring him back again. Thus many a young man spends his engagement period commuting between crystal mountain tops of ecstacy and steam heated caverns in Gehenna, while his fiancee devotes her time to stabbing his ego and then hastily applying balm.

Even in the best of betrothals there is some fear that the wrong person has been chosen. This is always increased by the warning chorus of Norns who have gone through the divorce court. Many of these stormy postings of the banns turn out very well in the end, but to look for real happiness in the average engagement is like seeking for posies on Amneran Heath.

Much is said about finding happiness in work. Yet non-creative labor is monotonous, and creative labor causes many pangs. Indeed, authors usually have to lock up their shoes or turn their clothes over to a stern-faced secretary in order to keep themselves attached to their typewriters.

I don't think that there is a great deal of joy even in riches, the difficulty being that so very few people really feel rich. As soon as a man gets a million he meets somebody with ten millions and immediately believes that he is in tatters. A lady whose husband cuts his coupons with a lawn mower told me with perfect sincerity that they were not at all well off and that they found it necessary to do a good deal of economizing.

Digressing a little, I might remark that belief in raising children simply prevents the sons of even the princeliest houses from feeling the glow of wealth. There is a story that once, when two of the Rockefeller boys were playing with a sailboat, a far handsomer craft moved into view. "Gosh, I wish father would buy us a boat like that," one of them is reported to have said. "Go on!" replied the other. "Who do you think we are—the Vanderbilts?"

Drying Blankets.

To dry blankets, double them lengthwise over the line, with the stripes vertical so as to prevent the colors running into the rest of the fabric. When partly dry, turn the other side out and hang until quite dry. Then shake well and beat lightly with a wicker carpet beater so as to bring out the fluffiness.

Making the First Fire

BY BURT McCONNELL

BEAR-TRAP LAKE PORTAGE.

THANKS to the provident Indian who cached his moose-hide along the portage, between my rude jack-pine shelter and the unnamed lake to the northward, I spent a fairly comfortable night.

Of course, moose-hide wasn't one-tenth the warmth of caribou; Stefansson's men used to sleep on the ice of the Arctic Ocean, in a temperature of 40 degrees below zero, in caribou-skin sleeping bags. And entirely naked, too. A moose-hide, on the other hand, is quite porous, the hair is heavy and stiff and without any of the properties which make caribou-skin such a good non-conductor of cold.

In announcing my plan I said I might be too busy during the next two days in the woods to think about food. This has turned out to be the case; I haven't eaten a thing in the past two days. I might have set some rabbit snares, I suppose, but a pair of moccasins seemed to me much more necessary than food.

I spent the daylight hours yesterday making a pair of moccasins and cutting out the main portion of a shirt from the moose-hide. With another cold night facing me, these two items of clothing assumed great importance. The hide is as stiff as a board, but the footgear I have fashioned, with an inner sole of moose-hide with the hair left on, is quite comfortable and more or less water proof.

It was quite a task to make them. First came the measurements and pattern, then the cutting. This was finished in about two hours; the really hard job was yet to come—the task of shaving the hair from one and three-quarter inches to a quarter of an inch. That sounds like a simple operation, when one has an ax. And it probably would have been if this particular hide had not been filled with sand and dirt.

The dried mud in the skin so dulled my ax that I had to stop shaving the hide every five minutes or so to sharpen the blade on a rock. So the making of the moccasins took most of my day; there was no time for food, fire or hunting. True, I made a skin-scraper of deer horn, but it made no impression whatever on the stiff hide. The skin of the old bull is so stiff, in fact, that it will stand by itself.

SLEEPING in the sleeveless moose-hide shirt last night was like sleeping in a suit of armor. The unused portion of the moose hide I used to cover up my bare legs, while the small deerskin was draped about my shoulders. And there was none too much, for my thermometer (brought, like my cameras and writing materials, so that I could make a complete record of this experiment) registered 32 degrees above zero in the tent this morning; now, at 11, with the sun filtering down through the jack pines, it registers 42.

Another thing I did yesterday was to locate a spring and clear it out. My camp is located back in the woods, a hundred yards from the portage itself, so that I will not be bothered by chance travelers or hunters. But the slough at the foot of the bluff is more or less stagnant. Knowing that one's health may not be neglected when one is cut off from civilization, alone, as I am, I walked along the edge of the still water, looking for the spring which I felt certain came out of the bluff somewhere—and found it not more than 50 yards from my shelter.

Since health is a matter of such vital importance to us all, perhaps I should explain that, so far, there have been no noticeable results, either one way or the other, from my abstention from food for the last two days. If anything, I was weaker yesterday than I am today. My head is perfectly clear, and the "dark brown" taste, so well known "the morning after" in civilization, has been almost entirely eliminated by the plentiful use of charcoal from McKibbin's last campfire. I have not washed my face in four days, nor have I taken a bath in more than a week, but so far there seems to be no change for the worse.

JUST as soon as my clothes are finished, I expect to set out for the lake to the northward, and give it the "once over," taking my ax, of course. If the fishing prospects look good, I may make a raft; a hook of deer horn, attach the hook to a line made of moose hide, tie a stone to a separate thong, and drop it to the bottom. It may not catch a trout, but there are pike in the country. I shall also set some rabbit snare with moose hide blackened in the ashes of the fire and baited with birch twigs. Only after I have had time to fashion a bow and some arrows will I start in search of bigger game. If a moose comes my way meanwhile, I shall be content to get a motion picture of him with my telescopic lens.

Living the life of prehistoric man, as a Londoner might put it, is not all beer and skittles. For example, I have had but one meal in exactly four days, and that consisted of a rabbit weighing about a pound and a quarter, with no fat whatever on its carcass. Naturally, I feel a little weak, although I do not anticipate starvation; it is always men who think they are going to starve to death who actually do so; it is always the panicky person who gets lost in the woods and goes about in a circle that usually ends in death. So I am hoping that another "bunny" will try to pass through one of my four snares tonight.

My spirits soared when I saw the limp form of my first game; it meant food and, to a certain extent, clothing. It promises success, although a person can not sustain himself indefinitely on rabbits; they are too lean. Extricating him from the moose-hide snare, which had been carefully blackened with charcoal to keep him from eating it, or even seeing it, I brought him to the shelter, skinned him, stretched the skin, and set myself to the task which ended in failure a few days ago—the making of a fire with the bow-drill.

Two reasons contributed to the first failure: I had a grooved rock which did not hold the upper end of the spindle firmly, and at the same time generated a lot of friction. Since that time, however, I have had a more efficient hand socket from a piece of the deer horn. Secondly, I was desperately hungry, not having eaten in more than two days. The outcome, therefore, must be successful—and it was. In 30 seconds I had created spirals of smoke, and in less than three minutes of frenzied sawing, back and forth on the drill fire. The rabbit was cooked, rotisserie fashion, in exactly 15 minutes, and eaten in approximately the same time. While the pangs of hunger urged me to "wolf" the little animal, half-cooked, the knowledge that my stomach, after two-days' abstention from food, might be rudely shocked, and my digestive tract upset, led me to cook the rabbit completely and eat moderately. There was no disturbance.

PERHAPS the one thing I miss most of all (except my family and friends) is something which prehistoric man never had. No; not radio; toothpaste! At that, my privately manufactured tooth-powder, charcoal, is infinitely superior to some of the tooth-pastes I have tried.

An hour after I had eaten my rabbit, it began to rain. And it rained, almost continuously all that night and until 4 p. m. the following day. My hastily erected shelter was not built for such a deluge; from the weather (it seldom gets above 48 degrees in the daytime) I anticipated snow, rather than rain. Consequently, all day yesterday I was hopping about the jack-pine shelter, endeavoring to keep away from the drops that seeped through the moss-chinked cracks in the roof. That was one of the inconveniences I had in mind when I said at the beginning of this article, that blazing a trail back to the Stone Age is not all beer and skittles.

My greatest suffering since District Forester McKibbin left me alone has not been due to hunger or cold nights, but to the pestiferous black flies that fairly swarm about one. How the moose stand them is beyond me. Just a moment while I stop to count the bites on my legs alone, below the knee, checking them off with a pencil. There are exactly 243; 129 on the left leg and 114 on the right. If anyone wants to shoot at that record, they are welcome!

So far, I have not heard a moose bellowing his hoarse challenge through the crisp night, or thrashing the bushes fiercely with his antlers. But that, perhaps, will come. Meanwhile, I shall have to be satisfied with partridge and rabbit. So I must get to work on my bow and arrow, which I blocked out roughly with the ax yesterday.

To Be Continued.

A TOUGH TIME.

This was the statement of Dr. Clyde Fisher, famous explorer and curator of astronomy and education at the American Museum of Natural History, in paying a tribute to Burt McConnell's expedition into the Canadian North Woods.

McConnell, former editor of Literary Digest, is attempting to spend several months in the Canadian wilds as a primitive man, starting without clothes or implements of any kind.

"We have everything done for us these days," Dr. Fisher asserted. "We sit too much and do not get enough exercise. We don't cut wood. It is done for us. We don't even carry out the ashes any more.

"We are not strong, vigorous animals of the type which have developed this country thus far. I have always been of the opinion that a fine body makes a fine mind.

ETIQUETTE

By Kathrine de Peyster

A RUDE YOUNG LADY

YOU have helped me so many times we feel that you will be able to solve this misunderstanding. This is the problem:

A and her boy friend and B and her boy friend went together to the theater one evening. The four sat together. However, at A's left sat two women, total strangers to A. They started a conversation with A and kept her engrossed in it all evening. Each time B or her boy friend wanted to exchange a word with A, A's attention was with these two strange women, practically all the time.

The feelings of B and the boy friends were hurt and they think it was rude of A. They did not feel that they were of the party—the other four a party by themselves. As no one is infallible, if A would only have acknowledged the fact that it probably wasn't quite the way for her to act B and her friend would have been happy with just that committal on her part. But A says that both B and her escort are too sensitive; that she (A) does not want to be reprimanded; that she does not feel that she did anything wrong; and that she does not feel that an apology is in order. A and B are close friends but this was the first time all four had gone out together.

These four people are at a tension until your verdict is given as to who is right, A or B. F. G.

There just isn't any doubt in the world, dear girl, as to who is right, B, of course. One of the most maddening things in the world of social intercourse is the disregarding of the party by one or more members of the party. A was rude terribly rude, to disregard her own party and to give her attention, all or in part, to these people whom she did not even know. She shows a thoughtless spirit that is all wrong if she wants to be liked by people. People of the right kind of thinking would not tolerate this high-handed attitude in her, and, she can thank her lucky stars that the friends in her party are even willing to discuss her rudeness with her. One fine day she will come to her senses and realize that people will just drop her socially for this kind of blatant rudeness. And I hope that she mends her ways. Doesn't she realize that her first social duty is to her party, the people who have planned an occasion in which they hope that she will find happiness and hospitality in their society?

This young person needs a social spanking—and the world is built so that sooner or later she will inevitably get it! She won't always find such a friend as you are, if you are B. One willing to try to show her the error of her ways, one willing to forgive her.

Care of the Wringer

When the washing is finished, unscrew the wringer to take the weight off the rollers and put two small pieces of wood between them to allow the air to pass through. This will add wonderfully to the life of the wringing machine.

THE GARDEN IN THE AUTUMN

(National Garden Bureau.)

CALIFORNIA'S TROUT LILIES

Trout Lilies.

THE dog tooth violet or trout lily, so-called from its handsomely spotted leaves, has long been a favorite wild flower in the Eastern and Central States, but it hasn't made any headway in gardens because of the uncertainty of its blooming. Botanically they are erythroniums. There are two common to the East and Middle West, the white and yellow, E. albidum and Americanum. They make big patches in the woods but often a big patch will fail to show a single flower. It is also difficult to move them as the bulbs burrow deep and the bulb may not be in a line below the leaf as they send out droppers and stolons in various directions at the ends of which new bulbs form. A blooming bulb moved into the garden remains a blooming bulb. The bulbs with only a leaf attached remain in statu quo indefinitely.

California, however, has introduced into gardens a number of handsome species that are reliable bloomers, larger flowered, and in a variety of color including rose, yellow, white, and pink. The Californians have proved perfectly hardy in the Eastern States and one of the most attractive of the spring flowering bulbs. Some of them have two or three flowers to a stem. Unlike the Eastern erythroniums, the Californians do not send out underground runners to propagate but increase from seed. They are small bulbs to be planted about four inches deep. A few dozen of these in some shady spot will make a beautiful group and are well worth a trial.

The butterfly tulips, mariposas, botanically calochorti, are not reliably hardy in the Eastern States although they have survived for a few seasons at times. They may be grown in cold frames with good success and are so novel and unusual in their coloring and marking as to be well worth the trial. But some of the California trout lilies should be included in the fall bulb order. They are now stocked by most dealers and the California dealers handle them in quantity. They bloom in early May, usually a little later than the natives in the wods. The pink and rose species are unusually fine and the big yellows are as beautifully colored as their Eastern relative and seem to be more robust growers. Dog tooth violets are something new to include in the bulb order that are sure to please.

Spiced Beets.

Boil 3 dozen small red beets in salted water until very tender. Boil 2 quarts cider vinegar, 1½ pints sugar, 4 ounces mixed spices, for 8 minutes. Skin beets. They may be left whole or sliced as desired. Put in boiling liquor and boil for five minutes. Then seal in sterilized jars. A nice vegetable to fall back on when you want a change.

More Girls Than Men Hike Mountain Trails

YOUNG women outnumbered all other hikers on the Long Trail and other trails over the rugged slopes of Mount Mansfield, in the Green Mountains, last season.

WHAT causes decay? Germs. Germs, with tartar, are held to be a chief cause of pyorrhea—and of virtually every common tooth and gum disorder known.

Germs on the teeth—and there are millions—are difficult to reach. A dingy, glue-like film envelops them and holds them in contact with the tooth's enamel.

This film coat gets into crevices and stays. It clings so stubbornly that only the special film-removing tooth paste can remove it satisfactorily. That tooth paste is the scientific formula called Pepsodent. Utterly different from every other you have ever known, as you will notice instantly when it touches your teeth.

First Pepsodent curdles film, then removes it with complete safety to the enamel. No pumice, no harmful grit. No crude abrasive, but a creamy paste so gentle that it is recommended for children's teeth and for tender gums.

Safeguard your teeth by this scientific tooth paste. Give them the dazzling whiteness Pepsodent alone can bring. Do not delay. Write for free 10-day tube to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Beautiful Women Use Mello-glo

Beauties who guard their complexions use MELLO GLO Face Powder only. Famous for purity—its coloring matter is approved by the Government. The skin never looks pasty or flaky. It spreads more smoothly and produces a youthful bloom. Made by a new French process. MELLO GLO Face Powder stays on longer.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, Professor Einstein and Henry Ford are to speak in a "Golden Jubilee of Light" broadcast over KSD, KWK from 6:30 to 7:30.

The broadcast will originate in Dearborn, Mich., where Ford has reconstructed the original laboratory and machines used by Edison when he invented the electric light.

Radio listeners may join the assemblage of scientists in the closing minutes of Henry Ford's dinner to Edison, at which Owen D. Young will be toastmaster. A novelty will be music of 1879, the year of Edison's invention, played by an old-fashioned orchestra.

The notables will then visit the old laboratory, where Edison will make a duplicate of the original lamp from similar materials.

Graham McNamee will describe the scene within the laboratory as Edison tests the new light. As the old generators hum and the lights of 1879 flare up, McNamee will give the radio signal to resume modern illumination in all the cities participating in the event.

Edison will then cross the floor of the old laboratory and play the reed organ he kept at the end of the room. Short talks by world-famous scientists, whose names are withheld, and a brief address by President Hoover will end the festivities.
